MEXICAN REBELS PLAN REVOLT

...RLIN AGREES TO ...EW FINANCE PLAN; ... SEEKS HUGE LOAN

BY FLOYD GIBBONS
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

...ARIS, May 29.—The German acceptance of the demands ... reparations commission for the reform of German ... was received by the reparations commission this after... The note consists of six typed pages and annex of eight ... in German with a French translation. The reparations ... spent six hours comparing the texts and also compar... official German text with the informal offer made by ... Hermes, the German Finance Minister, last week, with... reaching the end.

The American delegates actively participated, studying and discussing the slight variances in the two texts, although they have no vote and are only permitted to speak by courtesy.

NOTE IS SATISFACTORY

The German note is satisfactory as a whole and will certainly sidetrack the May 31 crisis. The Berlin government fully assumes that the international loan will be floated for its benefit, but does not make this an absolute condition for accepting the demands for financial reform. Berlin, however, also makes dire prophecies, which are an old song.

Particularly Berlin says that it is banking on the part of the international loan for reparations of 370,000,000 gold marks ($92,500,000) for the remainder of the year and wishes to print sufficient paper to cover the payments if the loan fails or is not floated quickly. This matter can easily be settled later if any difficulty should arise.

The reparations commission will meet again tomorrow to finish its study of the German note and it will also meet on Wednesday. It will probably decide Wednesday that the German reply is satisfactory and will wind up its business.

READY FOR BANKERS

With the German promises for financial reform in the hands of the commission, the ground is well cleared for the international bankers' committee to begin the study of prospects for an international loan to Germany.

J. P. Morgan and his assistant, George Whitney, have had many informal conversations with other bankers since the adjournment of the committee last Friday. Tomorrow he will attend the ceremonies at Suresnes, where Maj. Willard Straight, formerly Morgan's associate, is buried. Mrs. Straight is presenting the cemetery with a large statue of a doughboy. It is being made by Joe Davidson, the sculptor.

The question who will buy $1,000,000,000 of German bonds, guaranteed only by German faith, is one of the great problems in connection with the loan.

"Why should the small American investor buy these bonds, that will certainly not pay more than 6 or 7 per cent?" the correspondent was asked by an influential American banker today. "And if the finest army in Europe could not guarantee for France regular payments of reparations how will one or a million Americans be assured of their interest and principal from Germany?"

GUARANTEES DIFFICULT

The banker confirmed a statement that the interest would be comparatively low, that there would be no element of speculation in the purchase of the bonds, and that the question of satisfactory guarantees is difficult.

"We do not think they will draw out speculative money nor be more advantageous for small American, British and Dutch investors than bonds of sound local enterprises which would probably pay higher interest," he said.

"The great banks and business enterprises of Europe and America will strongly support the loan, however, because they realize the necessity of stimulating international trade, and because they know the loan will be most effective.

"These banks will be able to influence many of their customers to invest in such a loan, as well as investing themselves, and the effect will be felt in general prosperity."

IN MEMORY OF HEROES OF ARGONNE FOREST

"TAPS"

Blown Over the Graves of Our Silent Army Today

These words for "Taps," the Army bugle call which means "Lights Out" and which is sounded over the graves of soldiers, were written by Arthur C. Dodge of Los Angeles, who was a bugler in the Three Hundred and Sixty-fourth Infantry, Ninety-first Division, during the World War. The regiment lost heavily in the Battle of the Argonne Forest, and the words, inspired by the heroism of the Los Angeles and Southern California men making up the regiment, were written immediately afterward by Mr. Dodge. He is now a senior at the University of Southern California.

SWIFT RIVER CURRENT CAUSE OF SHIP CRASH; RECOVER FIVE BODIES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) May 29.—Collision of the steamers Welsh Prince and Iowan last night in the Columbia River off Altoona, Wash., in which the Welsh Prince was sunk and seven members of her crew lost their lives, was caused by the swift current of the river driving the two big vessels into one another, according to unofficial investigation of the conditions existing at the scene of the crash.

The Welsh Prince, which sank within a few minutes after the bow of the Iowan had torn a huge gap in her forward compartment, was en route from Portland with a cargo of steel and lumber for Japan, while the Iowan was proceeding to this city. The river makes a sharp turn where the crash occurred and the two steamers, it is believed by experienced navigators, were caught in the swift current running there, took a sheer and struck almost bow on.

The sharp prow of the Iowan smashed the starboard bow of the Welsh Prince, cutting a gash in her about five feet deep, killing seven men who were asleep in the starboard forecastle and injuring three others asleep in the port forecastle. The victims of the crash were mangled almost beyond identification. The bodies were so entangled in the mass of twisted steel and iron that today it was necessary to send workmen with acetylene blow-torches to cut away the wreckage before they could be removed.

The heavy cargo of steel, which filled the hold of the Welsh Prince, caused her to sink almost at once.

The injured men say that a donkeyman, seven seamen, twelve firemen and two oilers were in the forecastle of the Welsh Prince at the time of the collision. The twelve firemen and two oilers had bunks on the port side and the donkeyman and seamen were on

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 29.—Passengers on the Munson liner American Legion, which arrived today from South American ports, were still relating with fervor a tale of a thirty-foot man-eating shark rammed by the ship early on May 21, when the vessel was south of the equator.

The boat hit the shark about 2 o'clock, and passengers declared that the shock could be felt throughout the steamer. At daylight the body was seen impaled on the prow. Seamen with hooks and poles failed to dislodge it. It was 10 o'clock in the morning and the dead shark had been impaled eight hours when the captain decided to reverse the engines. Then, with the hep of the high sea running, the body was removed from the ship's prow.

BOTTOMLEY'S SEVEN YEARS

Now Behind Bars in Britain in Case Which Would Take Seven Years Here to Decide

BY HENRY WALES
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, May 29.—Horatio Bottomley, Member of Parliament and publisher of the anti-American weekly, John Bull, was found guilty in Old Bailey Court today of the fraudulent conversion of about $660,000 and was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

The jury deliberated for less than half an hour, reaching its decision on the first ballot without dissenters.

Bottomley announced that he would appeal, but he was denied bail and is being removed immediately to Brixton prison.

After the armistice, Bottomley organized Victory premium bond clubs, selling certificates and promising high rates of interest.

Contending that he never made a penny by the affair, Bottomley explained the mixed up books and misappropriated funds by stating that he had an insufficient clerical and book-keeping staff to keep his accounts in order.

Nearly $4,400,000 passed through Bottomley's hands.

The defendant stood in the prisoners' dock while the judge summed up and enunciated the three points it was necessary to establish if he was found guilty.

At 3 o'clock the jury re-entered the courtroom and passed the slip giving the verdict guilty. Bottomley turned deathly pale as he heard the result.

"The defendant was rightly convicted by the jury for a long series of frauds," said the judge. "The poor people trusted him, but he robbed them. The crime was aggravated by the defendant's high position, the number and quality of his victims and his callous effrontery. I see no mitigation and sentence him to penal servitude for seven years."

When Bottomley was about to be removed by the guards, he asked if he could be freed on bail.

"The question of bail does not arise," replied the court.

The prisoner asked if it was not customary to permit the accused to make a statement before sentence was passed, but the judge replied not in cases of misdemeanor.

"I could say something offensive about you and your summing up," shot back Mr. Bottomley as the guards hurried him out. Then the steel door clanged behind him.

Mr. Bottomley's conviction, which was announced in the House of Commons, did not provoke any comment. John Bull consistently attacked the United States and Americans, before, during and since the war.

Will Unveil Memorial to 'Honest Abe'

Faith is Written in Face of Railsplitter as He Looks Toward Capitol

BY S. FRED HOGUE
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Twenty years of labor to erect in the national capital on the banks of the Potomac a Lincoln memorial have ended with the production of what is perhaps the noblest piece of sculpture and architecture in the two Americas.

Today the last slab of marble was laid on the building by Henry Bacon, New York architect, the last living touch was given to the statue of the Great Emancipator by Daniel Chester French, and the final adjustments were given to the mural decorations by Jules Guerin. The water was turned into the sunken lake that now sleeps between the memorial and Washington's monument. Tonight the great Lincoln sits in state, looking with sightless eyes through the vista of foliage and cherry blossoms past the monument to the cupola of the Capitol.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Tomorrow President Harding will unveil the statue and deliver the dedicatory address. Fully impressed with the solemnity of the occasion, he said today that he considered it the most notable function he has been called upon to perform in his official career.

Critics of note who had seen the temple and statue were eloquent in their praise. It is a memorial that compares favorably with the best that Europe can offer. Washington now takes rank among the great capitals of the world, not only as the seat of the greatest and most powerful free government but for its statues and monuments commemorative of national history.

A. Lincoln has been carved from a block of Vermont marble that ranks with Rodin't "Thinker," and by this sign the name of Henry French has been written high in the list of great sculptors.

It is a Lincoln that the American people will love, for it symbolizes what was noblest and best in the liberator and martyr.

THE REAL LINCOLN

He sits in a massive marble chair on a raised pedestal in the center of the memorial building that itself symbolizes the temple of American liberty. A hand rests on each of the arms of the chair, rough hands with gnarled fingers—the hands of a rail splitter. His feet are crossed in front of him; massive feet clad in boots with great square toes. The dress is negligent, rather than precise. The Prince Albert coat falls in careless folds and the trousers are slightly baggy at the knees, and wrinkled.

In dress and attitude the statue strikes one at first as almost too brutally historic. Only a master sculptor would have dared to carve it so.

But one quickly forgets the negligent garb as his eyes rise to the head, tilted slightly back, and rests on the strong character lines in the lean, homely, but noble face.

When I saw it first I recalled to mind the "Thinker," for one judges masterpieces unconsciously by comparison. But the Lincoln statue possesses something that the Rodin marble lacks.

The "Thinker" leans forward in an attitude of deep thought. He is trying himself to solve the problems of life and is deeply perplexed. The Lincoln of French is more serene. The eyebrows are arched; creasing lines in the forehead. It is more the attitude of

Whole Town is Being Staked as Gold Claim Site

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, May 29.—The gold fever is widespread as a result of discoveries in the western part of South Wales, says a Reuter cable message from Melbourne, Australia, today. The discoveries were reported from Canbelego township near Cobar, and Lucknow township, near Orange.

A portion of the Main street of Cambelego has been pegged out, intense excitement following the finding in a street gutter of a stone showing signs of gold.

In the wild rush for claims, prospectors have staked out several shops, and even the Catholic rectory has been made the site of a claim.

Sun's army is pursuing the enemy, and soon will attack Kanchow. The dispatch says there are great rejoicings in Canton over the victory.

DE LA BARRA FOR PRESIDENT, IS AIM; NEWS IS CENSORED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) May 29.—While little information on the situation on the Mexican border can be learned, due to a strict censorship placed on all news coming out, observers here look for action in the near future in a reported new Mexican revolution.

Added belief is being given to the possibility of trouble because of the Federal government having its attention diverted to the south of the republic by the rebellion in Tabasco and the recent uprising of the Yaqui Indians in Sonora.

Reports reaching here from the border are that Col. Luis Maltos, commander of the Sixty-second Cavalry at Matamoros, across from Brownsville, Tex., until last Wednesday, when he was forced to flee, is heading the revolutionary troops approaching Nuevo Laredo. This force is reported to have entered Mier, a Mexican military station on the Rio Grande further up from Matamoros, last Wednesday and, after sacking the town, left with the garrison on their side. From there, it is said, a telegram was sent warning Nuevo Laredo of the impending attack.

This, coupled with the burning of a bridge near Rodriguez, a few nights ago by a band of rebels under the leadership of Gen. Antonio Maldanado and the sacking of Santa Catarina, a few miles further south, by another rebel band, who remained there five hours, and forced a loan of 5000 pesos, gives rise to the belief here that these bands will get together in an organized attempt to overthrow the Federal authority on the northern border.

The whereabouts of several of the generals living in San Antonio cannot be learned. Federal forces from Mexico City have been dispatched to Tabasco under command of Enrique Estrada, making it impossible for Federal forces to be sent to the north soon. Gen. Angel Flores of the West Coast has his hands full coping with the Yaqui situation. The Yaquis are breaking up into small bands and are roaming the northern part of the State of Sonora.

FOR CIVILIAN OFFICIALS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BROWNSVILLE (Tex.) May 29. The promotion of a civilian, preferably Francisco de la Barra, a former cientifico and member of the late President Diaz Cabinet, to the Presidency of Mexico is the object of the latest revolutionary movement in the southern republic, according to a person whose name cannot be disclosed, who lately was in touch with the alleged leaders in the proposed revolt. De la Barra has been in Paris, France, since the beginning of the revolution against Diaz in 1910.

The plan, as it is said to have been outlined by leaders, also contemplates having no one but civilians as governors of various States of the republic. There also would be a zone system of military administration.

Positive information is that one hardware dealer on this part of the border was recently approached with a proposal to furnish 1000 rifles, 300,000 rounds of ammunition and other munitions, but the deal was not consummated because of lack of money. The prospective purchaser is said to have been one of several against whom indictments in connection with Mexican revolutionary activities were dismissed recently in United States court at San Antonio.

Rail Merger Held Illegal; Espee Loses

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Dissolution of ownership and control of the Central Pacific Railway by the Southern Pacific Company was ordered today by the Supreme Court in an opinion delivered by Justice Day. The decision in the case, which was the last of the railroad merger suits to come before the court, held that the two lines were competitive. Justices McReynolds and Brandeis, because of their official connection prior to going upon the bench, did not participate. Justice McKenna delivered a short dissent.

The court directed that a decree be entered severing the control by the Southern Pacific of the Central Pacific by stock ownership or by lease, but in accomplishing that end, so far as possible, said the mortgage lien on the Union Trust Company of New York should be protected.

COMMON USE OF TERMINALS

The several terminal lines and cut-offs leading to San Francisco Bay which have been constructed or acquired during the unified control of the two systems for convenient access to the bay and to the principal terminal facilities about the bay should be dealt with, the court declared, "either by way of apportionment or by provisions for joint or common use in such manner as will secure to both companies such full, convenient and ready access to the bay and to terminal facilities thereon that each company will be able freely to compete with the other, to serve the public efficiently and to accomplish the purpose of the legislation under which it was constructed."

A like course should be pursing with the lines extending "from ing with th elines extending "from San Francisco Bay to Sacramento and to Portland, Or."

The case has been pending in the courts since Feb. 11, 1914, when the United States asked the United States District Court of Utah to restrain the two railroads, the Union Trust Company of New York and the directors and officials of the Southern Pacific under the Sherman antitrust and the Pacific railroad acts. The United States asserted that the lines of the two railroads constituted competitive systems and asked that the ownership acquired by the Southern Pacific of a controlling interest in the Central Pacific be declared unlawful.

NEW ATTACK ON HAYNES

Maryland Representative Again Demands That Dry Enforcement Chief Be Dismissed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Dismissal of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes on the ground that his official utterances encourage the spread of lynch law and mob rule was demanded again today by Representative Hill, Maryland, in a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. Mr. Hill first asked Haynes's removal on May 15.

"I have received no reply to my communication and am again writing to add a further specification to the above against Commissioner Haynes, and in my capacity as a Representative in Congress, a former United States District Attorney, and an American citizen, to ask for a prompt investigation," Hill wrote.

"Within a few days Baltimore has experienced two prohibition raids in which serious trouble has occurred; in the first, the mob which opposed the prohibition agents contended itself with hooting the agents and throwing missiles; in the second, shooting occurred on both sides and one man, an alleged bootlegger, was shot in the face.

"I charge that such action on the part of certain citizens of Baltimore is entirely due to the utter disregard of law advocated by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes and to my former charge I add the following specifications:

"In Louisville, Ky., on May 11, Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes said: 'Shooting on the public highways is a trivial matter when compared with the vast task of enforcing the national prohibition laws.' These words constitute a definite approval of the shootings which had occurred by prohibition agents on public highways in Kentucky.

"On May 15, I charge that Prohibition Commissioner Haynes was advocating the spread of lynch law by publishing the remarks of a Kansas judge who said to a liquor violator: 'If any more violations are reported in your home, I will order the house burned.' This, taken in connection with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes's approval of the utter disregard of law enforcement in Kentucky, constitutes Prohibition Commissioner Haynes a menace to public good order."

...LL MATHILDE MARRY OSER?

Father's Guardianship May Now be Set Aside

Girl's Mother Dissatisfied With Arrangements

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—With reports from New York alternately stating that Miss Mathilde McCormick was and was not to sail tomorrow for Europe and an early marriage to Max Oser, indications in Chicago today were that Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, and mother of the girl, is planning a hard fight to prevent her daughter's marriage to the middle-aged Swiss horseman.

Mrs. McCormick went Saturday, it was learned late today, into the Probate Court before Judge Henry Horner with a demand that the proceedings through which Harold F. McCormick, father of Miss Mathilde, was appointed her legal guardian, be reopened. Former Judge Charles S. Cutting, counsel for Mrs. McCormick, represented that she had not been legally notified of the proceedings and that, therefore, the appointment of McCormick would not stand.

ILLEGAD NOTICE

As Mrs. McCormick was not served with notice of the guardianship proceedings until Saturday morning, according to Cutting, she did not get the three days' notice of the proceedings as required under the rules of the Probate Court.

Judge Horner, however, stated this was merely a technicality and set Wednesday morning as the time for a hearing in the matter at which both sides may appear in court with arguments. He stated the lack of notice in advance was merely an oversight on the part of Assistant Judge Corkell, who approved the guardianship of McCormick and the attorneys for the millionaire head of the International Harvester Company.

But Judge Cutting expressed the conviction that Mathilde was not the ward of her father by reason of last Friday's proceedings.

NO RECORD ENTERED

"No order or record has been entered in the Probate Court," he said, "and Mr. McCormick is not the legal guardian of Mathilde. When I informed Judge Horner my client had not been given notice, he stopped the order and it never was entered, though the attempt to enter it was made.

"Since Mrs. McCormick was not notified, Mr. Corkell had no power to authorize the order making Harold F. McCormick his daughter's guardian."

Meantime, in New York, Miss Mathilde was either saying farewell to her friend, Miss Julia Mangold, one-time Max Oser's secretary, and close friend, or she was planning to sail with the young Swiss woman on the liner Berengaria today.

One report was that she would sail, inasmuch as her luggage had been removed from the Plaza Hotel to the Cunard pier. On the heels of this report came another to the effect that the baggage might be Miss Mangold's and that Miss McCormick, according to close friends, was to return to Chicago.

ENTER COLBY

It was also remembered that Howard Colby, diplomatic friend of Harold McCormick and his daughter, upon leaving for Kansas City for a visit with friends, recently said:

"I am going to Kansas City for about two weeks. Then I'm going to come back and go with Mr. McCormick and Mathilde to London for a while."

These plans, it was pointed out, must now have been canceled since McCormick apparently shows no desire to go to Europe.

Miss Mathilde has steadfastly denied herself to callers since her arrival in New York with Miss Mangold last Sunday. Asked by a correspondent there during the afternoon what her plans were, she simply laughed a rippling laugh, and in her quaint half-German, half-French accent replied:

"I really do not think the public is interested in what I do."

Should Miss Mathilde sail on the Berengaria her friends say it will be an indication that she intends to marry her Alpine swain, despite all regulations, guardianships and consents. Should she remain and let Miss Mangold sail alone, it will mean to many of her friends that the engagement may be off.

And since Mathilde at a late hour tonight had not gone aboard the liner, her friends admitted that the best one could do was "to guess."

Hats off!

MEXICO FACES FRESH REVOLT

dero of Mexico, tonight declared that Felix Diaz had timed his revolt in that country to synchronize with the arrival here of Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican Minister of Finance.

Gen. Del Valle declared that Diaz seeks to thwart the success of financial negotiations in connection with the Minister's visit by "creating an atmosphere which will cost him the confidence of American bankers."

Gen. Del Valle alluded to what he described "as very attractive propositions" a Diaz general made to him to enlist his support. He declared he had scorned the proposals and had notified President Obregon, at the same time offering his services in the field against "the agitator of the old regime."

He quoted from his own letter to President Obregon, written at the time he say he refused the alleged Diaz proposal, to the effect that a representative of Diaz "stated that Felix Diaz was in Washington to meet some prominent people connected with the United States government, through whom he expected to secure the moral support of the government and aid in the financing of his revolt."

swered that an invasion would be a catastrophe to everyone except big business such as Stinnes, who might make more money under foreign army occupation.

Stinnes arose to put the Cabinet Minister in his place. Schmidt replied that he was not Stinnes's office boy. The Stinnes party leader asked withdrawal of the unparliamentary remark.

Dittman, an Independent Socialist, charged that a French army in the Rhur would behave as well as the Germans in Belgium. To this Helferich, leader of the Pan-Germans, yelled, "You are supporting the French." This brought in Breitscheid, an Independent Socialist leader, who shouted, "You weren't in the trenches, you slacker."

Helfferich pushed over, shouting, "I'll punch your jaw." Herr Breitscheid waved him aside contemptuously. "Consider your face slapped," retorted Helfferich. It took five neutrals to separate these party leaders.

RUSSIAN BREAD LOAN LAUNCHED BY REDS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

MOSCOW, May 29. — The internal "bread loan" the soviet government's first security venture, has been launched with a value of 10,000,000 poods of rye. (A pood is about thirty-six pounds.)

Subscriptions are acceptable in currency at a fixed rate of 4,000,000 rubles per pood, and as the loan is issued at 95, it equals 38,000,000,000,000 rubles. It is redeemable at par in December and January, payment to be in grain.

By this means the government expects to obtain funds for the summer emergencies, and at the same time withdraw a large proportion of the currency from circulation at the time of the harvest.

JAPS SHIP COLONISTS TO SANTOS, BRAZIL

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

YOKOHAMA, May 1 (Delayed.) The steamer Seattle Maru will sail in the near future for Santos, Brazil, with 1500 Japanese immigrants, according to an announcement by the Foreign Office.

The government recently investigated immigration conditions in Brazil, and later announced a policy of colonization there, preferring to send immigrants to that country rather than to North America, where, the government said, they were less welcome.

ESPEE COMBINE HELD UNLAWFUL

Southern Pacific Ordered to Sell Central

Supreme Court Rules on Last "Trust" Case

Many Important Changes to Affect State

Day leading up to what he termed "the outstanding facts" of the physical operation of the two railroads.

"The Central Pacific with its eastern connection at Ogden forms one great system of transportation between the East and the West," the opinion stated, "and the Southern Pacific with its roads and connections and steamship lines forms another great transcontinental system for transportation from coast to coast. The Central Pacific constitutes some 800 miles of transcontinental line. The Southern Pacific system had practically its own line of railroads and steamship connections to New York via Galveston and New Orleans."

CONTROL NOT JUSTIFIED

The acquisition of the Central Pacific stock by the Southern Pacific was held to be unlawful under the opinion of the court in the Union Pacific case, "unless justified by the special circumstances relied upon" for that purpose, but the court, after analyzing the special circumstances, discarded them as not justifying the control. The present case did not differ from the Union Pacific case at all in principle, Justice Day asserted, the only difference being that in the Central Pacific, the Southern Pacific acquired a competitive system of 800 miles in length, whereas in the Union Pacific the competitive system absorbed was 100 miles in length.

"These two great systems are normally competitive for the carrying trade in some parts from the East and Middle West to the Coast," Justice Day said, and in greater volume for the traffic moving to and from Central and Northern California, including a great volume of ocean-borne traffic which lands on the Coast, destined across the continent to the Atlantic seaboard and intermediate western and eastern points, or is destined from the latter points to foreign points via San Francisco or other Pacific Coast points."

REVIEWS DECISIONS

Reviewing previous railroad merger decisions, Justice Day asserted the court "had collectively established" in these that "one system of railroad transportation cannot acquire another, nor substantial and vital part thereof, when the effect of such acquisition is to interrupt or materially reduce the free and normal flow of competition in the channels of interstate trade."

Ample proof had been furnished, he added, to show that it had been the policy of the Southern Pacific to favor transportation on its line by "securing for itself, whenever practicable, the carriage of freight which would normally move eastward or westward over the shorter line of the Central Pacific and its connections, for its own much longer and wholly owned southern route."

Pointing out that the Southern Pacific receives 100 per cent of the compensation of freight transported over the southerly route, while it receives but a fraction of the rate on freight carried by the Central Pacific, he declared, that "self-interest dictates the solicitation and procurement of freight for the longer haul by the Southern Pacific line."

The court declared the roads were always separate and distinct corporations; they were so recognized in the acts of Congress making land grants to them and otherwise conferring rights on them which only Congress should confer.

"For a good part of the time," it added, "the roads had boards of directors not consisting of the same persons. At times the majority of the stock was separately held."

THEORY IS REJECTED

The court refused to accept the theory of prior practical consolidation as a justification for a violation of the Sherman Act. The bearing of the ninety-nine-year lease of the Central Pacific made in 1885 was reviewed, the court reaching the conclusion that it could not have been legally made without authorization by Federal legislation, which was never given.

"Congress has the authority to regulate interstate commerce," Justice Day said, "and under its legislation conduct becomes illegal which has the effect of contracts, conspiracies or combinations to restrain the freedom of interstate trade or to monopolize the same in whole or in part."

"We find nothing in these leases to the Southern Pacific Company," the justice said, "which justifies the continued control of the Central Pacific by the Southern Pacific after the Sherman Act became effective."

The court did not consider it necessary, it stated, to pass upon the government's contention that the control of the Central Pacific by the Southern Pacific was in violation of the Pacific Railroad Act of 1862.

Surprised at the Supreme Court decision in Washington yesterday in which the Southern Pacific Company's ownership of the Central Pacific Railway was declared unlawful, local officials of the Southern Pacific last night declined to discuss the probable effects of the decision.

President Sproule declared he could make no comment until he had studied a complete copy of the Supreme Court's action. Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of trustees, has been giving his personal direction to the situation, Mr. Sproule said, and a official statement of the company's plans may come from him. Late in the day he left the city, apparently for a conference with other officials of the railroad.

TRACKS AFFECTED

The tremendous importance of the decision is seen by the following list of stretches of track of the Central Pacific it lifts bodily from the Southern Pacific:

Main line from Sacramento to Ogden.

CUTS MAIN LINE

The effect of this would be that the Central Pacific line from Oakland, San Jose and Sacramento to Goshen Junction below Fresno would be no longer a part of the main line between San Francisco and Los Angeles and would not be available for a route for through trains, freight or passenger.

Although owned entirely by the Southern Pacific, with the exception of a few miles north of Klamath Falls, the Oregon line would be separated from the remainder of the Southern Pacific system by the mountain section of the Central Pacific between the State line and Tehama.

The direct line to Sacramento and the lines on the west side of the Sacramento Valley and the Placerville branch would have no direct connection with the Southern Pacific system in the San Joaquin Valley.

The Placerville, Ione, Valley Spring, Raymond and Oakdale branches of the Southern Pacific would all be separated from the rest of the system.

The Mojave-Owenyo line of the Central Pacific would be practically cut off from the remainder of the system, since it has only a narrow-gauge connection northward to Tonopah Junction.

IN MEMORY OF EMANCIPATOR

He is looking toward the monument of Washington, and in contemplation upon the cupola of the Capitol beyond and the great invisible body of the American people. Faith is written in the contemplation upon the cupola of the egotistic faith in himself, but in the people he represents, and in their God.

There is something in that face which will arrest the persiflage of skeptical critics like Bernard Shaw and the French and German materialists. Standing in that presence none will care to jest. None will need to apologize for either the artist or the sculptor. For America now has a masterpiece that Athens in its palmiest days could not have far surpassed.

GREEK AND IONIC

The memorial itself is a vast marble pile of a mixed Greek and Ionic style, about 500 feet in circumference, with columns nearly 100 feet high. It is rectangular in shape. The statue occupies the whole of the central part. On the walls are carved Lincoln's Gettysburg address and his second inaugural.

Forming to massive panels on the north and south walls above the addresses are two great mural canvases by Jules Guernin, well known to the people of the west coast as the mural decorator of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He worked for three years on these two panels, the most ambitious of the kind he has ever attempted.

They are painted subdued colors, and recalled to my mind faded tapestries. The scenes are allegorical. Each canvas is sixty feet in length and twelve feet in depth. They bring to mind the grandiose works of Raphael and Michelangelo. And, following the example of the early Italian and Flemish painters, Mr. Guernin painted his own likeness for one of the accessory figures.

While it was his right, I personally wish he had not done so, for it suggests to me a touch of vanity that is out of place in so noble a conception. Perhaps he cared more that his own portrait should go down to posterity in such company than for the remarks that the present generation might make about it.

WHAT IS TYPIFIED

As explained by the artist himself, the figures on the south panel typified the emancipation of a race, with subordinate groups representing civilization and progress. The central group typifies "Freedom and Liberty." One group represents justice and law. Another symbolizes immortality.

All the groups are allegorical and some must be explained in order that the spectator can understand them. They are the best work of one who is perhaps America's best mural painter, and they will bear comparison with the masterpieces of the Renaissance.

In the Lincoln memorial American art has found itself. While the envious may criticise, those who are mentally honest will not hesitate to commend.

There is now something for both the patriot and the art lover to see when he makes a pilgrimage to the nation's capital.

TERRORISM IN CHICAGO FADES

"Big Tim" Murphy, Mader Throw Up Sponge

Union Labor Chiefs Bow to Outside Demands

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Crushed by the weight of public opinion, assailed on all sides by an intensive police campaign on union-labor terrorists and facing revolt from within its ranks, Chicago's building trades unions have surrendered.

Through a new spokesman, Tom Carey, former Democratic politician and now a millionaire brick manufacturer, they announce they wish to rid the organization of "czars," to abide by law and order, and to develop honest co-operation between capital and labor.

The first step along these lines was taken today when, with a deputy sheriff standing a few feet away, ready to take them back to the County Jail if they refused, "Big Tim" Murphy and Fred (Frenchy) Mader, agreed to sever their connections with the Building Trades Council.

When these men were released from jail Saturday they promised Carey, who signed their bonds, they would quit their positions as labor union officials. Since that time Mader has shown signs of backsliding on his promise to resign as president of the organization.

MADER HESITATES

At a meeting today held in Carey's office the issue was put squarely up to Mader. A deputy sheriff stood at his side, prepared to take him in custody should Carey withdraw his name as surety, which the latter said he would do unless Mader would promise to carry out his agreement. With jail as the alternative Mader chose to quit.

Murphy was quite tractable and made no objection to resigning as head of the gas workers' union. Several times during the conference he urged Mader to "do the right thing" and keep his promise to Carey.

Mader's resignation will not be offered immediately, it was announced, but will come following an investigation of the building industry which is planned by Mr. Carey. This investigation will be undertaken by a committee of prominent citizens, according to Mr. Carey, whose only object will be to find out where the blame rests and what the cure is.

BELIEVES IN ACCUSED

"At the outset," said Mr. Carey, "I want to say this to the people of Chicago; if I were of the opinion that either of the two men whose bond I signed had any connection, either directly or indirectly, with the murder of the two policemen who were shot, or with the bombing of any buildings, or with the slugging of men going to or from their work, nothing could induce me to give security for their appearance in court.

"This is not a matter of friendship. This is a matter that concerns the entire citizenship of Chicago. I want the press and public to withhold judgment until such time as I am able to make further investigation. I intend inviting representatives of the business industries, union labor and civic organizations to sit with me and go into this condition with a view to developing honest co-operation between capital and labor.

"I am a strong believer in law and order, and law and order must prevail. I will do everything in my power to see that it is observed.

"With that end in view, and for the benefit of people who are erecting buildings and those who have their money invested, for the general contractors of the city and for the entire citizenship of Chicago, I am going to ask a group of business men and representatives of union and civic organizations to sit with me and see who is really to blame for present conditions in the building industry.

"Everybody knows that for sixteen months building operations have been going on under a serious handicap, both from a financial and a business standpoint. I feel that if such a committee were called together not only would peace be brought in the building industry, but men who are now antagonistic and quarreling at the expense of those who are desiring to erect buildings, or those who have their money invested, will be benefited a hundredfold."

FLOOD PROTESTS

The only other person present at the conference was Emmet Flood, organizer for the American Federation of Labor. Flood objected to Mader quitting his post as head of the Building Trades Council. He said Mader should not sell himself for his liberty by renouncing his job.

"I would rather see Mader in jail," he said, "than have him released on bonds under the condition of deserting the job."

It is recalled that Flood was very active in bringing to this city Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, who, in a speech, declared that the federation was solidly back of the union labor leaders of Chicago in any action they might take. Almost immediately there followed a series of murders and bombings.

Jarvis Blake, donkeyman, 37 Frances street, Shields, Eng.; G. M. Jensen, able seaman, Renders, Denmark; Joel Buckwalter, able seaman, 724 North Pine street, Portland, Or.; William Sharkey, able seaman, 310½ Fir street, Portland; J. C. Clare, able seaman, 3 Railway street, Blaydon-on-Tyne, Eng.; H. Ward, able seaman, 37 Foxloote Road, Bristol, Eng., and Knute Yaeger, able seaman, 310½ Fir street, Portland, Or.

The bodies of five of the victims were recovered today and taken to Astoria, but those of Jensen and Buckwalter were still held beneath the wreckage.

PRISONER IN BUNK

The injured men, Lawrence Welch, P. K. Holm and James Morgan, all firemen, were taken to an Astoria hospital. None of them was dangerously hurt. Holm, whose home is in Rotterdam, Holland, was, like his companions, asleep when the crash came. Dazed, he awoke to find himself practically a prisoner in his bunk, heavy timbers and metal fittings of the craft which had been crushed in like an eggshell, strewing his sleeping quarters, almost sealing him in his bunk. He was compelled to make his escape from the forecastle through an opening made when a large ventilator was torn away. Holm's injuries consisted of a lacerated scalp, a bruised right hand and left thigh, and a cut on the right knee.

Lawrence Welch told a story similar to that of Holm. He was awakened by the crash of splintering timbers, and hastily throwing on a few clothes, called to James Morgan, another fireman, and the two men made their escape from the forecastle through the ragged opening made in the Welsh Prince by the bow of the Iowan. Welch's home is Cleveland, O. He was severely cut and bruised.

James Morgan resides at 92 Boundary street, Liverpool. He sustained a lacerated scalp, minor cuts and a bruised right shoulder.

SINKS TO BOTTOM.

The Welsh Prince went down by the head, and lies on the bottom of the river in about thirty feet of water. Following the collision a fire started in the forecastle, and some of the bodies of the victims were partially burned. The Iowan stood by all night, and by keeping a stream of water playing on the vessel held the flames under control.

The bow of the Iowan also was damaged, and was leaking in the forepeak, but she was able to proceed to Portland under her own power.

BLOCKS NAVIGATION

The Welsh Prince lies almost directly crosswise the narrow ships' channel, with her bow toward the Oregon shore, and as a result navigation will be materially interfered with, especially at night. Her No. 1 and 2 holds are filled with water, but at low tide her deck is above water. She carries 3600 tons of steel and 2,000,000 feet of lumber, and it is expected that a great portion of her cargo will have to be removed before she can raised.

James Yates, Lloyds' surveyor, and Capt. W. C. McNaught, representing the San Francisco Board of Marine Underwriters, are to make a survey of the craft, and what will be done toward salvaging the vessel will depend largely upon their report.

With the exception of two men who are to stand by the steamer as watchmen, all the members of the crew were taken to Astoria this evening.

The Welsh Prince is owned by the Rio Cape Line, and her home port is Newcastle-on-Tyne. She is a vessel of 5120 tons gross, was built in 1912, and is commanded by Capt. H. H. Fill. She was formerly the Glen Line steamer, Glensepean. The Welsh Prince was under the charge of Capt. Sullivan, a veteran river pilot, but neither he nor Capt. Hill would make a statement for publication, simply saying the whole matter would come out at the official investigation.

Germans Fail to Get Trade of Americans

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIGA, May 29.—Throughout the winter of 1917 a German sat in an office in the center of Riga. From time to time he stuck vari-colored pins in new positions upon a large wall map of Russia and the Baltic provinces. The pins represented outposts of the German army's advance upon Russia.

Today, in that same office, sits another German sticking pins into a map of Russia and the Baltic states. The pins represent agencies for an agricultural machinery manufacturing corporation, subsidiary of the Kruppa, which is invading Russia via the Baltic route. The Kruppa and the Stinnes interests have headquarters here. Germany is out to capture one of America's great prewar markets, the agricultural machinery trade of Russia.

She has built her machinery in copy of the American products, and with cheap labor is turning goods out at a price far below American quotations. The policy of undercutting American products is not succeeding. The American machinery, while higher in price, is simpler, stronger and better made. Last fall's harvests proved that the German products could not stand heavy work. One hundred thousand dollars' worth of American farm machinery has been sold here this season.

Hilo Volcanoes Are Stirred by Crater Break

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HILO (T. H.) May 29.—A volcanic outbreak occurred today at a new point in an old crater half way between the great volcano of Kilauea and the seaside village of Kalapana, lava overflowing in the direction of the village.

The outbreak was followed by a rapid lowering of the lava level in the old pit from within fifty feet of the rim to a distance of 700 feet below it, accompanied by crashes of falling crags from the inner walls of the pit.

Halemaumau, the great central fire caldron in the Kilauea crater, apparently stirred by the same phenonemon, raised its lava level until its surface was twice its normal area. The Makaopuhi crater, seven miles from Kilauea, is burning the shrubbery and trees that have grown for years on its inner walls.

White Collar Jobs Now Go Begging

Higher Salaries Also Are Being Paid

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Ten years ago, there were five office jobs open to men for one position for women. Today it is the other way—and employers cannot obtain enough women to fill vacancies. Such is the opinion of H. B. Smith San Francisco, one of the directors of the national employment board, an organization of heads of employment agencies filling white-collar office men's and women's jobs. The board opened its annual convention here today.

"There exists today a shortage of men and women to fill the white-collar jobs, despite statements to the contrary," said Mr. Smith. "Their salaries have not decreased as fast as have those of men and women in other lines of work; they advanced to a higher degree than did most other classes of work.

SALARIES INCREASED

"This shows a shortage," Mr. Smith added, "and that shortage is found further in the applications reaching our offices all over the country From January, 1917, to October, 1920, salaries of this class of employees increased 103 per cent. Since October, 1920, men's pay has decreased 20 per cent and now the fall has been stopped altogether. There is even an indication of an increase soon to come because of the shortage. The pay of women in these jobs has decreased less than 17 per cent.

SHY OF STENOGRAPHERS

"The most difficult class of employees now to secure is women stenographers. There are plenty of male stenographers but they advance quickly into better jobs, while the girls get married or give up stenography for other work. The average office life of a woman stenographer is three years."

More than 2,000,000 prospective employees have been interviewed by the members of the national board, according to H. M. Pollard, of St. Louis, national president. In the same offices, he said, requests were received for more than 1,000,000 employees—not laborers, but office men and women, executives, salesmen, engineers, etc.

FATAL DELAY IN SERVING COMMITMENT PAPERS CAUSES TRAGEDY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Mrs. Alice Kelleher, mother of seven children, was shot to death today by her husband, William, for whom commitment papers to the psychopathic hospital had been obtained, but a fatal delay was made in not having him taken into custody. The cause of the shooting is unknown, but it believed Kelleher killed his wife in a fit of insanity without provocation.

Kelleher's habitual drunkenness, combined with his queer actions of late, led the family to believe it would be safer if Kelleher were locked up and placed under observation. On his next offense after getting the papers, Mrs. Kelleher planned to call the police and have Kelleher taken into custody. They waited too long. He was slightly intoxicated today.

El Concilio del Bienestar Católico Nacional ha hablado contra los recientes asesinatos de Chicago y contra la conservación en sus puestos de empleados de las uniones obreras con reputación de criminales, que no pueden menos de desprestigiar la causa de la gente de trabajo.

De la Huerta Rumbo al Norte

CHICAGO, mayo 29.—Adolfo de la Huerta, Ministro mexicano de Hacienda, y sus acompañantes, pasaron por aquí con rumbo a Nueva York, donde se espera arreglen un empréstito para la rehabilitación de los Ferrocarriles Nacionales de México. Harding Pasa Revista a los Guardiamarinas

ANNAPOLIS, mayo 29.—Los centenares que asistieron a los ejercicios de recepción que tuvieron lugar hoy en la Escuela Naval de los Estados Unidos, fueron gratamente sorprendidos cuando el yate Mayflower, en que el Presidente Harding, su señora, y un grupo de amigos salieron el sábado de Washington para cruzar en la Bahía Chesapeake, ancló aquí. Después de almorzar con el Almirante Wilson, superintendente de la Academia, el Presidente pasó revista a los guardiamarinas, y presenció el juego anual de baseball entre Annapolis y West Point.

El Sr. Harding se fué más tarde a bordo del Mayflower, y partió rumbo a Washington, donde es esperado mañana temprano.

Ayer tarde comenzó la tormenta que ha estado amenazando desde hace mucho en el Ayuntamiento, entre los miembros del Consejo de Servicios Públicos, cuando el Comisionado Kennedy se rehusó a actuar en calidad de tal, porque el Comisionado Leeds había faltado al mitin bisemanal.

El Presidente King y el Comisionado Kennedy se hallaban presentes cuando tomó su asiento el Secretario Payne; pero, estando ausente el Comisionado Leeds, Kennedy manifestó que se rehusaba a celebrar el mitin hasta que todos estuvieren presentes. A las personas que estaban esperando para comparecer ante el Consejo, se les informó que se había diferido la reunión hasta el próximo martes.

Se Abre el Cuartel General de los Rotarios

William A. Graham, Jr., de Chicago, Secretario de la convención de los Rotarios, es hoy uno de los hombres más ocupados de la ciudad, pues está dirigiendo la construcción de una planta con partes separables, de la que cualquiera sección pueda armarse en unas horas en cualquier lugar, y considerarse como la estación de fuerza del Club Rotario.

El Sr. Graham ha estado aquí desde enero 1 con un hábil cuerpo de ayudantes, teniendo por cuartel general el Hotel Hayward. Con Thomson Dille de Los Angeles, a su lado, organizó aquí la oficina de hoteles del Rotario. Esta oficina celebró contratos con todos los hoteles de Los Angeles y Pasadena para alojar a los Rotarios que vienen a la convención.

Después de una oficina análoga de la Asociación Educativa Nacional, este departamento de hoteles de la Convención Rotaria es quizá el mayor de su clase en el país. Antes del 1 de marzo próximo pasado, el Secretario Graham tenía ya contratados todos los cuartos de hotel en Los Angeles. En total, se reservaron como 4000 cuartos.

El Secretario General Perry llegará aquí el sábado, y desde este lugar presidirá a las labores del cuartel general de Rotarios, de la misma manera que se hace en Chicago.

ALIENS LOSE RIGHTS IN FISHERIES CASE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Aliens enjoying fishing rights in the Columbia River prior to 1919 claimed under the provision of the compact between Oregon and Washington are not exempt from the law enacted by Oregon in 1919, providing that only citizens should be issued license to fish for salmon with fixed appliances, it was held today by the Supreme Court. The statute previously had been sustained by the United States District Court for Oregon and the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

HUNGARIAN MONARCHY PARTY BADLY BEATEN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BUDAPEST, May 29. — First returns from the Hungarian Parliamentary elections indicate an overwhelming victory for the government. The Carlist right wing, or monarchy party, is regarded as crushed, and it seems probable that the Social Democrats will make a great gain.

The election of seventy-four government and six opposition candidates is assured so far.

BOBBIES ARE FORCED TO USE THEIR CLUBS

DAUGHERTY IS PLOT VICTIM

Democrats Trying to Start Wordy Smoke Screen

Would Discredit Attorney-General to Save Skins

McAdoo Mentioned in Morse Case Discussions

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Democrats as well as Republicans in the Senate are now questioning the unusual and persistent activity of Senators Watson of Georgia and Caraway of Arkansas in attempting to divert attention from the tariff to the activities of the present Attorney-General in aiding Charles W. Morse to secure release from prison eleven years ago.

Senators of both parties have been convinced that this activity is not partisan but factional, and apparently for the protection of political reputations which are closely involved in Morse's activities within the last three or four years.

UNDERWOOD SILENT

They point out that minority leader Underwood has taken no part in this discussion, and that John Sharp Williams, who always delights to make campaign matters against Republicans, is silent, as also is Senator Pat Harrison, who is always eager for a partisan fight.

These observers point out that all of the dust raised is apparently for the purpose of fixing in the public mind that the man now responsible for the prosecution of war-fraud violations more than a decade ago as an attorney in private practice was counsel for Morse. They are not unmindful of the fact that a number of prominent Democrats prominently identified with the previous administration will be asked about their connections with Morse and others in government transactions at a much later date than the time that Atty.-Gen. Daugherty had dealings with Morse as his client.

McADOO INVOLVED

Before the pending cases in the Department of Justice are cleaned up, it seems certain that William G. McAdoo of Los Angeles, former Secretary of the Treasury, will be given an opportunity to explain his engagement by the Morse interests as their counsel subsequent to his resignation in 1919. Senators on both sides will be anxious to scrutinize the details of how McAdoo as counsel for the Morse interests succeeded in getting the Shipping Board to reverse its position and advance millions to the Morse interests after it had previously refused to make the advances requested.

Some of the transactions will give opportunity for other Democratic leaders to express in detail their connection with transactions that will come under the investigators of the Department of Justice, and these conditions apparently indicate that the present dust storm in the Senate is for a smoke screen, and for no other purpose.

DEMOCRATS EMBARRASSED

The Democrats are further embarrassed by the action of Watson and Caraway because many of the Democratic leaders were petitioners for the pardon of Morse, and their records to that effect are on file. It is stated that Cordell Hull, then in Congress, and now chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was one of those who urged executive clemency for Morse.

It is evident that the actions of Watson and Caraway are not accomplishing their purpose, but rather making it evident that the daily Daugherty attack is not a Democratic fight, but the action of a few in the hopes that limelight of inquiry may be diverted from more recent affairs in which Democratic leaders were involved to a greater or less extent.

STATE COMMISSION IS UPHELD BY COURT

BODY GIVEN JURISDICTION OVER RAIL WORKERS IN CALIFORNIA

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—The State Industrial Accident Commission and not the United States shall have complete jurisdiction over railroad shop workers within the State in the matetr of accident compensation, according to a decision today of the United States Supreme Court, allowing a damage claim against the United States Railroad Administration, the commission was advised.

The claim was that of O. J. Burton, an employee of the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad Company, who suffered an eye injury while working for the line in 1918. The State commission awarded him compensation of $1300 against the railroad administration, and the award was appealed.

The commission was given to understand that the return of the railroads to private ownership did not change the status of its jurisdiction.

GIANT OF THE RAILS TO SCALE TEHACHAPI

SOUTHERN PACIFIC ORDERS FIFTY "2-10-2" LOCOMOTIVES FOR FREIGHT SERVICE

The Southern Pacific Railway, according to an announcement yesterday, will use the new giant "2-10-2" locomotives for freight service on heavy grades over the Tehachapi and Siskiyou mountains. The company has ordered fifty of this type of locomotives, twenty of which, as announced last week in news dispatches, already have started west from Philadelphia.

"The '2-10-2' locomotives are the last word in locomotive design and are equipped with feed, water heaters and 'boosters' to aid in starting the trains, as well as all other approved modern devices for reducing fuel consumption and increasing power output," said a bulletin made public yesterday by General Passenger Agent McGinnis.

"They are the most powerful locomotives of this type yet built. The present order of the company is the largest order for locomotives equipped with feed water heaters and boosters placed by any of the railroads. The giant of the rails is called '2-10-2' because of the number of wheels, there being ten drive wheels under the central part of the engine, two smaller wheels under the forward part and two at the rear."

SUSPECT AGED MAN WAS BEATEN, ROBBED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MISHAWAKA (Ind.) May 29.—Developments in the case of John Long, aged 82, of St. Cloud, Fla., en route to this city, his old home, who was found Friday morning alongside of the Baltimore and Ohio tracks, at Deshler, O., near Lima, with a fractured skull, lead to the belief that he was robbed of $520 and was thrown from a rapidly moving passenger train by a trainman, according to a telegram received from a hospital today. Long's death is momentarily expected. In his mutterings Long said he had been framed, robbed and thrown from the train by a trainman. An investigation is being made, and an arrest of a Baltimore and Ohio trainman is expected any time.

POISON PEN NOTE AUTHOR ARRAIGNED

YOUTH'S BONDS SET AT $25,000 BY CHICAGO JUDGE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Eugene Bryant, confessed author of the "poison pen" letters received by Mrs. A. H. Shotwell, was given a hearing today, and waived examination. His bonds were set at $25,000.

A. H. Shotwell, who was present at the hearing, said he believed Bryant was a dangerous man to be at liberty and he and Mrs. Shotwell insist they be protected from any more annoyance through his activities.

VICTIM OF AMNESIA, IS BELIEF OF WIFE

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—Arthur E. Young, banker of Dubois, Idaho, who disappeared Saturday morning, registered a few hours later at a hotel in the downtown section of the city, but did not occupy his room, the police announced today. Mrs. Young and the two babies of the couple are at the home of her mother, Mrs. M. De Keyser, here.

The police are entertaining the theory of Mrs. Young that Young may be a victim of amnesia. According to her statement he had but a small amount of money when he disappeared.

BONUS BILL TO BE APPROVED

Senate Finance Committee in Agreement

Will Follow Closely Lines of House Measure

Land Reclamation Still is in Doubt

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Approval by the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday of a soldiers' bonus bill, following closely along the lines of the House measure with its bank-loan provision, was predicted today by members of that committee, Republicans and Democrats, after the subject had been discussed for nearly two hours.

An informal canvass of the committee today indicated that the members were divided, 9 to 6, for the House measure with some modifications—the so-called McCumber plan. Five members, all Republicans, were reported to favor the Smoot proposition of paid-up life insurance for the veterans in lieu of all other forms of compensation, while one committeeman, Senator Williams, Democrat, Mississippi, was understood to be opposed to any bonus legislation.

WILL PRESS ACTION

Whether a land reclamation provision is to be instituted in the McCumber plan is an open question and consequently it may be some time before a bonus bill is reported in the Senate. Chairman McCumber is anxious, however, that the bill be reported out in the immediate future and he expects to press for action as speedily as is possible.

After reaching the Senate, the bill, in the usual course, would go to the Senate calendar to remain until called up by Senator McCumber. There is a difference of opinion among Republican leaders as to whether the bonus should displace the tariff bill at any time soon, so the time at which the Senate will get into the bonus fight is indefinite.

Senator McCumber is of the opinion that the Senate can dispose of the measure with a few days of consideration, but this view is not shared by all leaders.

Opponents of a bonus in any form as well as opponents of the amended House bill are prepared for a long discussion of the question.

PLANS OUTLINED

Both the McCumber and Smoot plans have been outlined in some detail to President Harding, with a view of obtaining an expression of opinion from him, but the committee went ahead today with their consideration without having received any word from the executive. Proponents of the McCumber proposition believe that he will approve that form of bonus passed by Congress, but publicly at least, the President has given no indication of a change of mind since he told the House Ways and Means Committee to finance the bonus with a sales tax or postpone enactment of the legislation.

Aside from a provision to pay cash to veterans whose compensation would not exceed $50, the McCumber plan would provide for adjusted service certificates on which banks would be authorized to loan funds during the first three years, and the Treasury thereafter, during the twenty years of the life of the certificates.

The certificates would have a face value equal to about three times the amount of veterans' adjusted service credit at the rate of $1 a day for domestic service, and $1.25 a day for foreign service, and the total would be payable at the end of twenty years or sooner upon the death of the holder. There also would be provisions for vocational training and home and farm aid. These and the cash and certificates feature are almost identical with those in the House bill, but the land settlement or reclamation feacure in the House measure has been eliminated. There is a movement in both the Senate and House to have some kind of a reclamation provision put back into the bill, and a special subcommittee of Republican members of the Finance Committee opened the hearings today on that question.

MONDELL'S IDEA

Representative Mondell, Wyoming, the Republican House leader, urged that some sort of reclamation legislation be incorporated, while Representative White, of Kansas, a member of the House Public Lands Committee, opposed such a step. Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, one of the authors of the Smith-McNary reclamation measure, told the subcommittee that if it should be decided to restore the reclamation feature he desired to be heard as to the form the legislation should take.

EASTERN ROADS TAKE FREIGHT RATE CUTS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 29—The 10 per cent reduction in freight rates ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, effective July 1, will be accepted by the thirty-seven railroads of the eastern division it was decided at a special meeting of officials of these roads today.

It also was decided to enter a formal protest against the findings of the commission that on and after March 1, 1923, the fair return on railroad investments, as provided by the Transportation Act, shall be 5 3-4 per cent. There was no consideration of wages or passenger rates.

L. F. Loree, chairman of the astern Presidents' conference, said tonight the conference felt the roads had no other alternative except to put the rates into effect without a formal order. Regarding the matter of a fair return, he said the conference believed this return is lower than is required by law and will not enable the railroads to finance themselves to the extent that they should be able to do in order to render adequate service to the public.

While no official action was taken, the personal sentiment of many of the executives represented at today's meeting was decidedly strong for additional wage reductions, it was announced. As expressed by one official, the roads confidently expect that the rest of the 1920 increase will be wiped out, to offset the $400,000,000 reduction in freight rates.

He was barred for perjury when under oath. During his examination by immigration authorities he stated that two brothers were in Japan, when as shown by official records, they had been admitted to the United States.

The big increase in fruit shipments the distributors declared, would be in grapes. Shipments of pears and plums are expected to run closely to the quantity shipped last year, peach shipments probably will be heavier, and the cherry shipments probably will be lighter, the distributors predicted.

WARD VICTIM IN PREVIOUS PLOT

Details of Scheme Bared in New York

Mysterious Charley Ross Fails to Surrender

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, May 29. — Surrender of Charley Ross and the mysterious "Jack," wanted in connection with the Walter S. Ward blackmailing plot, was expected late today, but failed to materialize.

Attorney W. J. Fallon had promised to produce them for questioning by Dist.-Atty. Weeks of Westchester county, but instead informed Mr. Weeks that Charley and Jack were in Boston and would have to be interviewed there. Weeks agreed to send a representative to Boston tomorrow.

It developed today that Ward has been a victim of other blackmail plots. While acting as secretary for the Brooklyn Federal League Baseball Club in 1915 and traveling with the team, Ward is said to have set a fast pace in the cities he visited. Shortly after he was made secretary of the club he was made defendant in a $10,000 damage suit in Pittsburg. His case was handled by Dist.-Atty. R. H. Jackson, who at that time was also counsel for the Pittsburg Federal League club. Later he was disbarred from practice here. The court records of the case are missing from the files.

LURED BY BLACKMAILERS

Details of the Pittsburg plot, which was hatched and carried out in 1915, as revealed today, disclose how the Pittsburg blackmailers lured Ward into their hands and finally had him in such an embarrassing position that he was ready to pay the $10,000 they demanded, until his Pittsburg friend stepped in and fixed things up.

The young woman who brought suit against Ward is the daughter of a former prominent major-league baseball player and at that time was known as a strikingly beautiful brunette. The young woman made the acquaintance of Ward when the Brooklyn team visited Pittsburg on its first swing around the circle in May, 1915. The team arrived in Pittsburg, May 24, and that night the girl was introduced to Ward.

Ward, known as a generous spender, was "the life of the party" at all times, and was frequently sought after by women of the type of the girl in question. This girl, it is declared, lived with Ward at a local hotel while the Brooklyn team was in Pittsburg, and was seen in his company constantly. The parties staged by Ward and his girl friend became the talk of Pittsburg's night life.

Finally young Ward's father heard of his son's conduct with the girl here and discharged him as the secretary of the Brooklyn club and ordered him home.

RETURNED TO PITTSBURG

This had little or no effect on the conduct of Ward and the girl, as the young spender did not remain at his Brooklyn home for long, but returned to Pittsburg and resumed his affair with the girl.

During this period, from May to August, the girl in the case, it is believed, was shown how she could pick up a large sum of money in a blackmail scheme, with Ward as the victim. The Pittsburg gang got her in its clutches, laid the whole scheme out to her, and the girl consented to "go along" in the hold-up.

When Ward next visited Pittsburg, the girl told him it would cost him $10,000 to "keep her quiet." Ward, frightened and fearing the consequences of an exposure, hastened to a Pittsburg friend and told him of the girl's demand. This friend saved Ward.

Pittsburg officials and New York authorities are now working on this 1915 blackmailing case to see if it has any connection with the more recent case against Ward and which culminated in the murder of one of the alleged blackmailers.

CONAN DOYLE SAYS HE IS A PROPHET

PREDICTS RELIGIOUS LANDSLIDE WITH SPIRITUALISM ON TOP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, May 29. — Sir Arthur Conan Doyle came to America as a prophet, not an evangelist, he said today. He then declared that within ten years there would be religious landslides in this country and Australia, and that when the dust clouds lift spiritualism will be the prevailing religion.

Sir Arthur had just returned from a tour of the country during which he lectured on his knowledge and beliefs in spiritism.

During his tour, Sir Arthur said he had sought merely to interest his audiences and then let them look further into the mysteries themselves.

"Just as I did, they must spend years at it. They must squeeze the juice out of it and fit it to their religious belief as best they can," he said.

"I have not been looking to make facile conversions. I have been sowing a crop for the future," he continued. "The results will be here in ten years. I am certain of it, as certain as I am of anything under the sun. During the war I was a fairly good prophet. I foretold what the Germans would do with the submarine. I know I'm prophesying again. Within ten years there will be a landslide in this country and I think Australia, too, of spiritualism. It will be the prevailing religion."

It was not so easy to say whether the landslide would come to England also, he added, because the public mind is different in England.

"It is not so open, so receptive as here," he said. "I have received no anonymous and threatening letters in America and I did in England."

SMUGGLED DIAMONDS SEIZED IN CHICAGO

MAN SIGNS CONFESSION; TAKES OFFICERS ON TOUR OF VAULTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Max Greneider, with a wife and several children in Chicago, who brought to this country Miss Anna Herzog, aged 18, of Vienna, today signed a confession that he had smuggled into this country jewels valued at $10,000. He led Federal agents on a tour of safety-deposit vaults and the gems were seized.

Meanwhile Miss Herzog entered a hospital to receive treatment for the serious injuries she received at Greneider's hands. He had induced her to pose as his niece and she wore the jewels when they came off ship. As soon as they passed the customs inspectors, however, he stripped the diamonds off her.

The government has a complete case against Greneider on the smuggling charge, and also on the charge of bringing into this country and transporting the girl from State to State, for immoral purposes. In addition, there is the charge of inducing or forcing her to consent to a criminal operation. If she recovers from this operation she will be deported after she has testified against her betrayer.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ANNAPOLIS, May 29. — The hundreds attending the graduation exercises at the United States Naval Academy today received a surprise when the yacht Mayflower, on which President Harding left Washington Saturday with Mrs. Harding and a party of friends for a cruise down Chesapeake Bay, dropped anchor here. After lunching with Admiral Wilson, superintendent of the academy, the President reviewed the midshipmen and witnessed the annual baseball game between Annapolis and West Point.

Mr. Harding boarded the Mayflower later and started toward Washington, where he is expected to arrive early tomorrow.

RENEWS FRIENDSHIP AFTER SAVING GIRLS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CONEY ISLAND, May 29.—Madge Burr, 20 years old, who won a newspaper beauty contest last year, and her sister, Beatrice, who is 16, and might win one any day now, put on their most fetching bathing costumes yesterday and went canoeing on the broad Atlantic. Its depth did not worry them, for the young women are expert swimmers. A quarter-mile off Brighton Beach baths they undertook to change seats.

Otto H. Ahrens, life guard at the baths, saw the canoe upset and put out in a rowboat with Stanley Klusner, another life guard. Both young women were submerged when they reached the spot, and Ahrens had to plunge into the ocean to get them aboard the boat. Madge shook hands with Ahrens when she opened her eyes on the beach, and she said she was glad to meet him again. She had not seen him, it turned out, since he rescued her from drowning last winter at Miami, Fla.

COMMITTEE IS TWICE UPSET

Republican Agriculturists Senate Winners

Victorious in Tilts Over Tariff Measure

Bricks, Magnesite, Cyanide Are Debated

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The Senate Finance Committee majority, in charge of the tariff bill, met its first reversal today, being upset twice in fights led by the Republican agricultural-tariff bloc. In addition it receded from its original proposal to impose a duty of 35 per cent ad valorem on bricks used in the construction of buildings.

NEW PROPOSAL

In lieu of the duty it had proposed on building brick the committee majority submitted a proposal that if any country proposed a tariff on this commodity imported from the United States an equal duty would be imposed upon brick imported from such countries. At the request of Democratic opponents of the original committee proposal, consideration of the substitute went over.

The fight of the brick paragraph in the form recommended by the committee opened last week, when a memorial from Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Lockwood investigating committee in New York, was presented to the Senate, urging removal of tariff duties on building materials in an effort to break an alleged combination of dealers in such materials. The committee staved off a vote at that time and later reconsidered its action as to the duty on brick.

The committee majority was overturned by the Senate on cyanide, which was restored to the free list and on magnesite on which duties were increased.

In its fight to advance the rates on magnesite from $4.24 per ton to $10 per ton—the House rate—the tariff bloc had the support, not only of some eastern Republicans, but also of four Democrats—Broussard, Louisiana; Ashurst, Arizona; Jones, New Mexico, and Pittman, Nevada. The vote was 29 to 22.

In the vote to restore cyanide to the free list the bloc drew the solid Democratic strength and also considerable Republican support outside of its own ranks. The vote was 46 to 14. Republicans supporting the proposals were: Bursum, Capper, Cummins, Elkins, Ernest, Johnson, Jones, (Wash.); Kellogg, Keyes, Ladd, La Follette, Lodge, McKinley, McNary, Nelson, Newberry, Nicholson, Norbeck, Norris, Oddie, Phipps, Rawson, Spencer and Stirling.

AMERICA DISARMS RAPIDLY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—The War Department today submitted statistics to illustrate strikingly how the United States is leading the world in land disarmament.

This nation, which raised an army of 4,000,000 men for the World War, now stands in fourteenth place in the list of armies of the world in point of actual numerical strength, and in twenty-fifth place if the size of the army is compared to the total population of the country.

According to the War Department comparison, which is based on the present strength of the Army, and not the lower figures that will obtain when the new Army bill becomes law, Russia has the largest army with a force of 1,570,000 men. China is second, with $1,083,000 men, and France is third, with an army of 818,000.

ARMY STRENGTHS

The other armies included in the comparison are as follows: Abyssinia, 571,000; Greece, 310,000; Japan, 302,000; Poland, 290,000; Italy, 250,000; Great Britain, 237,500; India, 221,000; Spain, 216,000; Turkey, 188,500; Rumania, 165,000, and the United States, 158,000.

In view of the decision of the League of Nations at Geneva recently, that nothing can be done at present toward general reduction of land armaments, these figures are regarded in official quarters here with particular interest.

Other statistics that have been worked out throw interesting light upon the comparative burden borne by European populations and Americans for the upkeep of military organizations. In the United States the analysis shows, there is approximately one soldier to every 900 persons, contrasted with the statement often made that every European adult "has to carry a soldier on his back."

NOT MANY HERE

It is estimated that in the United States there is but one soldier for every $2,000,000 of wealth, and one soldier for every twenty-five square miles of territory.

Army experts also emphasize the fact that practically all the European powers, and Japan as well, have compulsory military service, with guarantees that every able-bodied youth will receive military training when he comes of age.

Thus, they point out, despite the world cry for disarmament, the European nations and Japan are actually building up great army reserves, which are subject to mobilization upon short notice.

FLEET BASE WILL LOSE OLD OFFICER

Chief Quartermaster W. F. Coffey Ordered North With New Mexico

When the dreadnaught New Mexico departs from Los Angeles Harbor, June 5, to undergo annual overhaul at the Puget Sound navy yard, the Pacific Fleet base will lose one of the most popular and widely known officers on the Coast.

Chief Quartermaster W. F. Coffey, attached to the Fleet Signal Station since 1919, and in charge of the post since last January, has been ordered to join the New Mexico as she sails north. The eight signalmen from the various units of the dreadnaught force who have been on duty at the signal bridge under Chief Coffey have also been recalled, and will go north with the battleship force.

Coffey will be succeeded, according to an announcement made on the Pennsylvania yesterday, by Ensign Robert C. Greenwald, now radio officer on the train flagship Connecticut. The signal station will also be manned during the absence of the fleet by a force of signalmen from the Connecticut.

Chief Coffey, who is retiring with sixteen years of service to his credit, saw an unusual amount of active service during the war, while with the American mine-laying forces in the North Sea. He was on the dreadnaught North Dakota during the early part of the war, and after being transferred to the mine layer Baranaf was on board at the time she and a sister ship, the Roanoke, were attacked by U boats in Scapa Flow. The two vessels were saved after two of the submarines had been sunk by American destroyers.

When the Pacific Fleet came to the west coast in 1919, Coffey was second in command of the mine sweeper Penguin during her record run from Hampton Roads. He was later transferred to the New Mexico.

Coffey retires from the Navy July 15, under the personnel reduction plan of Congress, and will enter business at Los Angeles Harbor.

DENIES ENGAGEMENT TO MILDRED HARRIS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Announcement by a paper here to the effect that Byron Campbell Munson, motion-picture actor, was on the verge of marrying Mildred Harris, former wife of Charlie Chaplin, was denied here today by Munson and in New York by Miss Harris.

"I know nothing about it," said Munson. "Several weeks ago I was in New York and saw Miss Harris frequently. We are good friends, but the report of an engagement flatters me. Why, mother has never even met her." Munson has been twice married and there are intimations that neither of his wives met his mother's approval. He expects to leave for California soon.

SYNOPSIS

Brixton Havens, young, haughty and headstrong, while riding through the woods on his property narrowly avoids running down Mr. Morehead, a tenant on his mother's property. Angry words passed between them and Havens determines to force Morehead to vacate the property. That evening he goes to the Morehead place. On reaching the gate he encounters a girl in the garden. His curiosity is aroused by her peculiar mechanical step and a little cane that hung from her shoulder. He speaks to the girl, but leaves the place without carrying out his purpose. Next day he called again and is invited into the house. In a short time Havens and Emma Morehead were married. One day Havens meets a stranger in the woods. They quarrel and Havens hits the man across the face with his riding whip. Later that same day he found Morehead dying, shot down by an unknown person. Some time after Morehead's death Emma gives Havens a paper which her father had given her, telling her it would make her rich some day. The paper contained a series of tiny punctures made by the teeth of a metal instrument and the perforations made a sort of map tracing, indicating the location of a rich mine. Havens becomes enthusiastic over the prospect of finding the mine which he believes is located at Lizard Lake, Uvada, and which will make himself and his wife independent for life. He starts out to find it. Near Sheridan City he met Reedy Gibbs, a Jack miner. At Rioville he saw in a mirror the face of the man he met in the woods and who he was sure killed Morehard. He tried to find the man but fails. Then when he leaves Rioville Reedy Gibbs insists on accompanying him.

THE DESERT'S LURE

I'd covered three miles from Sheridan City at the running walk, with a pack-horse beside me, when I ran into Reedy Gibbs. It happened this way:

I thought I had the road alone as I got to the wooded turn leading to Rioville, when through the trees came the sound of a hoarse voice singing:

"Heigh-ho, Milly, don't hole me back,
I'm gonna get rich on resin jack.
Heigh-ho, Molly, what d'ye think?
I'm hikin' f'r a mine o' zinc."

"Its only some jack miner," I thought as I listened to the words; but I held back my ponies hoping the fellow would pass by without seeing me. You see, I hadn't forgotten my father-in-law's warning, although I had no idea of what it amounted to. But I wasn't going to run even the chance of a mix-up.

Now I could hear the drumming of hoofs, and passing on the road below me came a man on a broncho, red-faced and rough, but a type of the country about here. He lifted up his voice again:

"I'm trampin' trails from end to end,
An' in every tramp I find a friend.
When I've made my pile, yo'll find me back,
Fo' I'm gonna get rich on rosin jack."

There was a lilt to the rough melody of the old rover, and I imagined he might have been a pretty good songster in his younger days. Suddenly he stops, sees me through the trees, and cries out: "Howdy, there; on yore way to Rioville?"

Caught like this, I had to urge my ponies down into the road and accept a pal.

"Jack minin'?" he asked, curiously, as he looked me and my outfit over.

"No, no; just on a little cattle business." I lied easily.

He looked doubtful at this, for, after all, we weren't in the cattle country, and evidently he didn't believe me. But the next minute his face cleared, and he observed as we rode along:

"Reckon yo're lookin' fo' a change o' scenery. I aim to git a little o' that myself up in th' Black Rocks. I'm Reedy Gibbs," he added.

Reedy Gibbs was entertaining enough, God knows, and at any other time I guess I'd have enjoyed his company on the road. But right now I made up my mind to give him the slip the first chance I could.

He was an old-timer, according to his own account at least, and if you listened to his talk with half an ear, you'd soon been convinced that he'd played a lively part at Humboldt, Uvada and Goldfield. He seemed to know all the seamy histories of the mining countries.

Reedy was lit up, there was no doubt about that. He showed it when we came to a rise in the road. "Whoops, buddy!" he shouted, rising in his stirrups. "Look daouwn yonder. Th' lid's off o' Rioville tonight."

Evening had come on, and lights were glaring in the little smelter town down below on the edge of the foothills. Gibbs set a swifter pace, and we rattled down into the main street, which was crowded with miners. He insisted on taking me into the Lion Palace, I think the place was called. Anyway, it was long and narrow, and there were mirrors set into the walls on either side, so when you looked into them, the crowd seemed to be about four times as big.

Reedy rolled off boisterously from group to group and left me standing at the bar. And then a thing happened that hit me so hard I thought at first it must be the dose of drink on my empty stomach, for I hadn't eaten since morning.

As I looked at the reflections in the mirror, a pair of eyes met mine, gleaming with latent hate out of a strong face, but one marked with lines of dissipation. I recognized it on the jump. The face of the man I had lashed with my riding whip at the edge of the Winding Woods. Somewhere in this shifting, noisy crowd he was watching me with some deadly purpose in his mind.

I reeled back from the bar and glared into the crowd. Then back to the mirror again. I was trying to locate the man, but the nature of the reflection was deceptive. And now the face had disappeared.

I plunged into the crowd of miners and smelter hands, pushing them aside, in spite of their curses and protests. They were a rough lot, but what did I care? I was well armed and prepared for anything. I was after the vicious devil who had threatened me—the man I suspected of shooting Emma's father.

If I'd met him, I don't know what I'd done. But it was hard to edge one's way through the length of the Lion Palace. A fresh rush of visitors had swept in. Men were moving in every direction. My efforts to locate the fellow failed.

The next minute, I made a break for the entrance door. There's always more sense in second thoughts. Hadn't I sworn to keep out of trouble? I had too much at stake there at my home in Missouri. What chance would I have in this semilawless mining town, where this man was probably strong in friends? I knew his hangout, and could wait a more favorable time.

I located my ponies at the hitching rack, and rode at a hard pace through the street of Rioville. The shouts, noises, and general disorder of the night life died from my ears, as I left the last house behind me. It wasn't till I heard the clatter of hoofs and the sound of a familiar voice that I cursed my luck in not having been able to shake the jack miner.

"Whoa there, buddy; what's the big rush?" shouted Reedy Gibbs.

He got no answer from me. The sky was still light, and my eyes were on the bare foothills of the range. Only a few miles more and I'd leave the road and strike across the hills in the direction of the pass that would lead me across the mountains of the Black Rock Range.

Gibbs began to grumble, and I saw the drinks he had taken on board had made him a bit ugly. "Yo're actin' blame short, there," he remonstrated. "Listen, buddy," he continued thickly, "Yo' and me' haidin' for the same place. I know more'n what yo' reckon on."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

The others drove his bronco closer to mine, and, leaning over he muttered: "I know yore business, buddy. Yore haided for jack. Yo' got th' chart. I ain't disputin' no claim, but let me in with yo.' 'Sway to do it."

I reined in my ponies with a jerk at that, I can tell you. Here was a total stranger who knew about Morehard's chart. My mind flew back to that other fellow in the Lion Palace. What was I up against, anyhow? Were these men in cahoots?

I sat for a moment glaring at the jack miner. "We quit right here," I said. "You pick the road you want to go." Turning the heads of my ponies to the right, I left the road and struck off across the rough country.

His first surprise having evaporated, Reedy started climbing after me on his pony's back. "Buddy, yo're haidin' to'ad a bad finish," he called out.

His persistence got on the raw of my nerves at last. I turned my pony half-way round, and drew a small-muzzled revolver. The moon came out just then, and Gibbs must have caught the gleam of the barrel, for he stopped.

"You picked the wrong road," I said.

The jack miner's good nature vanished. "All right, have it yo' way," he said in an ugly tone. "Go lose you' life."

Anyway, I was shut of the man. It took me a good half-hour to reach the first fringe of trees on the uplands. Then there came a crack and—ping—a steel-jacketed slug, missing my pack horse by an inch, thudded into the tree trunk just ahead.

Some real business has started. I ran my ponies into a shallow gully on the left, just as another shot cracked out. I got out my rifle from its leather scabbard beside the saddle, and, crouching low, I watchfully crept back down hill. I was all to the good, because hidden in the shadow, I could scan the moonlit hillside, without being seen myself.

Ah, there he was. Gibbs had swung off his bronco and jumped behind a tree, waiting for my move. I had him flanked without his knowledge. "Drop that gun!" I cried, and sent a shot that nipped the hat clean off his head.

He turned like a flash and caught my location and the sight of my rifle barrel at the same time. He dropped his weapon, held up his arms, and backed out into the open. "Yo're talkin' gun-talk, buddy!" he exclaimed in protest. "I meant yo' no ha'm. Lemme explain."

Now Gibbs was no coward. He showed the earmarks of a nervy man. But he was trying his hand at something which was past me, and I didn't have time to figure it out.

His pony was standing near by, hitched to a tree, his ears attentive to what was going on. I turned my rifle and sent two bullets whizzing close to the bronco's head. One of them nipped the bridle rein. The scared pony reared, tore itself loose and dashed down the hillside. Reedy Gibbs was going to do some tall hustling the next fifteen minutes or so trying to catch his mount.

"Hey, boy, what are yo' doing," shouted the jack miner. But his words already came to me from a distance, because I was running back through the gully as fast as my legs could travel.

REPORT OF GEN. DIAZ "INVASION" DENIED

STORIES THAT HE WOULD ENTER MEXICO FROM GUATEMALA PROPAGANDA

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, May 29. — Reports from the Texas border that Gen. Felix Diaz is making preparations for an invasion of Mexico at the head of 15,000 men within the next thirty days for the overthrow of the Obregon administration were characterized today by State Department officials as "without foundation," and by attaches of the Mexican Embassy as "paid propaganda."

The State Department's denial of the story was brought forth, it was explained by the assertion that United States agents had dug up the details of the Diaz conspiracy for the invasion of Mexico from the Guatemalan border. The United States has no "agents" along the Mexican border, it was declared, and it was further intimated that even in case there were such agents it would hardly be the proper procedure for them to submit their findings to the newspaper for publication.

Senor Don Manuel C. Telles, Charge d'Affaires of the Mexican Embassy, was equally vigorous and specific in his statement that there is no basis for the revolutionary story.

THE COUNTRY OVER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) May 29.—Twenty per cent cotton and the increase in the stability of other agricultural prices are changing the attitude of merchants throughout this region. Jobbers and manufacturers report a marked increase in business, the most encouraging feature of which is the placing of orders for future delivery. Many wholesalers are getting orders for fall shipments which is in contrast to their experience a year ago. The disposition, however, still is to buy conservatively. Confidence in the ability of the farmer to become a free purchaser in the fall is one incentive for future buying.

Activities in the cotton market continue and speculation has been heightened by the expectation of some traders of a government estimate next week which will point to a crop inadequate for the world's needs.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Summer goods are moving under the influence of the late May sales in the big retail stores, and jobbers are receiving encouraging inquiries for fall fabrics, both from local buyers and out-of-town merchants, who are coming into the market. Early wholesale business in the aggregate exceeds expectations, although not much is being sold by any one merchant.

Unusual interest is being displayed in worsted and fancy woolens by visiting buyers. Women in business are changing the preference for silks over woolens for everyday garb.

Straw hats and overcoats appear to be the present fashion among Chicago men. The chilly weather has not prevented the straw headgear from moving in good volume although the topcoats may not yet be discarded with comfort. Low shoes for men are beginning to move faster.

Building activities show no signs of abatement, although labor troubles still are acute with the citizens' committee keeping armed guards on buildings going up under conditions imposed by the Lan-

BETROTHAL .. TO .. GIRL .. DENIED

Accused "Jilter" Fights Her Suit

FRED J. FINCH, Sawtelle undertaker, charged by Miss Emma S. Lahey with having jilted her for another woman, was called by the plaintiff in Judge Walton J. Wood's court yesterday and asked if he had not proposed to her prior to Christmas, 1920, as the plaintiff had testified.

"I may have talked on the subject of marriage," Mr. Finch replied to Attorney Hollzer's question.

"But did you propose to her?"

"I did not. I don't see how I could marry, inasmuch as I was divorced and she was a Catholic."

Mr. Finch was shown a card upon which Miss Lahey had written:

"Good morning, Dear Heart. My dear, I have thought about your buying me that ring for Christmas. Don't you think it would be foolish for you to invest that money when you are going to buy me another later on? Use your own judgment, but you need not hurry."

This was signed "Emma."

Mr. Finch declared that he suggested giving her a ring in appreciation of her kindness to his "poor little deceased wife."

He said he bought her a dinner ring with that idea in mind.

Miss Lahey said he gave her an engagement ring. Mr. Finch denied there was a formal proposal. The affair was conditional, he said. It was also stated that he had no recollection of announcing his engagement at the Lahey home on Christmas. He said they had wine and he had been drinking.

The case seems to hinge on the purported conditional proposition. Miss Lahey said she did not know why Mr. Finch broke off the engagement. The defense sets up the impracticability of their marriage owing to the opposition of the church, and the further fact that Miss Lahey and Ralph Klein were very friendly.

Mr. Klein, in his own defense, said that both he and his wife were friends of the Laheys. He denied that that there was anything in his conduct with her that would arise unfavorable comment. The case will be resumed Wednesday. Attorneys Tanner, Odell, Odell and Taft are counsel for Mr. Finch.

Bold Bandits Help Selves to "Gas" Receipts

Entering the Standard Oil station at Pico and Bonnie Brae streets just before closing time last night, two men, both well dressed, and each about 35 years old, pleasantly announced to J. W. Rixey, the attendant in charge, that they guessed that they would take the day's receipts and "spend it all for pork chops."

While the bandit pressed a revolver in Mr. Rixey's stomach, the other opened the cash register and helped himself to the contents, $25.40. They then fled.

TRAIL OF IDLENESS HIS DOOM

Career of Youth Slain as Burglar Traced to "First Mistake"

The trail of idleness followed after he had made his "first mistake" led to burglary, murder and death, for Ben B. Stockin, the youth who shot and killed Ralph E. Gibbs, optician, in the latter's home at 1607 North Winona street, Sunday night.

According to information at the Coroner's office, Stockin, through a mistep in conduct, failed to graduate from the New York Military Academy as a first lieutenant. He was dismissed, according to the information, as a second lieutenant. Though well educated and a lad of manly appearance, he gradually took the downward path and finally met his death with a glass cutter and a flashlight in his pocket, and a pistol in his hand.

Stockin was shot and killed by Mr. Gibbs a few minutes after the latter returned home with his wife from a near-by theater and found the youth in his residence. He was later identified by his father, Carl L. Stockin of 1025 Florida street. The body is at the E. E. Overholtzer undertaking establishment.

Narcotic Act Instructions Are Sent Here

U. S. Collector of Customs Schwaebe yesterday received advices in regard to the enforcement of the antinarcotic law just signed by President Harding. It provides that crude opium and cocoa leaves, if now in the United States or en route, may be entered in warehouses, but not withdrawn for any purpose pending further instructions as to other narcotics regulations will be issued later.

The new law is a drastic bit of legislation tending to break up the illegal traffic in drugs. It provides for the deportation of any alien convicted of violation of the law, and a fine as high as $5000, and imprisonment as long as ten years in the penitentiary. The deportation of persons convicted is expected to deal a hard blow to the local trade, for many aliens are in the business, especially Chinese and Japanese. Deportation to these individuals means much more than the assessment of any fine, the authorities say.

Mr. Schwaebe also received instructions to accept for transportation and exportation entries of liquor for foreign destination until June 15. The original date was March 18. The change is of interest to the Mexican and Canadian liquor trade that ship their goods through the United States.

HARDING SEES NAVY BEAT WEST POINTERS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) May 29. — President Harding interrupted his Chesapeake Bay week-end cruise on the Mayflower today by stopping off at the Naval Academy and watching the "middy" ball team trounce its traditional opponents from West Point by a score of 8 to 7.

Mrs. Harding, Secretary and Mrs. Weeks, Secretary and Mrs. Fall, A. D. Lasker, chairman of the Shipping Board, and Brig.-Gen. Sawyer, the President's personal physician, came ashore with him while Atty.-Gen. Daugherty landed earlier and visited relatives at Johns Hopkins Hospital, outside of Baltimore.

After lunching with Rear-Admiral Wilson, commandant of the academy, the whole party went to the ball game. On a front seat over a dugout, assigned to the Army team, the President esconced himself, and, with a score card in hand, kept well up with the technical task of marking out the plays.

As the wildly joyous "middy" crowd broke out into the field at the end of the game, the President and his party was hurried out of the gates, and the fast Mayflower barge swung them offshore to the yacht with great speed.

SEEK CHARITY WORK REFORM

Need of New Methods for Collections Told

Alliance to Aid Social Service Board

Community Chest Proposal Meets Opposition

Reforms in methods of collecting for charities, to offset the agitation in some quarters for a community chest, to which many are opposed, were discussed at a meeting of the Alliance of Social Agencies yesterday afternoon in the Y. M.C.A. Building. Strengthening of the Social Service Commission, appointed by the city, to give it power to examine the books of any organization desiring to solicit funds in the city was favored by the meeting, and a motion was adopted directing the legislative committee of the alliance to cooperate with the Social Service Commission in a plan to put teeth into the ordinance under which it works. It was decided also to call another meeting of the organizations most directly affected by the community chest plan to consider the whole matter.

This meeting will be called within a week or ten days. Brigadier C. R. Boyd, divisional commander of the Salvation Army for Southern California, announced. Brigadier Boyd reported the result of a similar meeting held a week ago, which reaffirmed opposition to the community chest, but Miss Mary J. Workman, secretary of the alliance, argued that the alliance could not content itself with a purely negative stand, and must work out a constructive program meeting the objections of merchants and others to multiplied appeals for charitable purposes.

The Social Service Commission, Miss Workman suggested, ought to be aided in weeding out improper charitable appeals, and she urged that the alliance use publicity to educate the public to demand that any soliciting organization have the indorsement of the commission.

This suggestion resulted in the adoption of the motion mentioned above. She also suggested that organizations of allied purposes might combine their appeals for funds to cut down the number of drives. The discussion brought the opinion from several members that this was a step toward a community chest, and no definite action was taken by the meeting except to refer the whole matter to another meeting.

Brigadier Boyd favored the San Francisco plan, by which organizations conducting drives secure the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce, with no control except publicity.

Leavenworth Appeals to Tom as Prison Home

Tom Sharkey, the convicted postoffice robber, believes in dividing his patronage. Having spent four years at Folsom for having enough nitroglycerin in his possession to blow up the City Hall (which unluckily he had no chance to use,) Tom thinks he has given California enough of his business. He therefore pines for Leavenworth, Kan., as a future home.

Tom was to have received his sentence for the San Jacinto robbery yesterday, which would have made at least the fifth time that he has faced outraged justice. However, notice was given through his attorney, Frank E. Dominguez, that on account of Tom's failing health, a wire had been sent to Atty.-Gen. Daugherty asking for authority to have the prisoner sent to Leavenworth instead of McNeils Island.

It was asserted that Sharkey is suffering from lung trouble, and it was stated that the chilling wind that beats about the Puget Sound penitentiary would not be a good thing for him.

Judge Bledsoe agreed to the arrangement and Tom limped back to his home in the County Jail, to the four walls, the like of which have been his abiding place for twenty-one years.

READING CASE RULING MADE

Supreme Court Modifies Dissolution Decree

Effectively Divorces the Two Companies

Orders Are Rendered for Stock Disposition

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 29. — A modification of the dissolution decree in the Reading case was today ordered by the Supreme Court to more effectively divorce the Reading Company and the Reading Coal and Iron Company.

Pointing out that the difficulty in the separation of the interests of the Reading Company and the Reading Coal and Iron Company lies in the lien of the general mortgage which covers much of the property of the former and all the stock and property of the latter, and is not redeemable until 1997, the Supreme Court, in an opinion by Chief Justice Taft, directed that the District Court should, after a hearing of all interested parties, determine the respective values of the properties of the merged Reading Company and the coal company which are subject to lien of the general mortgage.

COURT'S ORDERS

"Then the decree should direct," the court continued, "that the liability of each on the bonds and the pledge under the mortgage shall be modified as between the mortgagee and the mortgagors, so that the liability of the Reading Company on the bonds outstanding and the lien of the mortgage upon that company's property to secure them, shall be reduced to an amount proportionate to the ratio of the value of its pledged property to the value of all the property pledged, including that of the coal company."

"The obligation of the coal company upon such bonds and the lien upon its property to secure them," it added, "should be reduced in corresponding proportion. The amount that each company is to pay as interest should be similarly fixed and specific plans for foreclosure of these separate liens in default and requisite machinery and other necessary changes to carry out the result will be made by the District Court in its discretion.

COMPLETELY SEVERED

"By this arrangement the interests and joint obligations of the Reading Company and the coal company will be completely severed and the purpose of this court carried out."

The District Court is granted permission to determine what, if any, injury to the security a modification of the terms of the debt and mortgage may cause, and to compensate for it by such a payment to the bondholders by either or both companies as may seem equitable and convenient.

The changes involved in these suggestions may interfere with, or make inapplicable, the provisions of the present plan looking to a proper working capital for the Reading Company, the Supreme Court declared. Autnority was, therefore, given to the District Court to amend the plan in any way which seems wise to leave the Reading Company properly financed to meet its obligations to the public.

FOUR ARE DROWNED IN WASHINGTON LAKE

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND AFTER SEARCH; THREE ARE MISSING

SHIPPING BOARD BOAT SAVES GALE VICTIMS

EIGHTEEN ARE RESCUED OFF FLORIDA AFTER ABANDONING CRAFT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) May 29. Eighteen survivors of craft which were unable to withstand the gale which swept up the coast yesterday were reported tonight to be aboard the Shipping Board steamer Sun Dance as it stood off Mayport awaiting an opportunity to dash across the jetties bar. Seven of them were survivors from the schooner Marian N. Cobb, which went aground today and was not expected to hold together through the night. Others were from launches which were unable to ride out the gale.

The gale played havoc with the St. Augustine shrimp fleet, while the British schooner Perceler, bound from Nassau for this port for repairs, went ashore on St. George's bar, near the mouth of St. John's River. The crew made shore in safety, however. A steam yacht was also reported in radio messages as in distress near the mouth of the river.

REALTORS LAUD VALLEY SCENES

Huge Motor Caravan is Greeted at Fresno

Visitors Guests at Barbecue "A la Spanish"

Fast Time Made from Here on Journey North

BY EDWARD G. LEAF

FRESNO, May 29.—Seven hundred realtors are resting in Fresno tonight after a glorious automobile trip through the picturesque San Joaquin Valley, and sections of Southern California's most beautiful orange country.

The visitors came in automobiles and they comprised the largest motor caravan to make the valley tour between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Many of the realtors are accompanied by their wives and families. The long run was made without trouble.

Eastern realtors expressed themselves with enthusiasm in regard to the Ridge Route, which is now at its best in point of beauty.

RECORD TRIP

There was no delay in making the start from Los Angeles. The early comers to the meeting place at the Ambassador Hotel were sent on their way immediately, with the result that the last machine of the 200 that formed the caravan left shortly after 7 a.m. over the Ridge Route. The caravan was accompanied by motor policemen, who kept the machines under control.

The run was made in six hours from Los Angeles. A few miles out of Bakersfield, at the little community of Arvin, the caravan autos were held and their occupants presented with flowers, raisins and nuts, gifts of the citizens.

On the outskirts of Bakersfield the caravan was met by a delegation from the Kern County Realty Board. Here a stop was made for a few minutes, until the majority of the automobiles had arrived. Pilot cars were provided by the Kern county board, and the caravan was escorted into the city.

The entrance into Bakersfield partook of the nature of a triumphal procession. After circling through the main streets of the city, the caravan was led to the city park, where a Spanish barbecue luncheon, served by Bakersfield's girls, garbed in Spanish costume, was provided for the hungry realtors.

Music and flowers accompanied the feast. There was no attempt at a formal program, since the time was limited, but the visitors were entertained by attractive Spanish dancers and singers during the luncheon period.

At Bakersfield the caravan was augmented by fifty or more automobiles, carrying the Bakersfield delegation to the convention. A stop of little less than an hour was made here. About 2 p.m. most of the machines had started on the 111-mile run to Fresno, where an overnight stop was to be made.

Leavng Bakersfield, the caravan swung around through the rich orange-growing district, making a detour to Rich Grove and visiting Terra Bella, Porterville, Lindsay, Exeter and Visalia. At each of these towns the visitors were met by reception committees and accorded a hearty welcome, although no stops longer than a few minutes were made at any point beyond Bakersfield until Fresno, the first day's destination, was reached.

The first machines arrived at Fresno about 5:30 p.m., but the caravan was not entirely reassembled until nearly 8 p.m., owing to the fact that a number of them were delayed en route with minor troubles.

At the outskirts of Fresno, the automobiles were met by Fresno realtors and were directed to the big plant of the Associated Raisin Company. Inside the grounds of the plant a basket supper was served. Mayor Truman Hart delivered an address of welcome and addresses were made by A. G. Wishon, president of the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation, and by J. F. Niswander, president of the California Peach and Fig Growers, Inc.

The supper was followed by a tour of inspection of the plant, and by a musical program in the grounds.

CO-RESPONDENT SUED BY WOMAN IN CASE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILWAUKEE, May 29.—Dr. Frank C. Studley, prominent in local medical circles and manager of Riverside Sanatorium, was today made the defendant in a $20,000 damage suit by Mrs. Elsa Bolzendahl, who holds the physician responsible for the loss of her husband's love as the result of Studley's attention to her while a patient at the sanatorium.

In the complaint filed in Circuit Court, Mrs. Bolzendahl admits to indiscretions with the manager of the sanitorium, setting forth that only four days after she entered the hospital for a serious surgical operation Dr. Studley began to make love to her. The complaint explains that the doctor gained power over her "by professing to have a profound appreciation and admiration for plaintiff's mentality, having almost immediately on plaintiff's becoming a patient, engaged in long conversations with her."

Mrs. Bolzendahl cites as a result also an aversion for her husband," which has passed away largely "since she left the sanatorium and was removed from the frequent presence of Dr. Studley.

Further damage for which she seeks amends is cited as the death of the affection of her husband for her and the fear that his love for her has been destroyed permanently.

Summons in the suit were filed a year ago. Dr. Studley was named co-respondent in Bolzendahl's suit for divorce and was later made an interpleader defendant on his own motion, seeking to clear himself of any charges that might be brought out in the divorce trial.

Dr. Studley, when asked for a statement on the filing of the latest development, said:

"I have nothing to say; the case will go very nicely through the courts."

OATMAN CAMP DEVELOPMENT

Many New Properties Being Diamond Drilled

Eastern Capital Sends Group of Seers

Two New Townsites Are Being Projected

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OATMAN, May 28.—The opening of new properties in the Oatman (Ariz.) gold-mining district is proceeding so rapidly that one can hardly keep pace with them. Fifteen companies are diamond drilling, a dozen are sinking shafts, and a score more are busy on other development work. In addition there has been a good-sized rush to the "poor man's country," in the Silver Creek district, where placer mining is contemplated on a large scale. Nearly 100 prospectors are now at work with the pan and shovel in the Silver Creek section at the present moment. One group is sinking a shaft to bedrock.

Not far from Silver Creek operations have commenced on the Sun Dial property, where rich ore has been opened up. The Sun Dial already has completed a seventy-two-foot shaft, where quartz with values up to $51 a ton has been found. A twenty-five-horsepower Fairbanks Morse hoist and an Ingersoll-Rand compressor have been installed and other development work will soon begin.

In the central section of Oatman the properties along the rhyolite dyke are still the center of interest. Oatman Gold Milling and Mining Company expect to tap the vein with their crosscut in a few days. Oatman United, which adjoins the Oatman Gold, will soon be dumping ore into the big 200-ton bin, which is now building. Oatman United has reconstructed its tracks, completed surface buildings and also is rapidly sinking its air hole. Ore will be shipped to the Tom Reed mill, where a sampler is now being installed. Upraising and drifting on the vein is in progress on the 600 level.

The Ransom government report on the Oatman district, according to hints reaching Oatman from the eastern seaboard, is highly favorable, and this week groupts of New York and Chicago financiers, accompanied by mining engineers and geologists, visited the Oatman camp. A party of Philadelphia capitalists, according to a wire from St. Louis received today, is on the way to Oatman, where they will be the guests of the Oatman Mining and Business Men's Association.

If the present trend of development work continues the Oatman district will soon have two more townsites surveyed within its borders. A townsite already has been laid out in the Black Range district, and surveyors are at work in the Silver Creek district.

When Black Range steps into the producer class it will have as neighbors the Nellie, Adams, Esperanza, Lazy Boy and the former Wrigley properties, all of which are lining up for drilling and development work.

Along the rhyolite dyke in Oatman proper San Francisco continues its drilling, the hole at latest reports being down 487 feet. Oatman Combination's drill has tapped another body of ore eighteen inches wide, and assaying more than $27 a ton. All preparations for the opening up of Summit Lode, which lies near the San Francisco, also have been completed. Argo, which lies beyond Oatman Combination, resumes work this week.

Both Telluride and the Stoney Leasing and Mining Company are reported to have shipped some exceedingly rich ore to the Tom Reed mill during the past week. Telluride's vein is widening out considerably. The drill on Telluride is now down 630 feet. United American also continues to ship its twenty-five tons daily to the mill. On the United Western W. K. Ridenour is supervising the diamond drill operations. A depth of 355 feet has now been reached. Further development work on the Merry Widow, which adjoins United Western is contemplated. Not far from the United Western the Big Jim Consolidated drill is busy. The hole is now down 410 feet.

Mohawk Central's hole is now down 550 feet. Black Range's third drill 155 feet; drilling has commenced on the Arizoro; on Oatman Amalgamated, near the Sun Dial, drilling continues on the 600 level, and in the Gold Dust drilling is under way on the 500 level. United Eastern is running a crosscut east with the intention of sinking drills to the greatest depth yet attempted in the Oatman district. Drilling also is contemplated on the Nellie and the Pioneer.

Other properties which are doing development work are Gold Ore, which expects to tap its vein in a few days with the crosscut now under way, Gold Cliff, North Star, Gold Trail, Gold Roads-Red Top, Highland Chief, Jerome-Oatman, Adams and Oatman-Union Pass.

ARMY CIRCLE DISPUTE SETTLED BY COURTS

PRESIDENT DOESN'T HAVE TO APPROVE RETIREMENT BOARD FINDINGS

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Deciding a matter which has been disputed in Army circles since the World War, the Supreme Court held today that it is not necessary for the President to review and approve personally each individual case to make effective the work of the Retirement Board in removing officers of the Army from the active list under the National Defense Act.

The decision was handed down in cases brought by John W. French and William F. Creary, who sought to have revoked their forcible, involuntary removal, the former by retirement and the latter by discharge, on the ground the Secretary of War, and not the President, had approved the findings of the board.

The status of a large number of officers who had been removed from active service was involved as well as the status of those officers who were promoted to fill the vacancies.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Industry Shows Material Gain; L. A. I. Climbs Steadily; Naval Oil Bids Soon

Greater than seasonal increases in activity in the major extractive industries of the district, continued strength in the banking situation and a period of comparative dullness in wholesale and retail trade characterized the month of April in the Twelfth Federal Reserve district, according to John Perrin, chairman of the board and Federal Reserve agent, Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco, in his monthly summary.

Continuing, Perrin says: "Improvement in the lumber industry was the outstanding feature. Production during April was at 95 per cent of the estimated normal capacity of operating mills, and during the first two weeks of May reached normal capacity. Orders received during April exceeded production by 27.1 per cent, this being the fifth consecutive month in which demand has exceeded current production.

MINING SHOWS GAINS

"The mining industry is reported to be more active than at any time in the last year. Gold and silver mines, with the richer ore deposits, and which have been closed down, are being worked again, and twelve of the sixteen large copper companies in the district are now in operation after a year of comparative inactivity or of complete cessation of operation. Petroleum production continues at record levels, but consumption has been lagging behind output, and stored stocks on May 1 were 329,795,057 barrels, the largest amount since April, 1917, and 56.9 per cent greater than one year ago.

Normal or better than normal yields of most of the agricultural crops are expected. Tentative prices for fruits and actual prices of live stock and wool are well above prices of one year ago.

INCREASE IN LOANS

Increased activity in industry and agriculture is reflected in the loans and discounts of reporting member banks, which increased from $834,264,000 to $853,221,000, or 2.3 per cent, during April. At the same time deposits in these banks increased from $1,114,092,000 to $1,152,807,000, or 3.5 per cent, and they were able to reduce their borrowings from the Federal Reserve bank from $22,651,000 to $14,672,000, or 35.2 per cent. Borrowings of all member banks from the Federal Reserve bank declined from $49,025,000 to $43,279,000, or 11.7 per cent, in the four-week period ending May 10.

LOS ANGELES INVESTMENT

Los Angeles Investment Company stock made a closing sale of $1.12 per share on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange last week, the highest price this stock has reached since the reorganization several years ago. It has experienced a steady appreciation from par since May 1, meeting with only minor recessions due to profit taking after each advance to a higher level. The present price of $1.12 compares to a high of 98½ cents in 1921, $1.07 in 1920 and $1.95 in 1919. The lowest level during these four years was 40 cents, in 1919. The stock sold as low as 73 cents last year.

The present advance appears to be based on fairly well authenticated rumors that the present dividend rate of 6 per cent regular and 2 per cent extra will not only be maintained, but increased to 10 or possibly 12 per cent. On the basis of the earnings for the first four months of 1922, local traders believe that the company could well afford such an increase. Earnings from January 1 to April 30, after all deductions, have been reported at $298, or $73,000 in excess of the dividend requirements for that period, amounting to $225,000.

The income statement at the close of 1921 showed surplus earnings applicable to dividends totaling $1,457,000. Adding to this the $73,000 surplus earnings covering the four months to April 30, it will be seen that the company still has $1,530,000, or 54 cents a share, which could be used for dividends.

Current reports state that the company at present is in a splendid financial condition. It has plenty of cash and negotiable securities and is borrowing no money from the banks. There are now under construction sixty houses, and all but five of them have already been sold. Indications are that the company will surpass last year's record of 384 houses in its sales, which will result in greatly increased earnings.

CONTINUED EXPANSION

Strengthening of prices for many primary commodities, together with expanded trade in many directions, continues to lend color to the belief that the business trend is definitely on the up grade. One of the anomalies of the situation is that while there has been an advance in primary circles, wholesalers and retailers, the latter coming in direct contact with consumers, are still having some difficulty in selling in large volume at current price levels. If the higher prices for wool, cotton, silk, wood and steel, for instance, are to be reflected in finished products before long, they will produce a new problem for merchants.

Explanation of the price rises lies in the fact that for some months past the price levels of many of the commodities now advancing have been selling below the cost of production. Curtailment of production, which resulted when prices reached a point so low that losses were less heavy by shutting down the mills than by continuing to run and losing money on the product, evidently has begun to make itself felt in many directions. Although with the exception of steel, motor cars and few other commodities, there is no avid demand, the volume of trade apparently is above the current production. Large stocks of goods have been worked down, slowly and irregularly, through continued consumption, which, while curtailed somewhat, never reached a point so low as that reached by voluntary and involuntary cutting down of production.

NAVAL OIL BIDS

Views of the leading California oil producers as to the immediate price outlook will be revealed tomorrow, when bids, covering six months' requirements of the United States Navy on the Pacific Coast, are opened in Washington, D. C. These bids will cover the Navy requirements of gasoline, engine distillate, kerosene, Diesel and fuel oil during the period from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1922.

A year ago these bids were made the basis of a serious flurry in the California petroleum market. The sensation was produced by the Union Oil Company's offer to supply the government's requirements of fuel oil at $1.48 a barrel, f.o.b., refinery, plus lighterage. This bid represented a cut of 27 cents in the price then current, and was followed by a general 25-cent reduction in fuel oil prices.

There is still considerable uncertainty among the local experts as to which way the trend will be as shown by this year's bids, especially in fuel oil. Gasoline prices have been advancing in the East and there has been a sharp increase in the demand for this product on the Pacific Coast, as shown by the greater sales figures of the principal marketing companies operating in this territory.

However, conditions in fuel oil are different. According to Standard Oil statisticians, there were nearly 40,000,000 barrels of crude oil in storage on the Coast on May 21 and each succeeding day sees something added to this amount.

The actual difficulty does not lie in the present stocks of oil which only represent four months' consumption at the outside, but in the fact that the surplus continues to grow and accumulate. Unless this surplus is substantially reduced either by a further shutting in of wells, considerable progress having already been made in this direction, or by an increase in the demand for fuel, the immediate outlook for the heavy oil producer is not a happy one.

FOOD IN STORAGE

Potato supplies, which have been accumulating steadily in Los Angeles warehouses for the last few weeks, reversed this trend last week and declined from 65,190 to 62,190 sacks, according to the cold-storage report issued yesterday. Total local holdings of other commodities are given in the report, as follows: eggs, 165,325 cases; butter, 685,686 pounds, and cheese, 498,001 pounds.

THE MONEY SUPPLY

The Treasury's complete figures of this country's money circulation on May 1, published last week, show that during the last twelve months our gold supply was increased by $589,600,000. Before the days of the Federal reserve this huge addition to the money supply would have been superimposed on a nonreducible circulation of United States notes and a virtually nonreducible national bank-note circulation. Since the gold imports of the present period have represented outright payment of debt and not response to active trade and high money in America, the sure result would have been an enormous increase in private bank bank reserves. Under the new banking system, however, the $589,600,000 increase in gold holdings has been offset, during the twelvemonth, by $614,900,000 decrease in Federal reserve notes, and there has been only $103,000,000 increase in reserves held by the Federal banks for member institutions.

CHANGES HANDS

Control of the Whitley Oil and Refining Company, with properties located on Rideout Heights, Whittier, has been transferred from the estate of the late Charles W. Whitley and Timothy Kinney to James E. O'Donnell, well-known California oil operator, and an entire new board of directors is about to be elected, it was announced yesterday. The interests of the minority stockholders remain unchanged. The Whitley Company has two producing wells, with a total production of 230 barrels daily. Three are being drilled and production is expected from still another three when water shut-off operations have been completed.

HOLIDAY CLOSING

The wheels of trade and finance will be at a standstill in observance of Memorial Day. Stock and commodity exchanges, banks and brokerage offices throughout the country will be closed. The Los Angeles and San Francisco exchanges took an extra day off yesterday in order to provide a three-day vacation for their members. There will also be a general suspension of retail business in Los Angeles.

COPPER MARKET

An advance report on production of copper in United States in 1921 has been issued by Geological Survey. It shows a smelter output of 505,586,098 pounds, against 1,209,061,040 in 1920. Mine production figures are not yet available. Refinery production was 1,020,000,000 pounds, decrease 615,000,000 from 1920. Of this amount domestic refined amounted to 609,414,256, against 1,182,423,240 in 1920 and foreign 410,612,840 against 452,485,104 in 1920. Stocks on hand January 1 totaled 459,000,000 pounds refined and 283,000,000 blister and material in process of refining.

TICKER TICKS

An important increase in production activity is reported to be inspiring the tire industry. It is stated in well-informed quarters that the business is rapidly expanding and that there is a demand for a cheaper product which requires less rubber and fabric. Goodrich and other manufacturing concerns will be able to increase their net very materially this year.

The railroad wage reduction announcement by the labor board is expected to stimulate bullish activity in the railroad list, particularly among the low-priced issues.

The labor board cuts wages of 400,000 maintenance of way employees 13.2 per cent, aggregating $48,000,000 annually. Other decisions pending involving all classes of railway labor except train service and yard employees to be issued effective July 1, probably will add $100,000,000.

Steel mills in the Pittsburg district are well filled with business for the next two or three months, with heavy placing of orders for plates and shapes.

Business conditions in the West are the best in the past two years, with some of the big industries operating from 80 to 90 per cent of capacity.

BUOYANT MARKET

Rail Labor Wage Readjustment Stimulates Heavy Trading Over Week-End

BY ALEXANDER DANA NOYES
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 29.—Interest today centered largely in the reduction in wages of maintenance of way employees which was announced by the Railway Labor Board. It can hardly be said that this further readjustment of railroad labor was a surprise to the financial community. When the 10 per cent freight rate reduction was announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission a few days ago the theory was then set forth that the decision of the Commerce Commission had perhaps been hurried so that it might precede a reduction in railroad wages. At all events, the downward revision of wages has not only followed the freight rate cut quickly, but the two decisions, the one on wages and the other on rates, coincide as to their date of application, namely, July 1.

It is estimated that the reduction in railroad wages will amount to about $48,000,000, and this by no means measures up to the figure that the railroads will lose through the application of the 10 per cent reduction in freight rates. The latter figure has been estimated at $250,000,000. It is, however, believed in many quarters that further revisions of railroad wages are in order and that definite announcements may develop before many weeks have passed.

The real point of significance, however, is the relationship which new railroad rates on a lower basis and decreased wages will have on railroad traffic and railroad earnings. The reductions in wages which have now taken place, if applied to all railroad employees, would probably bring the level of pay close to that which prevailed prior to the general increase during the summer of 1920, when the advance was some $600,000,000. This deflation of railroad wages, combined as it is with a readjustment of freight rates to lower levels will be advantageous to the carriers if there is any justification in what appears to be a logical belief that lower freight rates will stimulate business and that earnings will thereby be improved through the handling of a larger volume of traffic, even though the profit per ton may not be so great.

So far as the stock market was concerned today, the wage decision gave pronounced strength not only to the railroad shares, but to the industrials as well. It was a reflection quite the reverse of that expected when the 10 per cent freight reduction was ordered. Then the market refused to go down on the news, but this was mainly for the reason that the compensating wage adjustments were expected. In view of the overshadowing importance of the wage decision the market was inclined to disregard the verdict of the United States Supreme Court against the Southern Pacific, which was ordered to dispose of the Central Pacific.

Southern Pacific issues themselves were affected, and with less important needs to consider, the market might have construed this decision as a blow to its rather aimless discussion of mergers with relation to the railroads. For some time Wall street has been setting up theoretical combinations and then knocking them down. On the whole, today's stock market, both as to rails and industrials, could be described as buoyant in tone, there apparently having been a heavy accumulation of orders over the week-end.

ARGUES FOR SAVING WAGE

Labor Secretary Shows That Pay Envelope Man Weathers Economic Storm in Good Shape

[This is the second of a series of articles by the United States Secretary of Labor, on the wages of workingmen in America, and the advantages of what he calls a "saving wage."—Ed.]

BY JAMES J. DAVIS,
Secretary of Labor

Of the forty-one and a half million persons "gainfully employed" in the United States, 24,800,000, or nearly 60 per cent, are the actual wage earners, skilled workers, semiskilled workers, laborers and servants. If to these you add the nearly 14 per cent engaged in clerical and kindred work, we have practically 30,500,000, or 72 per cent of all those "gainfully employed" on a wage or weekly salary basis. In other words they look to the pay envelope for their income. These constitute the great buying public in our country. They are purchasers of goods "made in the United States." It is for these that we should seek to provide not merely the living wage but the saving wage, for, if the American workman enjoys anything as much as spending it is saving. To reward him a saving wage is no more than a just credit to the trait which has made him the greatest producer, the greatest buyer, the greatest market known to the world.

Let there be no doubt as to the American workman's ability and propensity to save. For two years we have been weathering an economic storm. Those of us who observe and think must have been astonished that there has been so little distress among our workers during all this slack business and scanty employment. This is not a matter of observation only. The records in the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics show that the American workman has given an astouding account of himself in the payment of his bills through all the severity of this slack period. During the war the same worker was set down as a madcap buyer of silk shirts and fur coats. His behavior since the war proves beyond doubt that while he may have spent a little more freely than was his wont, he was saving. We hear little of distress during this slack period because the workman has been able to finance himself out of what he has saved.

THE SAVING WAGE

This is one more reason why I feel sure that the saving wage must now for good and all take the place of the old meaningless living wage.

As a definition the saving wage is, I am aware, a very indefinite term. There are Americans of every degree who would never save a penny although their yearly income might amount to the thousands. There are other Americans who on a very moderate recompense, even on a pittance, would contrive to save some little residue. Just what constitutes the average saving wage for all we need not stop to figure. The spendthrift among us is after all the exception. We hear more about him because he is spectacular. The saver goes about his business without creating news. But I am convinced that he constitutes very largely the majority of our people. And that average saver, and a society awakened to his new and legitimate demands, will somehow reach a balance between them as to what in the long run constitutes a general saving wage.

This is no new thing. For sometime the most forward looking of our employers have been paying the saving wage as a matter of course, perhaps without knowing it. My contention is that what these enlightened employers have been doing must become general. Sooner or later all the rest will have to catch up to them. I believe public opinion will compel it. Without our knowing it, great social changes have been working themselves out among us, and prominent in this evolution is the worker's demand for his share in the larger benefits of this new day.

LIVING STANDARD RAISED

He is no longer a mere worker at a bench, an automaton. His intelligence has been expanded by new and rapid experiences. His tastes have been heightened along with the increase in his intelligence. He, too, has risen to the enjoyment of books, of pictures, music, the theater, a chance at the higher education, to cite but a few of his new demands. In other words the newly enlightened workingman has risen to a new place as a human being and as a member of our rich community. Conscious of having taken that place he is now entitled to insist upon enjoying all the advantages of it. Nor should we object to this, for it means the permanent enrichment of us all, in that the advancement of human society is always to be measured by the advancement of the worker himself.

The social consequences of the saving wage may be left to another time. For the present it is important to consider its effect on our business life. I know that if we bring millions of workers under the uplifting effect of this larger enjoyment in life there is no measuring the new spirit and energy and even genius that we may be unshackling and bringing as a stimulant and contribution to our national progress. As a quickening to our business prosperity the saving wage will mean even more.

When I first broached the idea in writings and speeches it was hailed in the press with a great variety of opinion. In the main it was approved, but it seemed rather largely Utopian. The press commentators overlooked the fact that the saving wage is already a good principle in actual practice. They have nothing to say of the great inexorable social forces that are bringing it about regardless of any opinion. I advocate it myself because I know that in doing so I have the backing of the hard facts of history.

METAL MARKETS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLEVELAND, May 29.—Daily Metal Trade today says sales of Lake Superior iron ore are likely to be started within a few days, under arrangement covering possible freight rate reduction and thus end prevailing confusion in trade. Frick Coke Company continues to make steady gains in Connellsville operations while soft coal output by middle western mines makes important increases. While pig-iron sales at Pittsburg are light, yet the eastern market develops a tendency to advance. Copper sales are good at New York even in preholiday atmosphere at 13¾ to 14 cents. All lead consumers are active buyers at 5.50 cents, St. Louis. Prime western zinc holds firmly at 5.25 cents, St. Louis, with tendency to rise. Tin is firm but quiet at 31½ cents.

James Neville, an electrician of San Diego, filed a similar petition. He owes $1880.13, and his assets are scheduled as $487.00.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, May 29.—Coming as the week-end recess and the impending holiday, today's market session displayed marked activity, breadth and strength. The diversified dealings, with substantial gains, aggregated 1,235,000 shares. Speculative interest continued to center in the transportations, the action of the Railroad Labor Board evidently being regarded as decided offset to the forthcoming reduction in freight rates. Numerous railway issues were active to two points during the session, but a considerable part of the gain was canceled or materially reduced later on expectations that maintenance-of-way and railway shop employees might order a strike vote on the wage cut.

The market was put to another test of its endurance just before the close on news that the United States Supreme Court had declared that the Southern Pacific-Central Pacific combination is illegal. This precipitated additional heavy selling and accentuated the irregularity at the end.

Other prominent features of the railroad and intermediate sections were many domestic and foreign oils, notably Mexican Pete and Pan American Oils of New York and Pennsylvania; Phillips Petroleum and Texas Asphalt.

Steel, equipments and motors rose 1 to 4 points while the advance was under way, rubbers and coppers, sugars and the usual miscellaneous stocks also making material gains, but for the most part these too, were subjected to sharp impairment by heavy selling.

Financial news over the week-end was favorable to the market's continuous pace. Railroad tonnage and gains and April earnings of leading roads were mainly favorable. Copper prices hardened and comments from authoritative sources regarding the steel merger were very reassuring.

Further expansion of clearing-house loans and discounts contributed to firm money tendencies. Call loans opened and held 4 per cent until the final half-hour when the rate was advanced to 5 per cent, with smaller offerings of time funds.

It is said that definite results will follow the meetings of the Allied Repartations Commission in further strength to international exchanges. Sterling receipts held at last week's average quotations, but all the Allied rates were higher, with German marks. The Austrian crown was weak, following cables of further delay in the negotiation of a loan.

BOND QUOTATIONS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, May 29.—A jump in Southern Pacific-Central Pacific collateral trust 4s from 88 to 94 in the last half-hour of the session, was the striking feature of today's active but uneven bond market.

The rise followed news that the United States Supreme Court had handed down a decision declaring Southern Pacific's interest in Central Pacific illegal.

Other railroad issues were firm to strong from the outset following the cut in wages by the Railroad Labor Board. Gains of fractions to more than a point were scored by many eastern trunk lines, most coalers and the more representative grangers and transcontinentals.

Local utilities owed their better tone to the decision of the local court which ruled against municipal

Wheat Prices Go to Still Lower Levels

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, May 29.—Liquidation was on in all grains after a fair showing of strength early today. May wheat collapsed and broke 9½¢ from the high figure of the morning and stood at the bottom with a net loss of 5¾ cents while July was off, 4 cents and September 2¼ cents. Corn and oats weakened in sympathy with wheat and corn closed 2¾ to 3¼ cents, and oats ⅝ to ¾ cent lower while rye was off 2½ to 3½ cents with May 2 cents under the July.

Corn, oats and July wheat were selling at practically the same figures at the last, and May and July coming together for the first time in the crop. There was heavy buying of May and selling of July by cash and elevator interests at 10 cents over seen for the July which checked the break in the May. An early bulge took place, covering last trade was large. The ordinary market in fists prompted for trade, and a fair decrease in the visible supply was thought.

A local broker was a free seller of July on the early advance which more than satisfied the demand from shorts who covered on prospects of Germany settling a liberal-sized loan. Numerous stop-loss orders were caught in the rally and support was limited, the most effective buying being by shorts. Export demand was fair and cash premiums all showed improvement, but this was more than offset by the excellent character of the crop reports from the southwest.

Cash corn and oats showed more weakness than did the futures, corn being off ¼ to ⅝ cent and oats ½ cents as compared with the July. Local sentiment was generally bearish and with wheat showing a stop-loss order caught, the decline was easily attained. A substantial reduction in the visible supply of both grains was shown on a market influence and the close was at practically the bottom. Receipts showed a fair increase while the shipping demand was only fair. Weather conditions were favorable for the field work and the growth of the new crops. Receipts were 750 cars of corn and 236 cars of oats.

A lack of commercial fed May eye carried that delivery off to 6 cents under the July in the last with scattered liquidation in evidence. July was taken moderately by shorts and by weakness in Minneapolis. Foreign demand was reported as slow.

COTTON DECLINES AFTER EARLY BULGE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, May 29.—Opening firmness in the cotton market today was succeeded by scattered realizing which induced a reaction of 5 to 15 points by the end of the session. The list was firm at 10 to 30 points tot gain at the start, but New Orleans pressure combined with realizing sales caused the list to fall back to about a level with saturday's final bids before the end of the second hour. The early bulge was largely a reflection of further short covering based on the strength of securities and exchange and prospects for unsettled weather in parts of the cotton belt. By middafternoon the reaction had extended to 20@23 cents for October, or 21 points under saturday's close, but part of this was recovered. Most of the selling was of a prholiday character and for evening-up purposes.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 21.10c, 10 points decline; New Orleans, 20.30c, unchanged; Savannah, 20.65c, 12 points decline; Memphis, 20.50c, unchanged; Mobile, 20.50c, unchanged; Houston, 20c, 10 points decline; Little Rock, 20c, unchanged.

PORT NOTES

Forerunning the inauguration of the Luckenbach Line's augmented intercoastal express freight service, the 12,000-ton freighter Lena Luckenbach arrived at Los Angeles Harbor yesterday on her maiden voyage from New York. Formerly the interned German freighter Poznan, the Lena Luckenbach is the first of four new vessels recently acquired from the Shipping Board by the Luckenbach Line for intercoastal service.

The big liner brought 11,000 tons of east coast products for Pacific ports, of which approximately half is for local consignees. The other new vessels to be placed on the run to the Pacific coast are the Eastern Soldier, Edellyn and Marcia. They will be given names of members of the Luckenbach family in line with the policy of the company.

The West Kebar, second vessel built by the Long Beach Shipbuilding Company under wartime contracts, is remembered at Los Angeles Harbor for her record run to the Orient while on her maiden voyage in 1919. The damaged vessel reached Montreal yesterday, badly damaged above the water line, the dispatch stated.

Shipping men at the port yesterday voiced their approval of the text of the bill recently introduced into the House of Representatives which supplants the provision in the ship subsidy bill requiring 50 per cent or more of the annual immigration into the United States to be transported on American ships.

No official action has been taken here by the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast but it was indicated that such approval would come.

The new bill provides a more simple procedure than the old form, making enforcement incidental to the workings of the regular 8 per cent limitation clause of the Dillingham Act. The Secretary of Labor is authorized to detail inspectors of the Immigration Service to such inbound ships plying from foreign countries to the United states, so that the admissibility of immigrants may be determined before the vessel arrives.

The Secretary may also raise or lower the 50 per cent requirement when foreign nations are without shipping of their own to carry the immigrants to where adequate American shipping facilities are not available.

Capt. Paul N. Chandler, formerly Oriental manager for Struthers & Barry, with headquarters at Shanghai, has joined the forces of the Luckenbach Steamship Company here and is to act as special representative of the company on the Pacific Coast.

Travel from Honolulu to Los Angeles, particularly of island residents coming here before attending the shrine convention at San Francisco, continues heavy and the Matson liner Wilhelmina will arrive at San Francisco tomorrow with nearly 100 passenger from Honolulu, booked through to this city.

Thomas A. Graham, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, returned to San Francisco yesterday after spending several days at Los DECORATION DAY.

This is a tribute to our brave forefathers who fought and brought down in history the glory and honor which we now live in this progressive, prosperous country.

Our forefathers fought for the land in which we live, our fathers went through trials and tribulations to open up the wonderful West for us to develop, along with its natural growth, California is at the westerly border of our glorious republic, where the westerly migration ends. Los Angeles, due to climatic conditions, tenacity of spirit, prosperous atmosphere and the back country of the city, can not keep from forging ahead.

Property values in the East are going to still greater heights, values are now lower than eastern cities of the same population, then why, with the western movement, should anyone fear an investment in Los Angeles property? Sound investments can be made today, with the undisputed fact that values are sure to increase.

Think, speak and hear prosperity and we shall go ahead doubly fast. Be pessimistic and you are the one to be harmed. We have more advantages than our fathers to work with, so let us get together and pull for a larger Los Angeles.

MANSFIELD KNOLL

ON Country Club Drive.

Country Club Drive, the new and fashionable 100-foot residence boulevard being opened from Western avenue to the car, is being developed by many of the same agents who developed Wilshire Boulevard. Those agents are profiting by past experience and are protecting Country Club Drive with fifty-year residence restrictions.

We respectfully suggest that those who buy lots on or near Country Club Drive will benefit by at least as great increase in value as did those who bought on Wilshire Boulevard when that thoroughfare was young.

Besides this magnificent east-and-west boulevard, the high ground constituting Mansfield Knoll is crossed from north to south by most attractive residence avenues such as Highland, Mansfield, Meadowbrook and Cloverdale avenues, affording a permanent outlook over the lower ground in the surrounding Wilshire district.

Large corners on Country Club Drive may be had now at only $2400 to $2600, inside lots near Country Club Drive at only $1950 to $2200. On the avenues running north and south lots for residences, single and double, one and two stories, may be had now at only $1500 to $2200. Think of a 50-foot lot on Highland avenue at only $1500!

On Vanowen and Marne aves., 50-foot lots for flats and apartments may be had now at only $1400 to $1600.

Naturally these lots are selling very rapidly at these prices. The opportunities that are rapidly passing will never come again.

LA BREA AVENUE FRONTAGE.

Did you share in the profits on Western avenue? Here is another opportunity for you.

La Brea avenue, extending from Pico Boulevard north, is to be a business thoroughfare. From Pico to Country Club Drive it is to be 100 feet wide, several days ago we were able to offer the frontage from Country Club Drive to Twelfth st., and it is all taken. We are now offering it from Twelfth st. to seven 120ft. lots. Much of it is taken and if you want some of it, it is not a matter to be considered next week, but today, unless you are willing to pay the price for it a week hence. Lots may be had today at $2000 to $2500.

Walk west from the end of the Pico car line to our sales on the first high ground. Or take our autos from Broadway, Hollywood Blvd. and Pico Boulevard and Vermont avenue cars to our branch offices at Highland and Cahuenga avenues. Look for the red and orange umbrellas.

REVEALS KLAN RAID TO JURY

Prosecutor at Bakersfield Hurls Sensation

Mission of "Black Robed" Group is Explained

Startling Charges Made at Trial Now On

That Harry D. Reynolds, as Exalted Cyclops of Kern River Provisional Klan No. 2 of the K.K.K., distributed black robes to a Klan committee of six, of which Pickens was a member, and instructed them to "take care of Clyde Richey," was the declaration of Dist.-Atty. J. R. Dorsey in his opening statement to the jury yesterday at Bakersfield in the trial of W. M. Pickens, charged with murderous assault and robbery of Richey, according to a news dispatch.

Reynolds, Elmer C. Collison and William J. Collison are facing trial under grand jury indictments as alleged accomplices of Pickens in the Richey attack. Pickens, before being indicted by the grand jury in the recent Ku Klux Klan investigation here, was charged by Richey with the attack and robbery.

A fifth member of the purported committee instructed by Reynolds, according to Dorsey, to tar Richey, was A. E. Abbott, who was jailed by order of Superior Judge T. N. Harvey for contempt of court, when, as a witness before the grand jury Abbott refused to testify because he said he could not without violating the Klan oath. After several hours behind the bars and having been informed by Judge Harvey he would be held in jail until he answered questions put to him by the grand jury, Abbott agreed to answer all questions.

The identity of the sixth alleged committeeman who met with Reynolds in the Taylor Building, where Dorsey said plans for the "punishment" of Richey were completed, has not been made public by the authorities.

RECRUITING STOPS

Ku Klux Klan recruiting in California has come to an abrupt end, it was learned yesterday, when G. W. Price, deposed King Kleagle of the hooded order, admitted that his kleagles are no longer seeking new members for initiation into the "Invisible Empire."

The annual "klanvention" of the California kleagles ended yesterday at the office of King Kleagle-that-was Price. Of the nineteen California kleagles only eighteen answered their chief's summons to attend. The missing man, according to Mr. Price, is Homer R. Pitts, the man who figured in an Atlanta case involving the death of a man who was charged by the intended victim with an attempt to kidnap him for the purpose of administering "punishment."

Pitts is the Kleagle who was active in the organization of the Kern county klans, and recently completed formation of provisional klans in El Centro, Calexico and other Imperial Valley towns. Mr. Price said he did not know why Kleagle Pitts failed to show up for the checking of his accounts and reports and added that he did not know his exact whereabouts at the present time.

Anxiety over the plans and movements of W. S. Coburn, the former proud bearer of the title of Grand Goblin, and the newly appointed King Kleagle for California was expressed yesterday by Mr. Price and other Klan officials. Paul Barksdale D'Orr, attorney for Coburn, also stated he had no idea where the former Grand Goblin is and said he would like to see him.

COBURN INVISIBLE

Capt. Coburn left the "Imperial Aulic" at the "Imperial Palace" of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., in Atlanta, a week ago, presumably headed for Los Angeles. So far as Mr. Price was concerned, Capt. Coburn remained as invisible as the secret emissaries from Atlanta, now checking up on the California situation in general and reporting to Atlanta, via the "hooded grapevine."

Chief of Police Bernard McShane of Sacramento was in Dist.-Atty. Woolwine's office yesterday, conferring with William C. Doran and Raymond I. Turney, the two officials conducting the Ku Klux Klan investigation. Chief McShane is looking up additional data regarding the Sacramento membership and the dismissal of seven police officers, whose names were found on Kleagle Fuller's weekly reports.

Dispatches from Arizona stated that preparations for a new trial in the Waller case, involving charges of Ku Klux Klan activities, were being made yesterday following the discharge of the jury that failed to agree on the verdict. The vote was 6 to 6.

Plan for "Red" Traffic Cops Strikes Snag

No scarlet uniforms for Los Angeles traffic policemen was the recommendation made yesterday afternoon by the City Council's Public Safety Committee.

The suggestion had been formally made to the committee that if the traffic officers at street intersections were dressed in brilliant plumage they could be more easily seen.

"A driver who cannot see our officers in their present uniforms," said Councilman Mushet of the committee, "should not be permitted to drive an automobile."

ERROR CORRECTED

A story in yesterday's Times which announced that G. Allan Hancock's new yacht, Velero II, would be launched at Wilmington next Saturday at 6 p.m., was in error. The launching occurred last Saturday.

FLOODS DUE TO BLASTS, IS REPORT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 29.—Atty.-Gen. Galbraith, after inspection of the situation in the Cibola Valley of Arizona, below Blythe, expresses his opinion that the late levee break at Ripley, across the Colorado River, was due to the action of Californians who sought to straighten the course of the stream by blowing off a rocky point on the Arizona side. As a result, the current struck directly for the Ripley levee, instead of paralleling it, as in the past, he stated.

He went to the remote locality to investigate a report that Californians had been blasting out a new channel for the Colorado through the lowlands of the Cibola section. Mr. Galbraith states that he found where there had been cleared a channel through the willows and underbrush and where there had been blasting to facilitate the passage of water into what had been hoped would be a new main channel, one that would sweep away or add to California about 20,000 acres of Arizona land. But a small and muddy rise had come after the work had been done and the blasted holes had been filled with silt and the brush had since grown to a degree that might prove an effectual dam against any channel cutting.

The Cibola district has a population of about twenty families, or landowners, who have been there for many years, hoping for governmental help in the watering and development of their rich lands. Several years ago they protested to the Yuma county authorities against the channel-changing activities of their western neighbors and procured an injunction in the County Court.

DEATH DUE TO POISON, IS REPORT

Police May Investigate Jesse C. Luitweiler's Sudden Demise

A police investigation of the death on the 24th inst. of Jesse C. Luitweiler may follow findings of the Coroner that death was not due to heart failure as had been supposed until last Saturday when an autopsy, ordered by Coroner Nance, disclosed that death was due to cyanide poisoning.

Mr. Luitweiler, who was 42 years old, was the son of Samuel W. Luitweiler, pump manufacturer, and resided with his aged parents at 2114 South Crenshaw Boulevard. Deputy Coroner MacDonald declared to his superior officer that he had been unable to secure a comprehensive account of the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. Luitweiler, and recommended an autopsy.

Autopsy Surgeon Wagner performed the post mortem. He determined that death was due to poisoning and the undertaker's report of Garrett & Co. contained the words: "Died of syanide poisoning." Dr. L. E. Wilson, who was summoned to Mr. Luitweiler's home, verified both statements.

The body of Mr. Luitweiler was cremated last Saturday shortly after the funeral services.

Members of the family declined to discuss Mr. Luitweiler's death other than to assert that the poisoning had been accidental.

Optometrists Vote to Have Taxes Raised

The unusual spectacle of sane men and women voting to ask that their taxes be raised 400 per cent was furnished last night by the California State Association of Optometrists, in session at Philharmonic Auditorium.

The purpose of the raise is support of the new courses in optometry at the University of California, recently established, which the regents of the university figure will cost about $10,000 a year. The association pledged financial support of the course some time ago, and last night voted on motion of Dr. E. H. Morrissey of Los Angeles, to ask the Legislature to increase the annual registration fees for optometrists enough to provide this support. It was figured an increase to $10 a year would provide about $9200. The present fee is $2, and there are 1150 registered optometrists in the State.

The convention of the State association preceded the Western Congress of Optometry, which opens today, with delegates present from ten States, and one Canadian Province.

Divinely Named but Overruled by Laws of Man

Anna E. Williams was ordered reinstated as secretary of the Full Gospel Dorcas Association by a writ of mandate granted yesterday by Attorney Ruben Schmidt, pro tem. Judge of Department Twelve. Miss Williams was discharged some time ago and sued to be reinstated.

According to the ruling of the court, Miss Williams was unlawfully discharged by Mrs. Nora Hamilton, head of the mission. Mrs. Hamilton stated in court that she was divinely appointed to lead the little band and that she had discharged the secretary. The court held that the action of Mrs. Hamilton was wrong.

CARRIES .. FORTUNE .. IN .. "ROCKS"

Veteran Shows Sparklers; Reporter Rushes to Oculist

John Prince and His Eight-Thousand-Dollar Smile

JOHN PRINCE deposes and says that Yodle Joe, the Oatman miner with seven black diamonds in his teeth, is a piker.

Yodle Joe's diamond-set teeth are valued at $1700. Mr. Prince, familiarly known as Diamond Dick, possesses a few "rocks" also. He told about them yesterday—with a $8000 smile. The valuation of the smile is based upon the eight diamonds set in as many of his upper teeth and exposed with every smile.

Diamond Dick's "rocks" are each one and one-quarter carats in size and each is valued at $1000.

DIAMONDS ON SHOES

He threw back the flaps of a gray tuxedo and exhibited a diamond-studded vest. In each of the six buttons was set a three-quarter-carat diamond.

In a little black string tie, tucked carelessly in a soft-collared pongee shirt, glistened two more diamonds of mastodontic proportions. Fourteen diamonds sparkled in his Shriner pin. He is a member of New York Shrine, No. 1, and belongs to many other organizations. On his fingers were other huge diamonds. Apologetically he explained he had about thirty or forty more diamond rings at home.

Diamond Dick then swung one leg jauntily over the other and wiggled a foot clad in a bulldog-toed oxford. Each shoe had four buttons and each button was set with a three-quarter-carat diamond —a total value of $1425.

Diamond Dick is 54 years of age, though he looks no older than 35. He was born in April, the diamond month. Thirty years of his life were spent in the U. S. Army. Two years ago he was retired as a lieutenant. During the war he served with the Seventy-ninth Infantry Regiment. An ugly scar on his neck holds memories for him of a bad bayonet wound inflicted by a Hun.

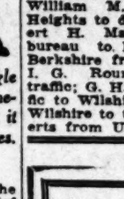
DOESN'T TRUST BANKS

"I think he tried to slash my head off at the shoulders to get my diamond teeth," said Diamond Dick. "I take care of my own rocks. I don't trust banks. I wore most of them while in action and left the others with my mother."

Diamond Dick said he has been accumulating his favorite jewels ever since he was a boy, that he first began, following a "crap game," and has been gathering them ever since. Never has he sold or traded any of them.

"It's a sure fire way to get a girl. Put diamonds in your teeth and the women will follow you around like a flock of flies. They bother me to death, always wantin' to kiss me, but I'm single and I've got one girl and that's enough for me. See this diamond ring? That's for her. She's got 'em hanging on her like toys on a Christmas tree."

SEEIN' THINGS



[Why not share your chuckle with others? When you see something unusual, drop a note about it to the City Editor of The Times. Then we can all smile.]

R. R. W. scorns to seek assistance at the Long Beach Garage which slogans: "If you come here once, you'll come again." We can't blame him. We just sidestepped a place like that.

Speaking of Long Beach garages, did you know there is one right on West Broadway, whose proprietors are Riggle and Settle? We have, and probably will until the ol' boat ups and imitates the Deacon's "One Hoss Shay."

Guy Biddinger Defendant in Divorce Suit

Guy H. Biddinger, local detective, one of those who trailed The Times's dynamiters, and one time candidate for Chief of Police, was yesterday sued for divorce by Corinne H. Biddinger. Cruelty and intoxication are given as the principal reasons for the suit.

According to the complaint a friend of the family was visiting Mrs. Biddinger at the family home, 871 Gramercy Drive, when Mr. Biddinger attempted to gain access to the visitor's room. He forced the door, the complaint states, and the young woman visitor jumped out of the window.

On another occasion, the complaint states, Mr. Biddinger announced that he was going to get a "gorilla to bump off" his wife. Mr. Biddinger called his wife a bum, it is charged.

CHIEF OAKS MARSHALS FORCES AGAINST CRIME

Better Machine, Aim of Sweeping Police Reorganization; Hilf His Acting Assistant

Declaring that he was actuated by a desire to tighten up the forces of the police department into a better machine for the combating of crime, Chief of Police Oaks last night announced the appointment of Richard Hilf and Charles F. Jackson to captaincies and the transfer of many men, effective June 1.

"None of the transfers or changes," he said, "is to be construed as reflecting on any officer. For a long time I have been sifting over the affairs of the department, picking out men and placing them in positions to which I believe they are best fitted both because of ability and experience. It is by no means a shake-up. With the appointments of Capt. Heath and Capt. Jackson, two new lieutenants, and two sergeants, there were vacancies left in the various divisions and the transfers are merely a shifting up of the best available men."

HILF ACTING CHIEF

While Capt. James McDowell returns to his old post as head of the crossings and mounted officers in the traffic bureau, Capt. Jackson assumes his place as inspector of police.

Capt. W. L. Spellman, who has been in command of Central division since his recent reinstatement by the Police Commission, will be on detached duty. This means, Chief Oaks stated, that he will relieve other captains while they are on their vacations.

Capt. David L. Adams's place as head of the detective bureau will be taken by Lieut. of Detectives Grant Rogers, Sr., while Capt. Adams will take command of the University division.

Following are the other transfers made:

Lieut. Henry Toomey from Hollywood to Central.

Lieut. A. G. Graham from Boyle Heights to University.

Lieut. J. M. Hoover from Lincoln Heights to Hollywood.

NAVAL MEN QUIZ CRASH AT HARBOR

Collision of Sub H-9 and Steamer Unavoidable, is Testimony Submitted

Testimony purporting that the collision between the submarine H-9 and the steamer Virginia Olson at the entrance to Los Angeles Harbor on the 22nd inst., was unavoidable on the part of the submarine, was introduced at a naval court of inquiry, which sat at the Submarine Base yesterday.

Lieut. J. D. Jacobs, commander of the H-9 will not lose his craft as a result of the smash, it was said, unless the Navy Department so rules after acting on the finding of yesterday's board.

The board members, all officers at the Submarine Base were composed of Lieut. Ernest H. Kruger, senior member, and Lieuts. Thomas G. Berrien, A. C. Bennett, Kenneth G. Lovelace, and Frank L. Warden.

Late yesterday they inspected the disabled Virginia Olson, after she had been raised on the dry dock of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, for repairs.

Making the Virginia Olson seaworthy, according to marine surveyors, will entail an expenditure of approximately $20,000.

Civic Groups Join to Back School Bonds

The Better America Federation, the Los Angeles Realty Board, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, and the Business Property Owners' and Managers' Association, have joined forces in support of the $17,400,000 school bond issue to be voted upon June 6.

At a meeting of representatives of the four organizations, resolutions indorsing the bonds were unanimously adopted and signed by Frank Ryan and W. S. Brent of the Realty Board; P. O. Johnson for the Better America Federation; Irwin H. Rice for the Merchants and Manufacturers, and by A. G. Bartlett and James R. Martin for the Business Property Owners and Managers. It was suggested at the meeting that the Board of Education confine the sale of bonds to not more than $5,000,000 yearly, and to regulate the building program accordingly. The resolutions were read before the board last night.

Bureau Honors Fallen Heroes of World War

Memorial exercises were conducted yesterday in the subdistrict office of the veterans' bureau, Pacific Mutual Building, from 3:30 to 4 p.m., in honor of fallen heroes of the World War.

Kenyon J. Scudder, subdistrict manager of the Los Angeles territory, spoke briefly of the fitness of pausing amid the activities of the bureau's work to pay tribute to the honored dead. Mr. Scudder then introduced Alberta and Lorene Davis, known in Army and welfare work as "The Sammy Sisters," who rendered "Assembly" and "May Angels Watch O'er Thee," on trumpets and melophones.

Walter Tuller, attorney, then was introduced by Mr. Scudder. Mr. Tuller, who was a major in the General Staff Army College, in France, paid tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice over there, and the exercises closed with "Taps" on the trumpets, by the Davis sisters.

Charge Against Montebello Officer Dismissed by Judge

The accusation charging City Marshal L. G. Herr of Montebello with neglect of duty, was dismissed by Judge Parker yesterday after hearing the testimony. The complaining witness was F. Joe Rice, former recorder, who was removed by the trustees. The charge against Mr. Herr arose out of the release of two prisoners. It was shown that the prisoners had been released after the prosecution had dropped the case. Morrison represented City Marshal Herr.

"Mrs. KHJ" of Ocean Park, in a letter to The Times, offers the following suggestions: "Far be it from me to criticise," she writes, "but why do all the ladies select the wailing style of songs, which do not carry well? I am tempted to ask that one of them sing 'Jingle Bells' and listen to herself to see what a difference there is between that kind of music and the weepy, wally sort most of the singers select." Mrs. "KHJ" goes on: "I can just hear them say, 'She likes jazz,' but I hate it. I do like lively airs sandwiched between the opera. You know most of the radio enthusiasts are of the 'people,' not of the operatic class."

The proper pronunciation of our fair city Los Angeles, which should be pronounced "Loce Ahng-hayl-ais," has caused the first real stumbling block in radio procedure at KHJ. Dean Farran, in charge of the station, says that he has "too much Irish" to master the Spanish pronunciation of Los Angeles. Many letters and phone calls have been received bearing on this point. "I am doing the best I can," said Mr. Farran broadcast Thursday during the noontide period, "but if I fall down, we will try and make it up to you in perfect modulation and trust that you will be patient with our efforts toward perfection."

Mrs. George Rem, 1019 Albany street, recently injured in a fall and unable to leave her bed, is enjoying The Times concerts. Mrs. Rem listens in with a small crystal detector set.

Although it has been consistently pointed out that crystal detector sets are not adequate for long-distance receiving, there is still a doubt in the minds of many persons as to the distance covered by them. Crystal detector sets are capable of picking up signals from stations many hundreds of miles away, but they only do so under unusual conditions. They will pick up radiophone concerts, under good conditions, up to twenty miles. Farther then that signals are so weak they cannot be enjoyed.

JAILED AS FORGER

Accused of forgery of the name of his uncle, S. E. Scecchitano, to several checks, James Scecchitano, formerly in the Navy, was held to answer yesterday by Justice Hinshaw. The uncle appeared as a witness against him. Bail was fixed at $1000.

The Times—KHJ—on the air today at 1:00 p.m. Mme. S. Loura Bona will read "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address," "In Flanders Field," by Lieut.-Col. John McRae, and "Thy Faith We Kept," by John F. Cohee. Marjorie B. Bauer, accompanied by Mrs. Adele Dorothy Louth, will sing "Red, White and Blue" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

Program at 7:15 p.m. Dr. John Frederick Clark, accompanied by Ernst Morrison, pianist, will radiate spoken songs, "In Flanders Field," poem by Lieut.-Col. John McRae, musical score by M. Jennette Loudon; "My Heart, the Bird of the Wilderness," and "Why Did the Lamp Go Out," poems by Tagore, musical score by Arthur Keerner. Jay Plow, flutist of the Philharmonic Orchestra, will render "Falling Leaves," by Donjon, and "Allegretto," by Godard. James L. Smith will sing his compositions, "My Radio Girl" and "The Boys of Sixty-one Were Soldiers, Too." Gail Mills Dimmitt, lyric soprano, will sing "The Blue Star in the Window," by Albert S. Reitz, and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Mrs. Dimmitt will be accompanied by Mildred Letcher.

MEMORIAL DAY, reborn in the hearts of men who labored and bled for their country, comes today with a new significance. Patriotism is to be expressed with increased volume, and an ever-widening scope throughout the land. Memorial programs will be broadcast from radio telephony stations over the United States, and KHJ, The Times Station, is presenting at 1 p.m., and again at 7:15 p.m., stirring addresses, poems and music which it is believed will carry a message not only to veterans of the Civil War, assembled at the Soldiers Home at Sawtelle, and to veterans of the World War at Arrowhead Post, but also to more than 100,000 people who will attune to the spirit of these programs.

Gathered about the receiving sets installed by The Times at the two institutions above mentioned, will be men now resting from the stress of war, to the former, the old soldiers at Sawtelle, the patriotic songs, and those immortal words of Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, will come as a crowning marvel of their lives. Many have been the years when, on this annual day, songs have been sung, addresses delivered, and when they have witnessed the laying of flowers on the graves of their departed comrades. Little they dreamed that the day would come when the surge of the old spirit "Love of country" would be borne to them through the magic of etheric wave lengths out of the air.

"It will be as if the old 'Battle Hymn of the Republic' were echoing from the fields of conflict," said an old soldier at Sawtelle yesterday.

LESSON 57

BY G. C. Farmer.

The 2400-meter wave length has a fascination for arc operators in that it is frequently possible for them to break long-distance transmission records. Operators on arc-equipped ships in oriental or Australian waters are continually trying to communicate with California coastal stations in the endeavor to get their position reports into the newspapers. Such long-distance sending is regulated by the amount of static at the receiving station as well as local interference which usually drowns out the weak incoming signals from a ship 4000 or 5000 miles distant. It can safely be said, however, that if it were not for static and near-by interference it would be possible for ships to communicate from any portion of the globe to the home port.

Between the waves of 2400 and 25,000 meters are heard scores of arcs, sparks, and high-frequency alternator transmitters. The most interesting stations to listen to in California, perhaps, are the Federal arc stations on the West Coast. For clear, fast sending, these stations are unexcelled. It is possible to send a telegram from Los Angeles to Seattle or Portland and receive an answer within an hour, which is usually faster than the same message and answer would take over ordinary telegraph lines.

Naval arc stations at San Diego (NPL,) San Francisco (NPG,) Annapolis (NSS,) Arlington (NAA,) Tuckerton (NWW,) Sayville (NDD,) New Brunswick (NFF,) Pearl Harbor (NPM,) Guam (NPN,) Darien (NBA) and Cavite, (NPO) can be picked up by the listener in California day or night. Long-wave spark stations at Mexico City (XDA) and in Japan (JJC) can also be heard. These last-named stations are the type that cause a great deal of interference, as the waves sent out by them are very broad.

Alternator stations at Bolinas, Hawaii, and on the East Coast can also be tuned in. Trans-Atlantic communication is carried on by these stations on a large scale. It is fascinating to listen to these various stations. In addition to the American stations, the European trans-Atlantic senders can also be heard, and copied if the static is not too heavy.

A single audion tube receiving set is all that is necessary to listen to these distant stations which come in with surprising clearness.

NEGLECT SEWER AIDS

Authorities Leave Automatic Flushers in Storehouse

Councilman Mushet yesterday started an investigation regarding the reason why several hundred automatic sewer flushers which the city bought more than a year ago are lying in a municipal storage yard.

"We hear much talk of our overloaded main outfall sewer," said Councilman Mushet. "If these sewer flushers were placed in the sewer and properly regulated they would materially reduce the burden on the sewer."

The Council will investigate the cost of installing of the flushers.

ACCUSED PAYS FEES

Joe Figelman, said by the police to be a notorious pickpocket, according to the police, yesterday afternoon paid $50 jury fees in Police Judge Chessbro's court when a mix-up in Figelman's affairs resulted in the nonappearance of any attorney to represent him. Figelman is charged with vagrancy.

FLOOD AIR RIFTS WITH HARMONY

"Times" Musical Artists Broadcast Entertainment in Evening Program

Matilda Gooding and Grace Grubbe singing to the piano accompaniment of Georgiella Lay, flooded the air with harmony yesterday, broadcasting from The Times radiophone.

Ampico piano numbers and a special news bulletin service, were broadcast in the program, beginning at 1:15 p.m.

Artists and the musical program sent yesterday, follows:

Matilda Codding, sand "O Sole Mio," by E. di Capua; "To You," by Rodecker, and "How Can I Leave Thee," folk song.

Miss Grace Grubbe sang "Shadow Song," aria from Dinorah," by Weber; "California," by Ellen Beach Yaw, and "Wings in the South," by Scott.

Miss Georgiella Lay played two solos: "Venice and Naples," Tarantella and Canzonette, Liszt, and "Menuet," by Beethoven.

Mountain Park Site Purchased by the County

With the payment of $62,000 for 560 acres the county yesterday acquired a beautiful site for a public park high up in the San Bernardino Mountains.

The park is located among the big pines in the northeastern portion of the county, at an elevation of 7000 feet, and to enjoy the camping privileges, a permit must be obtained. There is plenty of water for domestic purposes, it is stated, and a good road leads to the park.

The way to reach the park is through Cajon Pass. The park is ninety-six miles from Los Angeles and thirty-six miles from San Bernardino. Supervisor Bean says that as soon as three miles of the mountain road are completed by the prison gang, the trip may be made in automobiles running in high.

The Supervisors are enthusiastic about the acquisition of the park. The people of the county who want to take their families on a camping trip will find there an ideal spot for a rest, they state.

WIFE CHARGES MANY FAULTS

Awarded Divorce After Listing Husband's Shortcomings

Rose Dalton, who was granted a divorce from Harry H. Dalton in Judge Hahn's court yesterday, declared that her husband was taciturn and disagreeable, allowed her $1 a week; bought her only two dresses during their married life; refused to buy her any shoes; boarded at her parent's home; nagged; complained of the food, and declared that for the price he was paying they ought to get better things to eat.

ELECTRICAL WIZARDS OF EAST HERE

California Blazing Trail for Nation, Says Head of Association

"Electrical men from all over the United States, and in fact, the world, have to come to California to see and learn of the latest achievements in their own industry," said Frank W. Smith, president of the National Electric Light Association and vice-president of the United Light and Power Association and vice-president of the United States Light and Power Company of New York City, on his arrival at the Ambassador yesterday afternoon, to attend the convention of the Pacific Coast Electrical Association, which convenes there tomorrow. Mr. Smith was accompanied from New York by Mrs. Smith, M. H. Aylesworth, executive manager of the National Electric Light Association, William Onken, Jr., editor of the Electric World, and a recognized authority on industrial economics and electrical engineering.

Mr. Smith and his party were welcomed by President A. B. West, of the Pacific Coast Electrical Association, who will preside at the convention. Among others who were at the Ambassador to greet the distinguished guests were: B. H. Ballard, vice-president and general manager of the Southern California Edison Company; A. Emory Wishon of Fresno, general manager of the San Joaquin Light and Power Company and Dr. Robert Sibley of San Francisco, editor of the Journal of Electricity and Western Industry.

"I do not believe the people of California realize," said Mr. Smith, "how prominently the activities of the electrical companies of their State stand forth before the men of this country who are engaged in power development and in making electricity perform all of the many offices which it is doing in all lines of human endeavor. Your problems of developing electricity from your mountain streams is the most gigantic undertaking that is now being achieved anywhere on the American continent. Not only from a physical standpoint, but from a technical standpoint you are doing great things, doing them faster, more scientifically and economically than they are being done anywhere else so far as my knowledge of industry runs. In a word, California is blazing the trail for the United States, and I believe for the world in its electrical achievements and that is why I have crossed the continent to be present at this great convention which I understand will be attended by over 1000 men, each of whom, in his own way, is regarded as a pioneer in a work which we are all watching."

Husband Killed Man in Texas, Wife Charges

When Mrs. Agnes Stewart declared in Judge Summerfield's court yesterday that her husband, William W. Stewart, had killed a man about fifteen years ago, Mr. Stewart admitted it. He said the man had betrayed his home.

"Down in Texas, where I come from," he said, "it is considered honorable."

Mrs. Stewart further declared that one of Mr. Stewart's wives had committed suicide. She said he chased her from her home one night while she was partially disrobed and that she was compelled to seek refuge from him.

The hearing for alimony and the custody of their children developed that the Stewarts married in Oklahoma City in 1910. They were divorced last November; subsequently remarried and came to Los Angeles. She is his first and third wife. The court granted her $10 a week alimony and continued the question of the custody of the children until next Monday.

Former Pet of Peggy Joyce to be Given Away

"Coco," the little sleeve monkey, who formerly had the honor of being carried in the sleeve of Peggy Joyce, but who was replaced in her fickle fancy by a silken-haired poodle, will be given away tonight at the formal opening of the Ambassador Cocoanut Grove.

Peggy carried "Coco" around in her sleeves for months, until she tired of him, whereupon she sent him to a New York pet store.

On a recent visit east Dorothy Dalton was presented with the little animal, who weighs just one pound and six ounces.

The manner of selection of a new mistress for "Coco" will be one of the surprises at the Ambassador this evening.

LINCOLN, May 29.—Presentation of his ten-acre Lincoln estate, Fairview, to the Lincoln Methodist Hospital board by William J. Bryan was announced in Methodist church pulpits here today. Formal presentation occurred Saturday. The Bryan home is to be remodeled immediately for use as a hospital.

WILSON TO FACE TRIAL AS SLAYER

The charge of robbing a United States mail truck of approximately $500,000 in money, bonds and other securities, for which Herbert Wilson is now held by the Federal authorities, was yesterday taken from the calendar in Judge Bledsoe's court and indications are that it never will be pressed.

The dropping of the charge, temporarily, is the result of the death of Wilson's "pal," Herbert R. Cox, in an attempted escape from the County Jail on April 9, last. Wilson, who fired on deputies who were endeavoring to frustrate the escape, is asserted to have fired the shot that killed Cox. Wilson now is held on a charge of murder.

Cox was the chief prosecution witness against his "pal," Wilson. With his death, the prosecution was deprived of the principal means of convicting Wilson. The robbery charge was dropped from the calendar yesterday on motion of Asst. U. S. Atty. Lissner.

Federal officials do not deny that the asserted killing of Cox by Wilson deprives them of their principal source of information against Wilson. He will be placed on trial for his "pal's" murder. In the event of a conviction the robbery charge may be dismissed. If he is acquitted an attempt may be made to convict him for robbery even without the dead man's testimony.

In the absence of Asst. U. S. Atty. Herron, it could not be learned definitely whether the robbery charge would be dismissed or not.

INVESTIGATE POISONING OF YOUTH

Victim Dies in Receiving Hospital; Said to be Son of Chicago Broker

Police are investigating the case of Raymond King Emtwistle, 22 years of age, who died yesterday morning at the Receiving Hospital from the effects of poisoning. A preliminary report of the case made by Officers Davis and Adams of the Flying Squadron stated that Emtwistle apparently took the poison with suicidal intent.

Later developments were to the effect that the youth was the son of a wealthy Chicago broker, J. M. Emtwistle. His Chicago address was given as 5434 Hyde Park Boulevard.

According to Officers Davis and Adams Emtwistle was taken to the Rosslyn Hotel by an unidentified citizen, who told hotel authorities that he had found the youth lying in the street. Emtwistle was given emergency treatment by the house physician. Later he was removed to the Receiving Hospital in the police ambulance. Hospital records stated he was then in an unconscious condition. He died several hours later. The body was taken to the Bresee undertaking establishment.

Police Surgeon Saverien, who treated Emtwistle, declared that the broker's son visited the Receiving Hospital early Sunday evening and made a request for a dose of morphine. His request was refused, Dr. Saverien said.

SAND EXCAVATIONS AT PARK PROTESTED

COMPLAINT BY RESIDENTS CAUSES STATEMENT TO BE ISSUED

As a result of protests made by residents near Elysian Park against the excavation work being done by foundrymen on park property to get molders' sand, Park Commissioner Griffin yesterday made the following statement:

"Some time ago representatives of the foundries of Los Angeles appeared before the park board and stated that the supply of molders' sand in this vicinity was practically exhausted, and that as a deposit of the sand had been found in Bishop's Canyon at Elysian Park, asked permission to excavate there and remove it. After an investigation, the board, on the 10th inst., adopted a resolution giving any citizen permission to excavate for molders' sand in Bishop's Canyon, the city to receive 25 cents for each cubic yard of sand removed.

"The commissioners held that the excavation work will in no way injure or interfere with the use of the park property, as the canyon is practically unused. Bishop's Road is not extended to the point where the excavation work is being done. The permission to excavate for the sand is revocable at any time the commissioners desire, on a showing that the work is interfering with the development of the park property."

A property owners' petition protesting against the excavation of dirt and sand at the park was filed yesterday with the City Council, and the matter will be heard by the Council's Welfare Committee tomorrow afternoon at the City Hall. The protest, which is headed by G. R. Comte of 959 Yolo Drive, asks the Council to "frustrate attempts of private interests for destroying the natural beauties of Elysian Park."

Late Hours at Office Lead to Divorce Court

Many men have said that they were detained at the office when they arrived home late for dinner and "have gotten away with it."

A. Perry Miller did not, according to his divorce complaint filed yesterday against Flossie C. Miller. In his action, Mr. Miller states that it was necessary for him to remain overtime at his office quite frequently, and that when he did, his wife would upbraid him for being out with other women.

In his complaint he states that during recent years it has been necessary for him to get up early in the morning, get his own breakfast and dress their two children. He resented this, he said. The complaint was prepared by Attorney Leo D. Daze.

WOMAN PHYSICIAN IS GIVEN HIGH HONOR

IN THE DARK

Looks as if the Invisible Empire were taking steps to expand its invisibility. What kind of an empire is a thing that cannot be found with a spyglass.

NOSE COMPANY

Fresno county is to have a woman as fire warden. The lady should at least be an authority on handling hose. Likewise she would be very much put out did any guilty fire escape.

THE OUTSIDERS

France does not expect to be represented at The Hague conference, either. With Uncle Sam still an outsider the absentees from the gathering will be quite impressive.

MATTER OF TIME

One of the old associates of Buffalo Bill and one of the very best riders the world has ever known was killed the other day by falling from his horse. Even the pitcher is said to go too often to the well.

ON THE HOG

Pork that was on the hoof in the Chicago stockyards on May 16 was on the table at Claridge's in London on May 26. This shows what the lightning express and the ocean greyhound can accomplish in the way of killing time.

TOOK A TUMBLE

The human fly, who turned handsprings on the cornices of skyscrapers and draped himself on window ledges sixteen flights up, fell from a one-story building at Burbank and broke his ankle. If there must be a real fall it is well to pick out a one-story building.

STANDING PAT

The Socialists of Milwaukee are once more nominating Victor Berger for Congress. The fact that the Representatives regularly vote to exclude him from membership in their body makes no difference to the Socialists. They don't want to learn anything.

PLACING THE BLAME

The Uruguay Assembly is about to pass a law which will make the Cabinet responsible for any and all departmental expenditures beyond the authorized budget. That's the system! Make Secretary Mellon pay the nation's bills and have Secretary Weeks keep up the army out of his own pocketbook.

HIGH FINANCE

Because of army and navy expansion France will this year spend four billion francs more than her income. For a nation that is already forty billions in the red this is a program that invites the critical consideration of international financiers. It is a situation that would embarrass even a $40-a-week reporter.

WIRELESS CROOKS

With the aid of wireless sharpers have been able to beat the bookmakers. Reports of the races in Paris were sent by experts to Vienna by radio ahead of the telegraph and bets were laid with Vienna bookmakers after the race was over. If the Austrian money had been worth more the sharpers would have made a lot.

THE PEACE PRIZE

The Swedish Parliament expects to revise the rules governing the Nobel prize awards to do away with the peace prize. What seems to be the idea? Don't folks want peace any more or is nobody working to that end? Or is it that there are so many rivals for the prize that it is desired to avoid international jealousies in making the award? It is hoped that the latter conclusion is correct.

SHINING THE CITY

With 1000 new policemen, eight more judges assigned to criminal cases and ten trained assistants added to the prosecuting attorney's staff Chicago is indicating a real purpose to halt the wave of crime. If the unions do not clean up their homes there will be some experts to do it for them and it will be done with a firm hand. An earnest effort will be made to make Chicago safe for both Democrats and Republicans.

MUSHROOM MARRIAGE

In the local divorce courts three cases of mushroom marriage were heard in one day. In these cases love's dream came and was over in the span of a few hours. When marriage is a one-day affair it cannot be said to be a beautiful thing. In one instance the husband disappeared on the morning following the wedding and has not been seen since. In another the young couple met on Friday, courted on Saturday, were wed on Sunday and parted on Monday. In another case the wife fled from the minister's house right after the wedding and never even kissed the new husband good-by. Almost every day there are similar cases. Marriage seems to be a good deal like getting vaccinated. About half the time it doesn't take. People do not appear to think any more about getting married than they do about going to the movies. When a man gets up in the morning he doesn't know whether he will get him a shave or a new wife. It seems to be a case of easy come, easy go. With the divorce courts working overtime, getting unhitched is the most popular of indoor sports.

MEMORIAL DAY

Those who serve their country in her hour of need shall be remembered in living green.

With the recurrence of each Memorial Day the men and women of America relinquish their normal program. They put aside the cares or customs of the hour in order to attest their fealty to those who bore the flag of the republic on bloody fields.

It is a day for both memory and decoration.

While recollections of Appomattox were still fresh the dwellers in some sections of both the North and South had designated a day on which they might fitly strew flowers upon the graves of those who had made the supreme sacrifice. By some form of common understanding this day was May 30.

The scope and thought of the day expanded.

When Gen. John A. Logan was Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic he issued general orders designating May 30, 1868, as a day which should be set aside "for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country." This was accompanied by the hope and suggestion that the day be thus dedicated from year to year. So it became accepted as Decoration Day.

In 1882 the Grand Army submitted Memorial Day as the proper designation and it was so adopted and became a legal holiday in most of the States of the Union. The first State to accept Decoration Day as a legal holiday was Rhode Island. This was in 1874. The recognition extended from year to year as Memorial Day until it was established in all the States of the Union save Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Texas. Although the South accepted and respected the day, it was held as mainly belonging to the North So from year to year the survivors in the thinning lines of blue have assembled for the purpose of marking anew with blossoms the graves of comrades for whom "Taps" have sounded.

Now that there is no cleavage of North and South it is seemly that all America should unite this day in paying this green tribute to the soldier dead—no matter on what field or in what war the fallen had fought.

The echoes of the booming cannon of the Civil War are now nigh sixty years old. They are but as a faint whisper. The men who wore the blue and gray are few. Their steps are apt to be feeble. Forty years ago a considerable majority of the American Congress had served in the armies of the North and South. Today there is but one survivor of the northern armies on the floor of Congress. This is our own capable and competent representative, Capt. Henry Z. Osborne. His step is not yet halting, though years are his portion.

But as the survivors gather to fife and drum and wend their way with blossoms to the graves of their comrades, let the whole nation pause and participate. Let the thought find lodgment that, no matter how ominous the call; no matter how tragic the emergency; no matter how dark the shadow on the progress of the republic, a host of patriots will spring from the soil to sustain the Star Spangled Banner in all its purity and splendor.

Give something of this day to those who have died in exemplification of this mighty truth:

"Under the sod and the dew—
Waiting the judgment day—
Love and tears for the Blue;
Tears and love for the Gray."

MORE SPIRIT GLIMPSES

Hardly a day passes without further illumination concerning the spiritland falling from the lips of Dr. Conan Doyle. He must have a flashlight going all the time.

Or perhaps he has a research party on the trail.

At any rate, we are daily gaining fresh advices as to the social activities in the life beyond. It seems to be rather nice over there. The afterworld is not a nebulous place of dreams. It is a series of concentric spheres. Dwellers in the spirit world advance from one circle to another just as movements might be made on a chess board. The law of relativity so operates that to the ethereal body all the scenery, the furniture and surroundings seem as solid and substantial as in the earthly life. You can take the piano and the davenport with you if you want to.

The life beyond is a progression from one sphere to a higher one by a process of spiritual growth, and as we pass on we take with us those things we love.

There is a conception of their presence, at any rate.

So it is that if a man had several wives in this life and has loved them all he would still have them with him. According to Dr. Doyle, they would all live in harmony. Sex disappears. It is submerged in personality. But relatives and companions who have been separated on earth through barriers of hatred, envy or wrong will form groups of their own. In other words, in heaven you find what you want and those you love. What you dislike simply isn't there—or at least you cannot see it. In that way each soul would make its own heaven. Some lovable spirits might be in thirty or forty individual heavens at the same time.

According to the testimony of Conan Doyle, even dumb animals that are loved on earth can be taken into the afterworld by their masters. They may not really be there, but the spirit senses their presence as completely as in real life. In that way one may still have good old Fido with him in the spirit world and the animal will not be required to wear a muzzle, either. It begins to look as if the much-beloved Dobbin would also have a chance in heaven. The folks will be glad to turn in the family Ford in order to get a gentle horse to drive around with in the hereafter. If a lady loves her pet Angora the cat will be with her in the other life. But it will not bother other souls. They will not see it. If you take your favorite bloodhound with you across the Styx its barking will not disturb the shade of Diogenes. He simply will not hear it.

In the spirit world we see the faces we love; we hear the sounds we love and the fragrance we desire is upon the air. Perhaps that is why music is always associated with heaven. Most people like music. The beauty is that the heavenly host will be furnishing each individual soul with the music most desired. While one is listening to the stately passages of the New World Symphony some plebeian soul may be indulging a bit of jazz.

And the same band would be playing all the time.

It seems impossible to imagine any jazz in heaven, but in the way Dr. Doyle has it figured out it might be possible. The beauty of it is, however, that you wouldn't hear it if you didn't want to.

That is why they call it heaven.

Dr. Doyle says that the visitors we have had from the spirit world are always those we deeply love. For that reason we will only see those we love in the other land. Our spiritual eyes will continue to be impressed by the scenes we love. As love is the dominant note in this world, so will it be the key to the hereafter.

According to the theory of Dr. Doyle, the spirit world will offer few surprises. As the soul passes from each circle to a higher one it takes with it those things it loves. When the inner circle is reached there may not be very much left.

But it is a matter of much consolation to realise that life in the spirit world begins by being so comfortable and homelike.

ALSATIAN PERVERSITY

Ever since 1870 Alsace has enjoyed romantic martyrdom. Under German rule it won the sympathy of the world—a captive nation, doomed to national slavery, crying ever for restoration to its beloved France.

But now that it is free, restored to the arms of France, safely back in the family, it can't quite shed that sense of martyrdom under which it has thrived for so long. It had acquired a pleasant distinction in the role of protest, learned to do it rather well. Nursed its grievances with rather splendid heroics—and liked the sympathy entailed.

Hence we have a humorously illuminating article by a Frenchman, Mons. S. de Callais, in the Paris Current-Affairs Fortnightly, setting forth some amusingly ironical situations in Alsace. The French press is alive with Alsatian grievances and complaints and no two of them agree. There seems to be quite a considerable regret for some of the hated German "efficiency," under which so much of their commerce and industry thrived; for many of the German customs and systems which, although they do not exactly pertain today in Germany, were highly successful prior to 1914. But at the same time they hold it a grievance that numerous German officials have been kept in office and there is quite a marked disposition to subject the German Alsatians to the same sort of discrimination under which French-Alsatians suffered under German rule.

One Alsatian newspaper remarks bitterly that "There are some folks who consider that Alsace should be treated precisely like Brittany, Normandy or Savoy!" A condition doubtless which Brittany, Normandy and Savoy entirely approve. But Alsace, the released martyr, evidently considers itself entitled to special privileges.

One humorous incident brings the situation forth in an amusing light. The little village of P—— furnished France with a great many volunteers and it was anxious to erect a memorial to these fallen heroes. The monument committee wished to have the names of these Alsatian soldiers engraved on the base of the memorial. However, local families, whose sons had fallen while fighting on the German side, protested that the names of their boys be included. This was too much for the authorities and permission was refused. Then the whole country was up in arms, threats were made that the names would be erased at night. Finally the monument appeared bearing only the names of the monument committee!

The situation is also complicated by the fact that so many German Alsatians have French wives and French Alsatians German wives. Hence the younger generation to quite a considerable number has no particular passionate patriotism for France or hatred of Germany. They feel pleasantly free to criticise either or both with equal zest. And since "kicking" has become one of the pet indoor sports in Alsace for, lo, these many years, they just kick anyway—to the utter disgust of the French rescuers, who naturally expect nothing but wholehearted gratitude for bringing the province back into the fold. These frequent comparisons anent efficiency of administration, past and present, are apt to get on their nerves.

"Our recovered brothers," writes the Frenchman, "remind me of members of a family who spend their time criticising each other to strangers—complaining of their father's tyranny or their mother's narrow-mindedness—without the slightest thought of deserting the fireside circle."

So Alsace is a martyr still—but without the romantic glamor of enemy tyranny to justify it. It will go hard with Alsace if she cannot learn how to laugh.

THE CHRISTIAN GENERAL

An important part in the victory of Wu Pei-fu in China seems to have been played by the Christian Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang, who is a Methodist. From the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions we learn that he rules his troops and his province with great firmness. Smoking, drinking, gambling and profane language are forbidden in his army. But he can be mild when the occasion requires; in one of the civil wars a few years ago, after forcing a hostile army to surrender, he gave all his prisoners car fare home—an expedient which in Chinese warfare would seem to be politic as well as humane. He has just sent to Gen. Wu a flask of distilled water—a gift sure to make glad the heart of Feng's fellow-Methodist and war lord, W. H. Anderson.

Christianity can be all things to all men, and just now China perhaps needs Christians like Cromwell more than Christians like St. Francis. A great deal of articulate China has lately learned that, abhorrent as it seems to the best Chinese tradition, the only way to get along in the modern world is to win battles. If Christianity is a success from this pragmatic viewpoint, we should be able to look for a rapid spread of the gospel in China.—[New York Times.

COLD LIGHT

Purely from a scientific standpoint the cold light discoveries of Prof. E. Newton Harvey of Princeton University are of great importance. Whether an immediate practical application of the knowledge he has gained is likely at this time is problematical and unimportant.

He has demonstrated that cold light is possible and is prepared to demonstrate that he has found a way to make luciferin, the light-giving protean substance of animal origin, continue to glow for a long period. His aim now, and the aim of all scientists similarly interested, is to produce luciferin by artificial means. When they can do this human civilization soon will find a way to accomplish what lightning bugs have always done.

When that day comes our interest in coal strikes and even in the price of coal will be less keen.—[New York Tribune.

Possible Reason

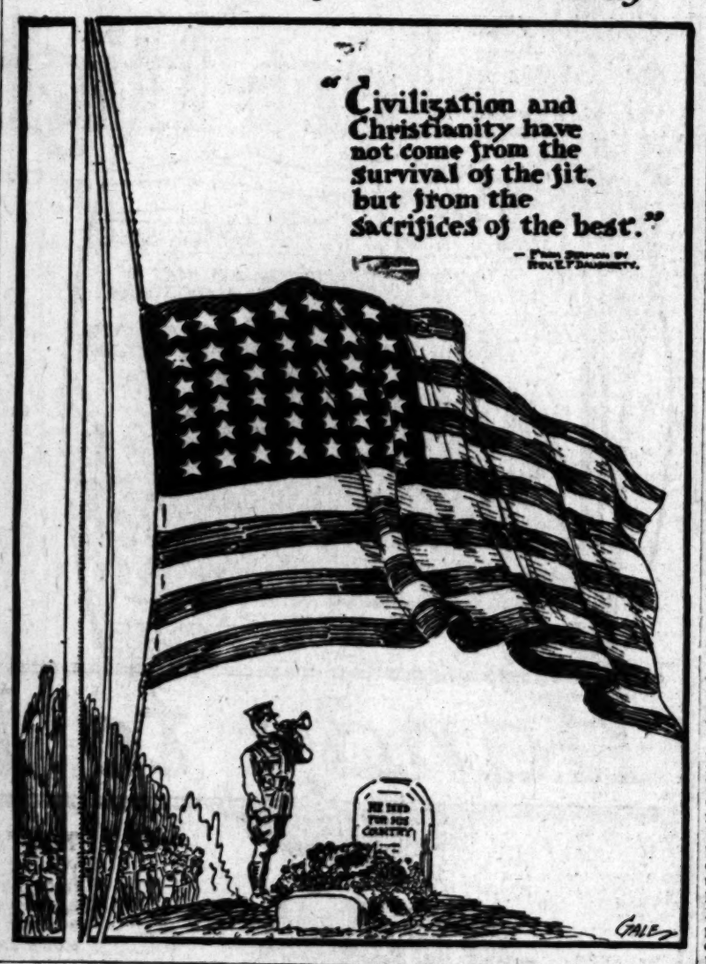
The swallow-tail coat has come back into fashion, so the New York fashion experts say. Of course, the fact that it has two large pockets has nothing to do with it.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

RIPPLING RHYMES

THE OLD DOCS

Oft when ailing I recall doctors of the days gone by, who from death would take a fall when I seemed inclined to die. There was good old Dr. Storm, who would come up in his gig, when the colic racked my form and my agony was big. When he'd filled me up with dope he would say, "I'll do my best; with his sickness I can cope if he's given perfect rest. Do not let him walk a step, let his sleep be long and sweet, and I'll stake my well-known rep that he'll soon be on his feet." There was sense in being ill in those bright days gone so long, when the sawbones said, "Be still! Rest till you are well and strong!" Now the doctor comes to me, looking learned and grim and wise, and he says aloud, says he, "What you need is exercise! Indolence will cook the goose of the huskiest of men! You are moldy from disuse—walk eight miles or, better, ten! I could give you piebald pills, I could give you potions pink, but you'd better climb the hills on your rusty legs, I think. Go and saw a cord of wood, go and bale a ton of hay and you'll soon be feeling good and you'll bless me every day." What's the use of being sick when I get this from the doc: "Go and buy yourself a pick and get down and quarry rock!" WALT MASON.

The Lesson of Memorial Day



LEST WE FORGET

BY CHARLES H. WHIPPLE,
Brigadier General U. S. Army, Retired

On a certain Sunday morning in April, 1861, the telegraph wires could be heard repeating the same message all over the country, while the operators sat up in their chairs as if startled by the words the wires were saying. The messenger boys hurried to the city offices, hotels and to churches, where people were assembled for worship. It was an unusual sight to have an usher hand a telegraphic message to the minister as he stood in the pulpit. When he could recover from the shock these were the words he read to his people:

"Our flag has been fired upon.

"Seventy-five thousand troops needed at once.

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

This meant civil war, and so more than two million brave men responded and made up an army grander than any that ever shook the earth with its tread. President McKinley said: "We have the remnant of this old magnificent army and we have as allies in any future wars the brave men who fought against us on southern battlefields. The army of Grant and the army of Lee are together. They are one now in faith, in hope and in an invincible patriotism. In justice strong, in peace secure, in devotion to the flag all one."

Today the honored few who still live, veterans of that Grand Army of the Republic, live over in memory the scenes of those thrilling days, and they know, as the present generation cannot know, what it cost to save the Union. It is the best of the young manhood of our country who go to war in her defense. And again it is often the most heroic of these who throw themselves into the very jaws of death to drive back the foe. It is therefore the flower of our manhood that we honor on Memorial Day and hold them up as examples of patriotism to coming generations. The origin of Memorial Day we owe to a gallant hero of the Civil War—Gen. John A. Logan. In January, 1868, he was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and was twice re-elected to that position. It was during his first term of office that he issued the order, which he often alluded to as the proudest act of his life—setting apart the 30th of May "as a day in memory of the soldiers who lost their lives to perpetuate the Union—a day on which to decorate their graves and keep in mind their glorious deeds." The order was sent out from the Adjutant-General's office, Washington, D. C., May 5, 1868. I quote a few of Gen. Logan's patriotic utterances, which ring true in every loyal heart today:

"We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. If other hearts grow cold in this solemn trust, ours shall keep it well, as long as the light of life remains to us. Let us, in this solemn presence, renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us, a sacred charge upon a nation's gratitude—the soldier's widow and orphan.

"We scatter flowers upon the graves of our soldiers and upon the waves of the ocean in memory of sailors who sleep in the silence of the deep. Memorial Day expresses the great significance of our act. It means that our thought of them is fragrant with gratitude that can never die and that if our country calls we will answer as they did, in loyal service, and if need be in the supreme sacrifice. More and more we hate war, but more and more we honor the best and bravest of our sons who gave their lives in the cause of patriotism. Memorial Day must teach the younger generation gratitude and reverence and bring comfort to bereaved hearts in the assurance that the nation will never cease to honor our dead heroes."

We owe much to the American Legion, veterans of the World War, for helping to carry out this spirit They are a power for good deeds, a blessing to their country and today are caring for the graves of their fallen brothers-in-arms, wherever they are sleeping.

Over and over again we read the wonderful words of our martyred President, Abraham Lincoln, as he stood on the battlefield of Gettysburg:

"It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain." . . .

"Rest, comrades! rest and sleep!
The thoughts of men should be
As sentinels, to keep Your rest from dangers free.

"Your silent tents of green
We deck with fragrant flowers;
Yours has the suffering been,

THIS IS THE DAY

In the year 1868 Gen. John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, issued a proclamation setting aside this day as an annual occasion for decorating the graves of comrades who died in the defense of their country during the Civil War. From this has sprung the general observation of Memorial Day as a solemn tribute to those whose world work has been worthily completed. Since the World War Memorial Day promises to become universally accepted by all nations associated in the defense of democracy.

America's Hall of Fame was formally opened in 1901. The building, provided for by funds given by Helen M. Gould, stands on the grounds of New York University. A bronze tablet in honor of those selected for commemoration is placed in the hall.

KISSING GAMES

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

To kiss or not to kiss, that is the question. Whether it is nobler in the parents to look the other way and take no special cognizance of the prevalence of hoydenish kissing, thus encouraging what may be a dangerous promiscuousness, or to take arms against a sea of trouble and, by opposing, end them.

This is a subject that is exercising the anxiety of a number of parents in these hectic days. As matters stand at present where two or three boys and girls are gathered together a kissing game is sure to ensue. In fact, as long as most of us can remember this possibly regrettable state of affairs has existed. Many of us who have reached years of hoary discretion and honorable citizenship can remember the furious excitement of "Postman's Knock," "Round the Mulberry Bush," "Copenhagen," "King William," "My Friend's Chair" and dozens of other kissing games which should have left their iniquitous mark upon us, but somehow we insist we have survived comparatively untainted.

However, the cold, harsh fact remains that a censor brigade is out to ban kissing games among the rising generation. They are "viewing with alarm" and "regretting to observe" and "feeling convinced" a great many things anent the decorum of permitting young people any such reckless frivolities. It is positively staggering the "dangerous curves ahead" some of these good people can see just around the corner for a small boy who snatches a kiss from a small girl, probably in a violent scuffle in payment of a "forfeit" or a fictitious postal delivery debt.

They see in these games a most deplorable lowering of the standards of "nice" children which they imply must remove the bloom of innocence from tender childhood and all that sort of thing.

And yet it is in viewing these merry scuffling, hoydenish kissing games and the wild hilarity they occasion that one is moved to appreciate the blessed innocence that does prevail among these youngsters. Surely one must have rather a jaundiced eye to perceive anything different. Surely one must have a hapless memory, indeed, not to recall the blessed days when the gray-haired among us played them so hilariously ourselves.

Isn't it just the least bit of a pity to spoil the fun and taint the gaiety of these, our happy youngsters, with any insinuation of immorality, of "dangerous promiscuousness"? Isn't any evil rather in the minds of the grown-ups, who insist upon viewing these children in the light of their own later jaded knowledge?

Didn't we all play kissing games when we were young—and, if not, didn't we miss something rather hilariously joyous that should have been ours? Are the stern moral bulwarks of the nations today the people who never played kissing games in their youth? One doubts it. We are of the firmest opinion that the very nicest mamas and papas of today, to say nothing of the dearest grandpas and grandmas, all played kissing games in their youth. They could not possibly be so humanly delightful if they had missed such a vital experience.

We decline to believe that those kisses of the kissing games harbor anything but the joyous exuberance of youth. Scuffling, snatched, self-conscious kisses as they are, they probably stand on the angel's records as joyously harmless as a kiss can be. Deny them, ban them, relegate them to the secluded places, taint them with pruriency—unthinkable, odious.

THE WAY TO WIN.

The fellow who knows how to grind gets there in the end. Some people are always looking for skyrockets. They believe human affairs are guided by the genius of luck. They believe in a Santa Claus for adults. They expect to wake up some morning and find themselves wealthy, famous and powerful. But the chariots of fire never appear. The golden lands that lie at the end of the rainbow are never reached. Across their firmament the meteors of great success never flash. If there is anything that a well-balanced man over 30 ought to know it is that genius is generally nothing but hard work disguised in fancy clothes. It's the steady grind day after day in the face of ups and downs that makes a fellow's dreams come true. Constant application, persistency and dogged determination are the qualities that win at last. Shaking dice with fate is a fool's game. History records the visitors of no man who was not a day laborer in life's harvest field. Good luck is the rarest flower that blows, and it blossoms mostly in the gardens of imagination. If your rival is a steady grinder, look out for him.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

OWEN WISTER SAID THESE

Some of the things wrong with America and Americans, pointed out by Owen Wister at the recent dinner of the Academy of Arts and Sciences, were:

Literature has become an effeminate subject in all seats of learning.

We are developing a ragtime religion.

What gifted man with his way to make will now write a book? He will take the newspapers and periodicals, hoping some day to be free. But freedom will not come as soon as age.

There are two sorts of wrong Americans—the sort that is always bragging about his country and the sort that is always apologising for it.

Election will take place next Monday, with polls open from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Commemorating those men who gave their lives in the World War, Caroline Duncan read "In Flanders Field" and "Rest in Peace" preceding the program, a musical one given by pupils of the city schools.

An impressario might sigh and sign checks in vain for such talent as was manifest on the platform yesterday in the group of songs and rhythms by the little 6-year-olds. Boys and girls were all in white, with not even a pink hair ribbon among them. The Hollywood High School Band, under the direction of Charles Jenner, the boys' choir of the Thirteenth-street Junior High School and the Girls' Glee Club were all spontaneously delightful.

Under the direction of Miss Kathryn E. Stone, the fifth grade demonstrated lessons in music appreciation and under the direction of Miss Jennie Jones, sixty-five children from the elementary orchestras played selections in a remarkable way for so young a group, no child being over 12 years of age.

The music department will have as a finale to a series of unusually brilliant programs which has characterized that department during the year, one of exceptional merit. Scenes from the opera "Carmen" will be given in costume by Marie Louise Perry, taking the part of Carmen, Mildred Fairweather, playing Micaela, and John Cargill as Don Jose. The scenes which will be given are the "Habanera," the "Love Duet" from the second act, the Aria, Act III, and the death scene from Act IV.

Preceding the program, Mme. Sprotte will give a short talk on opera and operatic acting. A luncheon at which Mrs. William Mabee will preside, will follow the morning program.

Friday, the Browning department of the club will hold the last meeting, at which Mrs. Bannell Sawyer, noted lecturer, will give an illustrated lecture on "Browning and the Period of the Renaissance." At the luncheon, which is in charge of the Browning department, Mrs. Harry A. Ford will preside.

Wednesday Morning Club

"Shakespeare Day" in the Wednesday Morning Club is a day set "among the high tides of the calendar," when members of the section who have completed the required course, covering four years of critical study of Shakespeare's plays, receive from the club a diploma and the gold pin, the badge of the alumni association.

The graduates of this year were Mrs. Mildred Blair, Mrs. Edyth Merikel and Mrs. Galetta M. Van Valkenburgh.

As a part of the work done in this section, and in addition to the regular study, members of the class prepare a program and present scenes from some of the recently studied plays, an occasion looked forward to by the club, and enjoyed also by friends who never tire of the works of the great dramatist.

This year the program offered, while ambitious, in great measure justified the confidence placed in her students by their instructor, Mrs. H. E. Brett, for "Macbeth" suffered no loss of dignity in the intelligent reading of the lines, while the costuming and action supplied an adequate setting.

A group of scenes from "Romeo and Juliet," featuring the nurse, Romeo's visit to the Friar and subsequent marriage with Juliet were included in the program.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

YOU CAN GAIN

If you are underweight, it is likely—99 acres out of 100—that you have not been eating enough to supply your needs.

The thin person who overeats is as rare as the fat person who undereats. The latter individual I have never met. But the former I have met, in this form—I have met thin individuals who were consuming large amounts of indigestible foods totally unbalanced. But the average thin person, I repeat, does not eat enough for his activities. No matter if he does eat more than some fat person you know of.

In this matter of the amount we eat, each one of us is a law unto ourselves. We cannot compare ourselves to anyone else. We may have more physical work, or we may be older or younger, and we may have other factors that have to do with our nutrition.

So now I say you can eat too little. If you will count the caloric value of your intake, you will find it comes far short of your needs. And if you are going to gain, you must have more than you need for your activities in order to store up a balance in the form of fat.

You will have to learn to count your calories, the same as the F. F. F. It is a necessary part of your training. There are so many ordinary helpings of food that are 100 calories per portion that it is not at all difficult. I know that you cannot memorize a lot of figures. I hate 'em also. But you won't have to do it. And you won't have to know the caloric values accurately. You could not, even if you needed to, unless you were having your food accurately weighed and knew the exact ingredients of them.

But knowing approximately will do the work just as it does with the overweigher. We have a list of 100 caloric portions of food for you at the office, and if you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to us through the paper, we will send it to you. An ordinary slice of bread, one-half inch thick, five ounces of milk, a pat of butter, a large egg, a large orange or apple or pear, two ounces of lean meat, three ounces of lean fish, all are 100 calories each. And the watery vegetables, lettuce, tomatoes, cabbage, celery, etc., are over a pound to the 100 calories.

When you eat a lot of these greens, you see, you are getting very little caloric value. While they are necessary for vitamins and salts and roughage, they are mighty slim fattening foods.

For a safe rule you can remember that a food that is full of calories is full of fat value. One thousand calories of food is equivalent to one-fourth pound of fat. 500 calories to one-eighth pound. Now if you want to annex this amount of fat daily, you must gradually increase the number of calories you are taking until you are getting that amount above what you need. And nature will store it for you in the form of fat.

You need from fifteen to twenty calories per pound of normal weight per day, depending upon your age and activities. The more active you are the more calories you need, naturally; and also th younger you are, the more you need. You will have to work this out for yourself.

Notice that is per normal weight, not what you do weigh. I gave the rule for finding normal weight in the preceding article.

For your convenience, I will give again the caloric value of the different foods in ounces. You can judge the values approximately, and that is all that is necessary.

I have given round numbers so that they can more easily be remembered. Memorize this list:

THE LAST WORD.

BY ALMA WHITAKER

The dear blessed babe. It was quite enchanting to see him standing there before that highly sophisticated Friday Morning Club audience, reading a carefully compiled thesis on romance. He patronized the great literary classics so delightfully. "That magnificent writer William Shakespeare" was conceded to be a master of romance. He gave us a carefully tabulated list of romantic writers through the ages and told us in neat adjectives just how we might appraise them. And he is 21 and has written a sixth-best-seller "Caravan By Night," by Harry Hersey. His manners were charming and I think he felt he had aided very considerably the intellectual struggle of this club of nice middle-aged women towards the light. We were all laughing quietly, but it was good-natured, maternally tolerant laughter. The dear blessed precocious babe.

• • •

H. L. Mencken, super-masculine satirist, is somewhat perturbed about the rectitude of designating one's wife as "Mrs. Jones," insisted of "My Wife." Is it good form?

Mercifully Mme. Elinor Glyn elucidated this tormenting problem for us long since. She considers the woman who calls her husband "Mr." as painfully provincial. It appears there is an accepted formula in such matters among "nice" people." In speaking to an inferior one refers to ones husband as Mr. Jones." To an equal he is "my husband," as also to a superior. And to intimate friends he is "John" or "William" as the case may be.

Hence taking Mme. Glyn as an authority on what is good form in the best circles, Mr. Mencken may rest assured that this formula holds good for husbands also. In speaking to the iceman or the plumber, for instance, it isn't really nice to refer to his wife as 'Gertie." On the other hand if one is talking to Gertie's maiden aunt it isn't good form to refer to Gertie as "Mrs. Jones."

It has been suggested that during the Friday Morning Club's building operations, the Ebell Club should offer the courtesy of its portals to the homeless ones—with a due regard to hospitable reciprocity when Ebell herself rebuilds later on.

But one recalls the story of an aristocratically patriarchal London men's club, whose members were largely bishops, which, during building alterations, enjoyed the hospitality of a rather sporty young men's club in the vicinity of Piccadilly Circus. But the quality of hospitality became somewhat strained when an ebulliently dashing young sportsman, noted for his racing stables, lost a gold-headed cane. "That is what comes of having these d—— bishops about," he remarked.

The Friday Club has gone into the show business for purposes of raising that finishing fund on the $400,000 new clubhouse. Hence they are advertising a vaudeville show for the 31st inst. which is press-agented as including everything from first-class melodrama to grand opera, and every item on the program is the most wonderful and astonishing of its kind ever seen behind the footlights. Such adjectives as "superb," the "clever-est," "thrilling" and "great" are sprinkled all over the program.

Is the Friday Club elevating vaudeville or is vaudeville elevating the Friday Club? Speaking strictly adjectivally.

All my paths are strewn with rose leaves just now. The bushes are shedding their petals in reckless profusion and I feel like a fairy princess when I walk in my domain.

But the Lady who wields the Broom says "Gee, what a mess. I ain't done nothing but sweep up that rubbish for days."

It all depends on the point of view.

I recently had the misfortune to lose in a tussle with a rickety old davenport and it came down with a mighty flop imprisoning both my hands. My female companion screamed steadily on my behalf for a protracted period. After a while I persuaded her to raise the davenport and let me do the screaming.

I merely mention the incident as a little object lesson in the virtue of proper apportionment of duties. It makes such a difference who does which.

In Kenya Colony an interesting legal case has just been decided. A young Masia of 16, named Karuri, laid claim to his brother's widow, her three children, a cow seventy sheep and about $3500. The widow is 35 years old, weighs 200 pounds, and complains that she does not want to belong to the 16-year-old claimant. Her husband, it appears, was regrettably hanged by the government.

The judge declared that the case must be decided according to native custom. Karuri was entitled to the children and the other tangible assets, but he could not have the lady for wife until a few medical formalities had been respected.

After this I think Karuri should join the ranks of our boy authors and tell us all about it. One can't help hoping the lady has a few feminist tendencies—just to make things lively.

People and Their Troubles

EDITORIAL PREACHMENTS

BY JANE DIXON

Mother-in-Law

Mothers-in-law, it seems, are as rampant as ever.

It seems reasonable to believe that after being the subject for uncomplimentary attack in the divorce courts, by the pencils of the cartoonists, in the playwright's stinging lines—mothers-in-law would take the tip and act human, even though it be painful so to do.

But no! Nothing doing on the reformation stuff! Writers won't allow it.

Mother-in-law will go straight on being in-law to the end of the chapter, with an epilogue.

In what the author terms "a study of American life," C. Kay Scott has given to current fiction a startlingly true picture of a prevalent type of mother-in-law.

But mother-in-law, who minces through the pages of the book like a combined edition of Mary Miles Minter and Theda Bara, is here, there and all over the place.

She is addicted to musical comedies, fluffy negligees and food out of season.

When she meets a man mother-in-law assumes the character of baby vamp as naturally as a trained nurse dons her uniform.

Having smashed her own home and driven her husband to regard her as he would a malignant vine of poison ivy, mother-in-law swoops down upon the quiet, happy, prosperous little suburban nest of her son-by-marriage and begins applying her process of disintegration.

She distorts words, situations, personalities until from simple enough casuals they become darksome facts.

She sows the seeds of jealousy.

She appropriates her son-in-law, playing upon his weakness for flattery and maudlin attentions.

In the end she kills the love of the wife for the husband, ruins his business, leaves him drifting down the rapids of dissipation headed for new affairs de coeur and for the waste heap.

C. K. Scott has chosen well his theme of "Blind Mice."

The pity of it is there are admirable types of mothers-in-law who must suffer for the stupidity and venom of this rampant relative.

PLENTY TO THINK ABOUT

And go on marrying her?

Back path as black as the heart of the devil's mistress.

Beginning with such precious gifts as beauty, talent and plural personality, the woman in question burned her way through the pathways of pleasure, destroying everything within her reach.

Talk about the ruthlessness of the Hun!

The Hun is a kind old gentleman with a red apple in his pocket for good little boys when compared with the destructive force of the feminine type designated.

It would be interesting to know, in those quiet hours which come to the least and the worst of us, what thoughts chase themselves across the memory screen of such a woman.

It is interesting to know what she must think of herself—if she can think.

How, suppose you, does she register in her own eyes when she peers into a mirror and sees reflected there the reason for a thousand heartaches, a thousand dissolutions, tens of thousands sneers and ugly thoughts and evil episodes?

Does she see herself a creature of beauty with vine leaves in her hair and garlands in her hand?

Or are her eyes opened for one fleeting second to the dark truth—a human harpy stained with the smudge and smut of her own preying?

Pity? What for? Has she not an ermine coat and a paradise-feathered nest and a new victim?

Again—what are her thoughts when she meets a young mother with clear eyes and loving lips, cradling in her arms that future humanity which will live to glorify the name long after sin and selfishness are dust?

And to think she might have been one of these!

About Cyclones

MONROVIA, May 27.—[To the Editor of The Times.]—An article in your issue of May 23, entitled "Cyclones, Why We Have Them," contains a false assumption which gives rise to a number of geodetic errors on the part of your contributor.

It is true that the movement of the surface of the earth varies in velocity, but not according to its distance from the equator, as stated by the author. The velocity of any point varies with the circumference of the circular plane on which it is situated, parallel to the equatorial plane; and again, the circumference of the circle varies with the radius. Therefore the velocity of any point will vary with the radius of the plane on the periphery of which it is situated. Now the ratio of the radius of any parallel plane to the radius of the equatorial plane is the trigonometrical one of the cosine of the angle of latitude. Hence, if the velocity of a point is one-half the equatorial velocity, that point will be situated in latitude sixty degrees, because cosine sixty degrees is one-half, instead of being in latitude forty-five degrees, as stated in the article.

The slow-moving atmospheric belt in Canada, moving at 400 miles per hour, is in latitude sixty-six degrees, twenty-five minutes, because the cosine of that angle (.4000825) multiplied by 1000 is 400. That is about eight miles south of the Arctic Circle. The 500-mile belt extends across Canada in the latitude of Seward, Alaska, Chilkoot Pass, and the northern boundary of British Columbia, instead of through Wisconsin and Minnesota, which, lying between forty-two degrees, thirty minutes, and forty-nine degrees, north Latitude, will have velocities ranging between 656 miles per hour on the north and 737 miles per hour on the south. The 500-mile belt passes eleven degrees above the northern boundary of Minnesota, or about 760 miles.

The Gulf of Mexico, lying between eighteen degrees and thirty degrees, twenty minutes, is in a zone of velocities between 863 miles per hour on the north and 951 miles per hour on the south, instead of being "where the normal movement is only 700 or 800 miles per hour." Los Angeles, being in thirty-four degrees, five minutes, has an hourly velocity of 828 miles.

These figures may be verified by consulting any table of the natural cosines, and are obtained by multiplying the ratios there found by 1000, the equatorial velocity, that is, by moving the decimal point three places to the right.

The figures of your contributor would have been correct were the northern hemisphere a revolving cone with the North Pole as the apex, but, unfortunately for the argument, the earth is not so shaped, as even Wilbur Glen Voliva will agree. The astronomical and meteorological statements of the article may be correct, but the geodetic are all incorrect. Did the Professor have his head in the clouds, or is he trying to hoax our educated people of Southern California?

W. D. WEIGEL.

Hands it to Hearst

NEEDLES, May 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As an occasional, though somewhat sketchy, reader of the vociferous Hearst morning paper, which appears upon the streets of your fair city each evening, I had formed an opinion that the Hon. William R. was more or less anti-British and intensely pro-American in his views and policies, especially so in regard to the American merchant marine. It is, therefore, with considerable surprise that I note the contents of a dispatch appearing upon the first page of this morning's Times, under a New York date line. The article deals with the probable political aspirations of Mr. Hearst and may be passed without comment as the majority of people will feel little interest in and have but small sympathy for the subject.

The news value of the article, to my mind, and the cause of my astonishment lay in the fact Mr. Hearst was to visit so disreputable (?) country as England and was making the voyage on the Aquitania, which is British-owned, and sails under the British flag. It seems to one of my limited understanding that, if the gentleman felt compelled to visit England and was permitted to do so, he could have arranged for the trip in a vessel sailing under the flag, which was formerly so prominently displayed upon the front page of his paper.

I may be doing Mr. Hearst a wrong in assuming that he does not care to patronize vessels, which are operated, to some extent, by members of the American Legion, former officers and men of the United States Navy, for it may be that Mr. Brisbane has not informed him that there are first-class vessels under the American flag sailing at frequent intervals from New York to English, French and Baltic ports. If this is the case, the matter could be rectified to a certain extent by communicating the facts to Mr. Hearst in time for him to arrange for his homeward voyage in an American bottom.

C. A. DUNKLE.

An Enthusiast

LOS ANGELES, May 25. — [To the Editor of The Times:] Perhaps you may consider this quite a daring move to ask you to publish these following lines, however, I am taking that liberty with much hopes that you may help me, or rather shall I say give me the opportunity to express myself to all who read this through your paper, as I feel Los Angeles to be the greatest artistic and most inspiring center in America.

I came out here just a little over a year ago from New York City to take a special course in oriental dancing at a local school, and although perhaps too young to be an authority on the dance, I hope you might give me the chance to express just what dancing means to me.

My heart goes out with great pity to those who are unfortunate enough not to take part in (if I may say, at least to me) the greatest art there is.

Dancing to me is all that is beautiful, of course, the kind of the highest art, as Isadora Duncan's "Ruth St. Denis" and the Russian ballet, all their dancing is pure and beautiful.

The kind of dancing we have in our modern dance halls is degrading in every respect.

Dancing has brought sunshine, happiness, and all that is beautiful in my life, and I am hoping to bring all that to every one I meet, through all my life.

Some day I am also hoping to write a book on the dance in all its relations of great value to modern civilization.

Q.: How many persons in the United States work? W. G.

A.: The Census Bureau says that 38.4 per cent of the population is engaged in gainful occupations. Only 32,739,315 of the 105,710,620 inhabitants are over 10 years old, and it is found that over half of those who have reached that age are earning money.

Q.: I know of a clever device that has never been patented. Can I take out a patent on it?

W. J. S.

A.: It is impossible to obtain a patent on anything that has been in public use for two years.

Q.: Do plants have sense?

A.: Scientists are of the opinion that plants have senses in that they react to a given stimulus. Not all portions of plants respond equally. There are no definite structures in them corresponding to the nerves of animals, but the conduction is mainly through active parenchyna cells or along such living cells as the sieve tubes or companion cells.

Q.: Is it true that the salary of a Federal employee cannot be attached for debt? M. A.

A.: The salary or wages of a Federal employee cannot be attached for debt. This is not for the benefit of the debtor, but to avoid imposing additional duties and responsibilities upon the disbursing officers of the government.

Q.: What was the first written constitution in this country?

A.: The Wautauga Association, established in 1772 by John Sevier, James Robertson and others, subsequently came to be the State of Tennessee. A written constitution was drafted, the first ever adopted by a community of American-born freemen.

Q.: How long does it take to make raisins of grapes?

H. P. S.

A.: The average time necessary for drying and curing a tray of raisins is three weeks, depending on the weather. The earliest picked grapes dry in ten days, the later ones often taking four weeks or more. In the raisin districts of this country some of the grapes are ripe by the middle of August. The drying season often lasts into November.

TUNNEL WORK IS INSPECTED

Council Committee Checks Up on Progress

Second-Street Tube is Now One-fifth Ready

Clause Protecting City to Govern Extension

The City Council yesterday afternoon took a hand in the city's efforts to force the rapid completion of the Second-street tunnel, when the members of the Public Works Committee personally visited the tube and climbed down shafts and crawled through tunnels to ascertain the actual progress being made.

Contractor John Hayes has asked for a year's extension of time within which to complete the job, and the Board of Public Works has recommended that the extension be granted with the proviso that a definite amount of work be done within the next six months or the city will take action toward forfeiting the contract and the contracting bond and completing the work as a city job.

This was satisfactory to Mr. Hayes, but C. L. Powell, who is financially interested in the contract objected to the amount of work which City Engineer Griffin estimated should be accomplished within the next 180 days as being excessive. So the Councilmen visited the tunnel and made a personal investigation.

The City Engineer estimated that the tunnel is about 20 per cent completed now, and at the end of six months should be 70 per cent completed. Mr. Powell has declared that the speed shown during the past few months has demonstrated the ability of the contractor to rush the work, and that if a flat year's extension were given, the tunnel would be open for use to the public within twelve or fourteen months. From the questions asked at yesterday's meeting by Chairman Wheeler of the Public Works Committee, it is believed that the council is opposed to a flat extension of time without a protective proviso that will insure fast work on the part of the contractor.

The only question apparently that remained to be settled before granting the extension was the amount of work which would be required during the next months in the extension, which it is expected will be granted the latter part of this wek.

George M. Pagcock, managing director of the Business Men's Cooperative Association, who, on behalf of the business men and property owners who have paid for the improvement and desire to see it completed at the earliest possible moment, has been working to speed up action, appeared before the committee yesterday afternoon, and urged that while the contractor be treated fairly and not required to do the impossible, at the same time the city must force fast work on the tube.

POLICE AID IN SEARCH FOR WOMAN

Disappearance of Postal Substation Employee Suggests Foul Play

Fearing that Mrs. Nellie Guthrie, formerly an employee in a postal substation here, who has been missing for five weeks, has met with foul play, her acquaintances caused a second search for her to be started yesterday.

Mrs. Guthrie's disappearance has been under investigation of the District Attorney's office for some time. She had been living at 1222 West Twenty-fifth street with a friend, Mrs. L. E. Pfeifer, who reported to Sheriff Traeger that Mrs. Guthrie had answered an advertisement for a housekeeper in a local newspaper, and had received a telephone message from a man in a downtown hotel. The man is said to have called on Mrs. Guthrie at the postoffice substation. Later she disappeared.

An investigation disclosed that the missing woman's trunks had been sent to the Southern Pacific Station, but were being held. The man who is said to have called upon Mrs. Guthrie is asserted to have denied seeing or knowing anything about her. Mrs. Guthrie, it was reported, had considerable money in her possession when she disappeared. The man interrogated lives in Arizona, it was stated.

Mrs. Guthrie is about 55 years of age, medium in height and rather stout. Her black hair is streaked with gray. She has a ruddy complexion and brown eyes.

Mitchell Love Balm Suit Set for November

The trial of the $10,000 lost love suit of Charles A. Mitchell against S. L. Elkins was set for Mr. Mitchell declared that he had to Judge Hewitt's court yesterday. Mr. Mitchell declared that he had lived happily with his wife until she met Mr. Elkins who is said by the plaintiff to have made violent love to Mrs. Mitchell and to have won her affections. Letters will play a part in the trial of the suit.

Mr. Elkins, in his answer, states that he was the one who was enticed. He says that Mr. Mitchell and his wife entered into a conspiracy to carry out a purported plan of blackmail to extort money from him.

JUDGE RULES IN PAVING CASE

Protection of Law Denied Road-Making Patents

Plaintiff is Expected to Appeal Decision

Industry All Over Country Affected by Opinion

U. S. District Judge Bledsoe yesterday handed down a decision involving purported infringements of what are known as the Warren Brothers' patent roads and pavements.

The decision will be of importance to contractors and others interested in road building, as it denies the protection of the law for the Warren Brothers' patent so far as the road construction pursued by the Thompson Brothers, in and around Fresno, is concerned. The Warren Brothers' patent was a sort of omnibus proposition intended to cover all sorts of road and pavement construction. That the case will be appealed to the United States Circuit Court there can be no doubt, on account of the heavy financial interests involved. The plaintiff was represented by Paul S. Homberger and J. M. Head of Los Angeles, and O. L. Everette of Fresno. Lyon & Lyon of Los Angeles, Bertrand W. Gearhart, District Attorney of Fresno county, and Ray C. Wakefield, Deputy District Attorney of Fresno county, represented the defendants.

AFFECTS NATION

Leonard Lyon, of counsel for the defendants, said the opinion would affect the pavement and road industry all over the United States, resulting, if finally affirmed by the higher courts, in ending the payment of royalties to Warren Brothers, who have had a monopoly of the paving business for years.

Mr. Lyon said that hundreds of thousands of dollars in royalties had been paid to Warren Brothers by the taxpayers of Southern California and especially Los Angeles city and county. This will end if the opinion of Judge Bledsoe runs the gamut of the courts. The Warren Brothers, it is asserted, had the road and pavement business all their own way and there is hardly a city or town in the country that has not paid tribute to the patents owned by the plaintiffs in the Fresno case.

CHARGE INFRINGEMENT

The case was brought by Warren Brothers Company against C. M. Thompson, O. M. Thompson, E. C. Thompson, co-partners, doing business under the firm name of Thompson Brothers, H. E. Vogel and J. B. Hill, the two latter members of the Board of Supervisors of Fresno county. The action was brought on a bill of complaint involving an asserted infringement of a patent road-making process.

The court says: "I am persuaded from all of the facts involved, including an inspection of the pavement produced by the defendants, that the two courses of the pavement produced by them were and are not blended within the meaning of the term as used in the plaintiff's patent. In my judgment, therefore, there is no infringement of plaintiff's patent shown by the product of the defendants. The specifications do not infringe the first claim of the patent."

Judge is Strict in Traffic Law Violation Cases

Out of 139 cases of traffic law violations which appeared in Police Judge Ray L. Chesbro's court yesterday only three were dismissed.

At the same time scores of police officers especially detailed to the work were busily engaged in "tagging" more violators of the city's traffic laws in accord with Chief of Police Oaks's vigorous campaign to make the city "safe for motorists and pedestrians alike."

The charges in the traffic violation cases ranged from cutting corners, speeding and failure to give proper signals, to parking overtime at curblngs. In the speed cases fines of $10, $15, $25 and $30 were imposed. One motorist paid a fine of $250 when found guilty of reckless driving.

Records at the City Prosecutor's office yesterday show that 650 complaints on traffic violations were prepared to come up for hearing in Police Court Wednesday, the 31st inst., and 691 complaints to come up for hearing on June 1.

CONGRATULATES CHIEF

Council Praises Oaks for "Drive" on Traffic Violators

Chief Oaks was congratulated yesterday by the Public Safety Committee of the City Council for his present "drive" against violators of the traffic law. "The road hogs will be more careful now," said Councilman Mallard of the committee, "for these people know that they are being watched." The long-pending question of requiring all automobiles used in Los Angeles to be equipped with speedometers in working order as a means of reducing speeding was referred by the committee to Chief Oaks and to City Prosecutor McConnell for a report.

SENTENCE DEFERRED

Death Penalty Will be Imposed on Police Slayers Friday

William Bringhurst and Willard Thompson, who, under the law, must die, will receive their sentence Friday at 10 a.m. The men were convicted a few days ago of killing Patrolmen Chester and Brett of the Boyle Heights division.

Yesterday the men appeared before Judge Pat Parker for sentence. Their attorney asked for time, and the judge granted them until Friday. At that time, according to the law, he will impose the death penalty.

Santa Barbara Maidens Produce Pantomime

Plan to Entertain Summer Guests

SANTA BARBARA, May 29.—Society buds of Santa Barbara, who have organized "El Chanton Noir" theatrical society, are to stage a pantomime show Wednesday at Recreation Center. The cast is made up of girls from some of the first families, among them Misses Helen and Ethel Harmer, daughters of Alex Harmer, noted artist, whose paintings of California scenes and early Spanish life have found favor over the globe. Miss Georgia Graham is also to take part. Miss Graham is sister of Martha Graham, society dancer, who is just now something of a sensation in Paris and London exclusive sets. She is to be one of those at the Baker-McCormick wedding, which is expected to take place in Paris this June.

Recently the girls gave a puppet show which proved successful as an entertainment, and this success led to the organization of the theatrical society, and the writing of a play by Miss Pilat, one of the troupe, which is to be given in pantomime Wednesday. The girls propose to help entertain the public through the summer with their theatricals.

He had reached the advanced age of 82 years, but had remained active in mind and body up to the time of his last illness. He was engaged in the real estate business in Whittier for about twenty years, and had been active in the upbuilding of the city. He was keenly interested in education and church work.

Mr. Johnson was a native of Waynesville, O., and at the age of 23, with his wife and young son, moved to Oskaloosa, Iowa, where he remained until coming to California. He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Dora Avery Johnson, and one son, Allen Clifford Johnson, president of the Whittier National Bank.

Funeral services will be held at the Friends' Church, of which he was an active member for so many years, Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30. Rev. Frank Dell, pastor, will preach the funeral sermon, and will be assisted in the funeral services by Dr. Thomas Newlin, Dr. A. Rosenberger, and Dr. Charles Tebbetts, each one having been president of Whittier College in the earlier history of the school.

Mr. A. C. Johnson will accompany the body of his father east to Oskaloosa, Iowa, where interment will be made in the family plot. A brief service will be held and Dr. Henry Edwin McGrew, president of Penn College at Oskaloosa, will probably preach the funeral sermon.

PATROLMAN BATTLES DRINK-CRAZED MAN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, May 29.—While several trusties looked on, Patrolman L. A. Lusk battled a crazed Mexican for five minutes before the officer, with the aid of others who finally came to his assistance, could subdue the maniac and put him in a straight-jacket.

The prisoner, who had been arrested for drunkenness, was being removed from the "drunk" tank when he suddenly attacked the officer. Lusk could have subdued the Mexican with his club during the early stages of the fight, but refrained from injuring him. The crazed man then gained the upper hand for a time and only the arrival of fellow officers prevented possible serious injuries to Lusk.

LONG BEACH, May 29.—A victim of a sudden attack of heart failure, Capt. Albert De Ruiz, for twelve years City Engineer of Long Beach and a naval officer for fifteen years prior to that time, died today at his home, 805 New York street. Capt. De Ruiz resigned from the municipal service a year ago to engage in private work. He was 69 years old. He was usually known in Long Beach as Capt. De Ruiz. His complete name of Castilian Spanish origin was Carlos Alberto Jose De Jesus De Ruiz Y Berault De St. Maurice. He was born at Havana, Cuba, the son of a wealthy planter, Domingo Leoncio De Ruiz Y Mantanzas, who was born in Cuba in 1822, and died there in 1900. The father descended from Spanish nobility and although he owned large estates in Cuba, was an American citizen and owned a fine home in New York City.

Capt. De Ruiz, whose title came from his naval service, entered the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1871 as an appointee of President Grant and graduated in 1875, then entering active service. As an officer of the Navy he participated in cruises to Europe, Asia, Egypt, the South Seas, South America, Alaska and the West Indies, retiring in 1885.

Surviving is the widow, Elizabeth De Ruiz; one son, Richard Tyler De Ruiz; a daughter, Miss Pauline De Ruiz, living at the family home on New York street, and an attache of the municipal public service department and the widow's daughter, Mrs. Mae Elizabeth Dingman Keyfel, chief clerk of the City Public Service Department. Mrs. Smart was born in Monroe, Iowa, Oct. 27, 1860. She was active in the work of the Congregational Church, of which she was a member, and of the Ebell Club of Long Beach.

In 1919 she was president of the Ladies' Guild of the Congregational Church and for two years had charge of the decorating of the church for services.

CROSSING ACCIDENT

Three Injured When Train Hits Automobile Truck

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PASADENA, May 29.—Two persons, both negroes, and one a woman, were probably fatally hurt here this afternoon in the collision of a motor truck with a Union Pacific freight train at the Pepper-street crossing of the north side freight line.

Mrs. Birdie W. Morgan, aged 30 years, residing at 749 Winona street, had her left leg run over and received internal injuries. J. L. S. Zion, a negro laborer, received a fractured skull. Both are at Pasadena Hospital, where it is said they have slight chance for recovery. They were riding on a motor truck driven by Edward P. Morgan, negro, Mrs. Morgan's brother-in-law. He jumped and escaped injury.

Engineer William Horner of the Union Pacific freight train said that the motor truck struck his engine when it was half way across Pepper street. Morgan said that when the oncoming train loomed in front, his sister-in-law grabbed the steering wheel. The motor truck turned and careened against the locomotive.

LITTLE WOMAN GAINS 15 POUNDS AND FEELS FINE

Mrs. Harvey Was so Run Down She Tipped Beam at Only 100 Pounds and Health Was in Wretched Condition.

"A friend of mine got me to try Tanlac, and it proved to be the turning point in my health," said Mrs. Hattie Harvey, 2558 San Pablo Ave., Oakland, Cal.

"I had an awful case of stomach trouble, of long standing. After eating the lightest meal I became nauseated, could scarcely retain a thing on my stomach and gas would press up into my chest, nearly choking me, and causing my heart to palpitate dreadfully. I had splitting headaches, my back right over my kidneys felt as though it would break in two, and I was almost frantic at times with my nerves, I could sleep but very little, and as I could find nothing to help me, I got so weak and run down I only weighed a hundred pounds.

"But Tanlac has simply made a new woman of me. I just feel fine all the time, and today I weigh a hundred and fifteen pounds. My gratitude to this great medicine is unbounded."

ROTARY POWER PLANT AT WORK

Convention Headquarters Busy on Plans

Secretary-General Due Here Saturday

Arrangements Made to Care for 4000 Guests

Directing a plant with separable parts, any section of which can be set up anywhere in a few hours and pointed to as the power station of the Rotary Club, William A. Graham, Jr., of Chicago, convention secretary of the Rotary, is one of the busiest men in this city just now.

Mr. Graham has headquarters in Chicago, but for several months each year he is in some other metropolitan city, building up the great system which conducts the annual convention of the club. He has been here with an able corps of assistants since last January 1, with headquarters at the Hayward Hotel.

William A. Graham, Jr.

With Thomas Dille of Los Angeles as his assistant, he organized the Rotary hotel bureau here. This bureau made contracts with all hotels in Los Angeles and Pasadena for accommodations for Rotarians, who are coming to the convention.

ROOMS ENGAGED

Next to the similar bureau of the National Education Association the Rotary convention hotel department is probably the largest of its kind in the country. Before last March 1, Secretary Graham had under contract every hotel room in Los Angeles.

All Rotary clubs were notified of the convention by an official call which was sent out in January, and were requested to let Mr. Graham know what they would need in hotel accommodations. The applications for accommodations were assigned as far as possible, according to the Rotary rule giving the Rotarians who come the longest distance first choice in accommodation. In all, approximately 4000 hotel rooms were placed at the disposal of Secretary Graham and has department, and practically all will be occupied.

Secretary Graham has been in constant touch with the various convention committees, and with the International Board of Directors, and has engaged and organized an office force for the office of the secretary-general, which will be ready for him when he arrives.

Secretary-General Perry will step off his train here Saturday with his own private secretary and stenographer, and walk into an office equipped to carry on the work of Rotary headquarters in the same way it is handled in Chicago. During the course of the convention, and for a few days thereafter, practically all there is to Rotary will be here.

Immediately after the adjournment of the convention here Friday, June 9, Secretary Graham will gather together the reports and data concerning the convention, and proceed to edit and publish the proceedings. He will then make a detailed report of the work of his department for the year to the international board of directors, prepare a budget for the next international convention so that he can be prepared to jump into the next city selected for the international convention, with his charming wife and their son, by Jan. 1, 1923, prepared to start in organizing another convention.

GIRL ASKS $100,000 FOR TOOTHLESS GRIN

DENTAL PASTE ADVERTISEMENT SAYS SHE "DARE NOT LAUGH"

Miss Estelle Schindelman, nineteen and pretty, has ideas about having her photograph used in an advertisement for a brand of tooth paste.

Through her guardian ad litem, Lester M. Emmett, she filed suit in the County Clerk's office yesterday for $100,000 damages against the Forhan Company.

She alleges that without obtaining her or her parents' consent in writing and after she had directed the company to discontinue using her photograph, the company caused it to be published in Sunday rotogravure sections of a New York and a Philadelphia newspaper and in a magazine with a wide circulation, in conjunction with an advertisement of tooth paste.

Miss Schindelman asserts that is not exactly the sort of impression a young girl would want her friends and acquaintances to have of her and she demands that the tooth paste concern reimburse her for the humiliation, mental anguish and suffering she says their advertisement has caused.—[New York World.

HUSBAND .. SEEKS .. HEART .. BALM

Charges Race-Horse Owner Stole Wife's Love

Mrs. Joyce Evans L'Anglaise

THE story of a three-months-old marriage that went on the rocks when a purported wealthy man became attentive to the bride is told in the $50,000 heart balm suit filed yesterday by Harvey L'Anglaise against Wallace S. Walton. The latter is said to be owner of a string of race horses and garages. Mr. L'Anglaise is manager of the Remick song shops.

The complaint, which was prepared by Attorney David A. Hill, gives the steps in the purported winning of the love of Mrs. Joyce Evans L'Anglaise chronologically. The story starts with the marriage of the L'Anglaises in Santa Ana March 22, last. A week later Mr. Dalton telephoned the bride. The bride and Mr. Dalton met April 1 and went out driving. The love-making must have progressed rapidly, because Mr. L'Anglaise declares his bride and Mr. Dalton were in each other's company April 17 at 1846 South Figueroa street.

On the 4th inst. the charge of appearing intoxicated is made against the bride, who was seen with Mr. Dalton, it is said. Four days later the bride is charged with having telephoned Mr. Dalton, asking if she could visit his apartments. He apparently acquiesced because it is charged that she went there. The bride was observed driving with Mr. Dalton, apartments the following day, according to the complaint.

On the 10th inst. Mr. Dalton and the bride were together, and she did not return home until the following day, it is stated. Almost a week elapsed before she was observed driving with Mr. Dalton, visiting his apartments and staying until after midnight. On the 23rd inst. they were traced to 634 Bixel street, the complaint sets forth.

In a divorce complaint filed at the same time by Mr. L'Anglaise against his attractive wife, Dalton is named as the co-respondent. The same charges are incorporated in the divorce action that are mentioned in the alienation suit.

The complaint states that the couple were married March 22 last, and separated on the 8th inst. The visits of Dalton to Mrs L'Anglaise's apartments and her visits with him are used as the basis for the suit.

According to the management the customary last minute flood of business has set in, and subscriptions to the convertible trust indenture notes are arriving so frequently that the clerical force is taxed to the utmost. These convertible trust indenture notes will be withdrawn from further public subscription on midnight Wednesday.

CRIES IN VAIN FOR RELATIVES

Woman, Robbed of Reason, Found Wandering in Hills Near Canyon

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, May 29.—With only a few bits of information with which to work, Orange county officers were today attempting to clear up a mystery surrounding the identity of a woman clad in scant attire, found wandering in the brush of the hillsides in Santa Ana Canyon near Santa Ana last night.

Sobbing incessantly and vainly struggling to collect her faculties the woman is being aided in her efforts by physicians at the Orange County Hospital, where she has been taken pending the success of efforts to locate relatives or friends whom she says live in Long Beach and Orange.

The questioning of Mrs. Nona Y. Lacy, matron of the Orange County Jail, who assisted officers in bringing the woman to the County Hospital, resulted in securing the information that the name of the unfortunate person is probably Strong. The young woman, who appears to be about 25 years of age, was seen by a number of motorists passing through the canyon Sunday afternoon and reports were made by them to the police at Corona and the Orange county officers. The woman was located by a Riverside county traffic officer and later sent to Santa Ana.

Efforts to elicit further information have been baffled by her refusal to talk and apparent inability to recall facts leading up to her plight. When she will talk, which is not often, she calls for W. J. Desmond of Long Beach, a member of the law firm of Desmond, Tarzalere & Burke of that city.

Mr. Desmond was notified by Sheriff Jackson and was expected to come to the County Hospital today to see if he could identify the woman. He had not arrived at a late hour today.

According to information given by Mr. Desmond, the woman who thought that she had lived at the Roselle Apartments, Long Beach, was once a waitress in the Cafe Royal, there. She had married a sailor, who went to sea, and the present condition of the woman is thought to have grown from the love affair and loss of her husband.

In talking with the officers, the woman said that the only crime she had committed was that she loved a man once. She insisted that she should be taken to the County Jail and not to the hospital. At another time the woman mentioned Dr. Chapline of Orange, whom she said that she knew. Dr. Chapline was called to the County Hospital, but could not remember ever having seen the woman.

That she had a sister in Orange was also stated by the woman, but she refused to give the name of the other woman, so the authorities were unable to learn more from that source.

Although badly burned by the sun on portions of the body left bare by the scanty clothing and suffering from exposure, the woman does not seem to be in serious physical condition. Hints that she had been mistreated while in the hills, made to the officers, were not given credit. If no further developments are had in the case before tomorrow, Sheriff Jackson is planning to take the woman to Long Beach in the hope that familiar surroundings will aid her to remember the circumstances that brought her to the condition in which she was found.

Nagging Given as Reason for Wife's Divorce

Mrs. Ethel A. Worthington was awarded $25 a week alimony from Charles Worthington by Judge Summerfield yesterday. She declared he nagged her and called her names, and that she is now staying at the home of Alexander Pantages, because she was put out of her own home.

Mr. Worthington said he is preparing to file a cross-complaint which, he said, will border somewhat on the sensational. He is represented by George Greer. Otto J. Emme is counsel for Mrs. Worthington.

FIRST FIRE OF SEASON

Blaze at Head of Indian Canyon

Fishermen Report to the Rangers by Phone

Call for Volunteers Meets With Response

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, May 29.—The first forest fire of the season, which started Saturday at the head of Indian Canyon, thirty miles north of Santa Barbara, was reported late today as under control after having burned over an area 400 square acres in extent. The forestry service has been sending men to the scene to aid the fire forces. The men are taken in trucks to a trail above the city and from there take horses for a twenty-five-mile ride into one of the wildest sections in Santa Barbara forest reserve.

The fire was first reported from a ranger telephone by Merle Wideman and several companions, trout fishermen, who, seeing the smoke at the head of the Indian Creek, rushed to the station, found it vacant and, breaking in, sent out the call that definitely located the fire.

The fire is believed to have been started by a careless trout fisher throwing into the brush a lighted cigarette or match. All day today the flames have coursed through the deep brush, working their way toward Mono Creek, a tributary of Santa Ynez River and directly into the heart of the watershed supplying the city's water basin at Gibraltar.

The rangers have led three fire-fighting parties into the country, in all about sixty men, and are preparing to take in others in the morning. Call for volunteers was made this afternoon along the city streets, the forestry service reporting that so far no trouble has been found to secure all the forces required.

SHIPMENTS OF LETTUCE INCREASED

Imperial Valley Season Closes After Movement of 4700 Carloads

Shipments of lettuce from the Imperial Valley, which have ended for the present season, show a distinct increase in the cultivation of the succulent salad vegetable in the valley fields, according to officials of the State Department of Agriculture, who have returned from a recent inspection trip through the Imperial country. Cars of lettuce crates shipped from valley points this year totaled 4700. Better prices, it is stated, were obtained by lettuce growers for produce this year than last. The bulk of the valley lettuce crop goes to the Atlantic seaboard, a portion being reshipped by water to points south.

Cantaloupe shipments from the Imperial Valley this year will amount, in all, to 12,000 cars, according to computation by State agricultural inspectors. Early cantaloupes from the valley have been bringing fancy prices in the New York market for the past month. Brawley and El Centro, the principal shipping points of melons, are centers of activity during the months of spring and early summer. In round numbers, 21,232 acres of valley lands are devoted to cantaloupe growing.

WE bow in reverence on this Memorial Day to our heroes, whose sacrifices we record with deep affection.

They rest not alone on native soil, but in alien lands, some in graves unknown.

The shock of the world war still abides; yet it cannot dim the deeds of those who, more than half a century ago, gave to us liberty and union.

Noble young! Revered veterans! Your imperishable glory is a glowing inspiration to us to serve our country, our homes and all mankind.

It is, perhaps, appropriate for our institution to record, on this solemn occasion, its sense of responsibility and service to the community.

Fred Barber Retains Golf Championship

Fred Barber successfully defended his title of city golf champion by defeating Earl Neitzel in the final round at Griffith Park yesterday. The score was 1 up, the match being decided on the thirty-sixth hole after a thrilling nip and tuck tussle.

The result was quite a surprise, Barber having been expected to win by a much more decisive score. But the city champion lost five of the first six holes, and was 1 down at the end of the morning lap.

R. M. Copeland won the finals of the Tufts trophy flight from Ben Griffin, 2 and 1. The other final matches resulted as follows:

First flight — Bill Hall defeated Glenn Waite, 5 and 4; second flight — A. W. Taylor defeated A. R. Cloes, 8 and 3; third flight—J. F. Taylor defeated G. F. White, 4 and 3; fourth flight—C. R. Northmore defeated M. J. Kender, 5 and 4.

The women's city championship will start next Monday, it was announced yesterday by Professional J. A. Patterson. Matches will start the following day and the tourney will be run off within the week.

WHITTIER POETS TRIP POMONA SAGEHENS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WHITTIER, May 29.—It has been said that Wagner's music is not as bad as it sounds, and be it known, without wishing to present an alibi or other athletic atrocity, that the baseball score of Whittier College, 10; Pomona College, 4, is not as bad as it sounds. Pomona did the best she could Saturday on her own home grounds, with but three scattered hits by the Sagehens.

GEORGIA TECH WILL COMPETE AT URBANA

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

URBANA (Ill.) May 29.—Entries from Georgia Tech, Atlanta, Ga., for the National Collegiate Athlete Association track and field meet, to be held on June 17, were received today by the meet committee. Among the men who are entered are Whelchel, Anderson, Davis and Welsh, all of whom have been consistent winners in the southern meets this spring.

Whelchel tied for first in the pole valut at the N.C.A.A. meet last year, with Jenne of Washington State, Wilder of Wisconsin and Gardner of Yale. The pole vault this year promises to bring together a field of men of Olympic meet caliber, and the record established last year is almost sure to be broken.

TROJANS WIN AT WILLIAMS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WILLIAMSTOWN (Mass.) May 29.—The University of Southern California tennis team defeated Williams College here today, 3 to 0. This is the sixteenth win for the University of Southern California, it having defeated Philadelphia College of Osteopathy Saturday, 3 to 0. Welsh winning his match by default.

CITY TENNIS ON TOMORROW

Racketers Will Compete for Championship

Los Angeles Club Nets to be Scene of Battle

Huge Entry List for Annual Local Classic

Everything is in readiness for the Los Angeles city tennis tournament, which begins tomorrow at the Los Angeles Tennis Club. Clarence J. "Peck" Griffin, the San Francisco net artist, who, with Bill Johnston, formerly won the national doubles championship, is picked by most tennis fans as the one who will carry off the singles title. However, Peck is due to run into a lot of action when he runs up against Harvey Snodgrass, present city champ, and Tom Ferrandini, winner of the singles in the recent Ojai Valley tourney.

In the men's doubles matches Tom Ferrandini and Nat Browne have paired off in what should prove to be a hard combination to upset. Harvey Snodgrass and Roland Reinke will give some pairs a lot to worry about, as they form a strong combination. Maurice McLoughlin, former national champ, has Ken Hawks for a partner, and as these two have twice won the Southern California doubles championship, they will form a hard pair to beat. Griffin and R. E. Callahan are also strong contenders.

In the junior singles Conrad Bryant, the Hollywood High sensation and interscholastic Southern California champ, is expected to walk away from his opponents. Howard Coffin of the Harvard Military Academy will probably give him most competition.

A large entry list has signed up for the play, in all, and a lot of good tennis is expected to be brought out. The drawings and schedule follow:

DEMPSEY KEEPS IN TRAINING

Champion Works Out With Local Pugs in Tommy McFarland's Gym

Being the world's champion heavyweight boxer necessitates considerable labor, if one judges from Jack Dempsey's workout yesterday afternoon in the Southern California Athletic Club gym. The champ took on an assortment of the liveliest leather pushers in the city in a sparring practice, batting them all around indiscriminately and demonstrating to a crowd of open-mouthed spectators that he carries a man-sized wallop in either mitt.

Dempsey's workout was held under the watchful eye of Trainer Teddy Hayes, who insists that the champ keep in good condition whether globe trotting or staying home.

One of the most interesting of Dempsey's several two-round bouts yesterday was a set-to with Lee Moore, Jack's pal from 'way back. Moore, who is a lightweight, socked Dempsey with everything he had and took considerable punishment and a lot of kidding for that indiscretion.

CRIQUI STOPS FOX

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, May 29. — Eugene Criqui, the French champion, won an easy victory over Joe Fox, the English champion, in the international featherweight contest at Holland Park Hall tonight. The fight was scheduled to go twenty rounds, but Fox was so badly punished that the referee stopped the bout in the twelfth.

PALMER BLANKS PURDUE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, May 29. — Charles "Chick" Palmer pitched a no-hit, no-run Western Conference baseball game against Purdue today and Northwestern won, in eleven innings, 1 to 0.

NEW YORK WINS AGAIN

Winning his fifth straight victory in seven days, Nig Wyatt yesterday pitched the U.S.S. New York to victory over the U.S.S. Connecticut, thus eliminating the train flagship from participation in the finals for the baseball championship of the Pacific Fleet.

Following their victory over the Connecticut at the harbor the New Yorkers left last night for San Diego to meet the naval air station in a three-game series for the naval championship of the Pacific Coast. Games will be played at the southern city on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Wyatt again won his own game, striking out fifteen men. On the day before he struck out thirteen men in the first win over the Connecticut, making twenty-eight strikeouts in two days. The Knickerbockers hit Cole hard, scoring five times in the first inning and freely thereafter. The Connecticut's only run was scored after two men were out in the ninth inning. The score:

Connecticut	R.	H.	E.
New York	7	8	2
Batteries—Cole and Carter; Wyatt and McClendon.

KAMM BRINGS RECORD PRICE

Seals' Third Baseman Sold to Chicago White Sox

San Francisco Club Receives $100,000 in Deal

Coast Team Will Also Get Two Players

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—Willie Kamm, third baseman of the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast Baseball League, has been sold to the Chicago club in the American League for $100,000 and two players, valued at $25,000, it was announced today by George A. Putnam, secretary of the local club.

According to Putnam, the deal is the biggest ever negotiated between a major and a minor league club and is approached only by the deal in which Jimmy O'Connell, first baseman and outfielder for the San Francisco club, was sold to the New York Giants for $75,000. O'Connell also will finish out the season with the local club.

AFTER PENNANT

"We could have gotten more for Kamm had we agreed to deliver him immediately," Putnam said. "We refused to do so. In fact, we would not let Kamm go for $500,000 on an immediate delivery basis because we are after that pennant, and mean to win it."

Kamm has been with the San Francisco club for three years, graduating from a semiprofessional outfit, which played in Golden Gate Park here. He is 22 years old, and is credited with being one of the most brilliant infielders in the country. He will play out the season with the San Francisco club.

WILL AID SOX

White Sox officials anticipate a material strengthening of the club with the addition next season of William Kamm, whose purchase from the San Francisco Pacific Coast League team was announced today. The two players to go to San Francisco in the trade along with $100,000, will not be selected until next fall, Harry Grabiner, White Sox secretary, said.

"We would be willing to give almost anything in reason to get Kamm at once," Grabiner said, "but naturally San Francisco regards him as vital to their pennant chances this year."

FEDERAL LEAGUE IS DEFEATED IN COURT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Organized baseball, as conducted by professional clubs under the national agreement, the Supreme Court held today, is not interstate commerce, and the clubs are not liable under the Sherman anti-trust law.

The decision of the court was victory for organized baseball, as against the claims of the Baltimore club of the defunct Federal League, and sets aside the verdict of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, awarding the Baltimore club damages of $240,000 against organized baseball.

STANFORD AND BEARS STAY OVER

California Athletes Will Remain in East to Compete in Events

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, May 29.—University of California athletes who on Saturday captured the athletic championship of the intercollegiate A.A.A.A. for a second year had scattered today, but under orders to get together again in time to compete in the games of the National Collegiate A.A. at Chicago on June 16 and 17. Coach Walter Christie said he would take ten of the fifteen men brought east to the Chicago meeting.

Stanford University athletes, who finished third on Saturday, also delayed their return home, so that Kirksey and Sudden, sprinters; Williamson, quarter miler, and Capt. Hanner, field event specialist, might compete in the New York A.C. games next Saturday.

A survey today of the events of Saturday, which were marked by the toppling of all but one of last year's titlists who sought to repeat, showed that in many instances the time, height or distance were the best or second best since the war.

Hope for the young man incapacitated by injuries was found in the fact that two of the new champions, J. W. Merchant of California, record-breaking hammer thrower, and the outstanding individual of the meeting, and G. E. Brender, University of Pennsylvania, javelin winner, had recovered within a year or two from broken arms, and that Y. T. Brown, wrenched knee, made a new record in the high jump.

Borochow, Los Angeles champion and captain of the Los Angeles team, and E. W. Gruer, champion of California. The public is invited. The line-up of the teams follows:

FOR THE MAN WHO CARES

Portland Club Magnates May Seek Relief From Ruling of Judge Landis in Civil C

COAST LEAGUE TO STAND PAT

McCarthy Backs the Action Taken by Commissioner

Dictator's Order Would Force Moguls to Retire

Special Meeting Called for Next Friday

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) May 29. — Stunned by the announcement of the decision of Judge Landis, high commissioner of baseball, in the Kenworthy case, making President W. H. Klepper and Vice-President James R. Brewster of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League ineligible, and taking W. J. Kenworthy entirely away from the Portland club and making him the property of the league, baseball circles here were today awaiting the next move.

President Klepper requested President W. H. McCarthy of the Coast League that a special meeting be called for next Friday at Portland to consider the situation. Klepper intimated that the case would be taken to the civil courts, if necessary, to determine whether Judge Landis has the right to make such a drastic decision.

WOULD FORCE MOGULS OUT

If the decision is binding, it will force Klepper and Brewster to retire from active management of the Portland Baseball Club. They must dispose of their stock. Kenworthy is not only deposed from the management of the club, but is suspended as a player until 1924, with the proviso, however, that he may be reinstated by Aug. 1, 1922, provided Klepper and Brewster have retired by that time.

Judge Landis based his decision apparently on the conviction that the Portland officials were guilty of getting Kenworthy to hold out from accepting the management of the Seattle Baseball Club. According to the edict, Klepper shall be placed on the ineligible list until Jan. 1, 1925, and Brewster until Jan. 1, 1924. In regard to Kenworthy, if Judge Landis is convinced that Klepper and Brewster have carried out his decision by retiring, Kenworthy will be permitted to play, but not to manage a club after August 1. He has been turned over to the Pacific Coast League directors for disposal, which means that he may not play with Portland, under any circumstances.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—The decision of Judge Landis removing Manager Kenworthy and Owners Klepper and Brewster from the Portland club of the Pacific Coast League "is a closed incident and the league will abide by the decision of the commissioner," it was announced today by William H. McCarthy, president of the league.

CLOSED INCIDENT

McCarthy today called a meeting of the league directors in this city Friday, June 2, at 10 a.m., to "consider the interest of the Pacific Coast Baseball League."

"The matter involving Kenworthy, Klepper and Brewster has been heard by Judge Landis and the decision rendered," McCarthy's statement continued.

"So far as this league is concerned it is a closed incident and the league must and will abide by the decision of the commissioner. The Pacific Coast League is only concerned in the protection of its rights and the fulfillment of its duties and promises."

Grammar Grade Athletes Will Hold Trackfest

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SOUTH PASADENA, May 29.—Grammar school track and field champions of the city will be determined at an all grade school meet scheduled for Thursday and Friday, June 8 and 9. High school coaches, Winner and Carpenter, are planning to be present to give the entrants a careful "once over" in the hope of discovering future prep stars.

The graders from six different schools will romp through an ambitious program, including the 100-yard dash, fifty-yard dash, twenty-yard dash, 440-yard dash, four-man relay race, eight-man relay, broad jump, high jump, pole vault and shot put. In order to prevent any possibility of overstrain and create a larger entry list, no boy will be permitted to enter more than two field or two track events.

MITCHELL LEADS TEAM

In a meeting held by the Polytechnic track men recently, Charles Mitchell, half-mile and mile runner, was elected captain of next year's team over Carl Plate, star Mechanic miler, by a vote of 7 to 6.

VENETIANS TO FACE STOCKTON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STOCKTON, May 29.—Stockton meets Venice High here next Saturday in the finals for the C.I.F. swimming championship of 1922. The Tarsans nosed out Venice by one point in the finals for the State championship last year.

Records made by the Venetians in the Southern California semifinals Saturday, when compared with Stockton's marks against Berkeley the same day, indicate that the Gondoliers stand a good chance of winning.

Both schools are particularly strong in the distance swims and the breast stroke. The back stroke looks like a win for Claude Zent, Stockton's brilliant all-around athlete.

Portland's stupendous smash, carrying it from seventh place to a position right among the contenders, was the outstanding feature of the past week's play in the Coast League.

Eight games out of nine is the best six-day showing made by any club this season, and indicates that the Beavers are gluttons for work when in a winning mood. In the light of these recent developments, followers of other clubs will contemplate with something akin to a shudder where Portland might be today except for the situation which deprived that club of its second baseman and manager. There is little doubt the Beavers would be about ten games better than their present standing.

The week started sensationally for Los Angeles and disastrously for Vernon, but finished about so-so for both clubs. Los Angeles took four out of seven from San Francisco, with Vernon dropping four out of seven to Oakland, giving the Angels a net gain of one game, and leaving the Tigers a three-game lead. Three games is quite a handicap, and Maier's men should still be leading the league at the end of the eight-game series starting today. In order for the Patrick phalanx to go out in front it would be necessary for Los Angeles to take six out of eight, and the Tigers do not play that kind of baseball against the Angels. But while by no means having a decisive result on the pennant race, it will be a series of intense local interest for the passing moment.

• • •

Vernon was in bad shape against Oakland. J. Carlisle Smith was out the first four days, under suspension, and Ping Bodie was favoring a Charley horse.

Of the two, Smith seems to have been missed the more. His fielding, timely hitting and aggressiveness make him a considerable part of the Maier machine. Bodie also is a powerful factor, but Essick had good right field replacements in Schneider and Hawks, with the result that the club was not particularly weakened in that department. But there is no reserve capable of replacing Smith. The club started winning when he reappeared in the line-up.

Essick was forced to send Jakie May home for repairs to his shoulder. He released Shellenback, and Faeth has a fractured foot. Wheezer Dell suffered his first defeat in Oakland, and was hit hard in the game he won Sunday. Wheezer probably has been a bit overworked. Jess Doyle, for the moment, at least, seems to be the club's pitching ace.

• • •

And to think that waivers were asked on Doyle about three weeks ago. He had shown little consistency up to that time. About the same time Portland asked for waivers on Shortstop McCann. For two weeks McCann has been playing great ball both in the field and at bat.

Merely two more arguments against cutting down clubs to the player limit on May 15. Had this been done instead of extending the time to June 1 a number of valuable players would have been sacrificed. Many athletes find it impossible to strike their stride prior to June 1.

• • •

San Francisco gave Gene Valla a strong play for the better part of eight weeks. All fine and dandy when the pitching was loose and everybody was hitting. Then the heaving tightened, the pace increased and experienced and heady baseball became a prime requisite. The Seals had two youngsters in their infield—Rhyne and Kamm. In the outfield were Valla, a frightened rookie; O'Connell, a greatly overplayed kid, and See, something of a youngster himself.

The club started a dizzy slide, but steadied somewhat when Joe Kelly and Pete Compton, both decidedly ancient, were sent in to flank O'Connell. New York cracked in the home stretch in 1920 mainly because its three young players—Kelly, Frisch and King—grew unsteady under the pace. There is no apparent reason for revising the statement made a month ago that San Francisco needs an experienced shortstop.

Young pitchers seem to be having a good year. Henry Hampton of the Solons is remembered by his masterful showing here. Bobby Wallace of the Angels seems to be a real find. Only 19 years old, and almost painfully modest, he has been pitching better ball than nine-tenths of the veterans. He has something to learn, but is coming. Breaks were against Wallace last Sunday, but Jim Scott was entitled to them. Prior to that Jim had pitched two games, not allowing an earned run in eighteen innings, and yet had lost both.

• • •

Apparently when a young player is sold to the majors he should be delivered immediately. San Francisco elected to retain O'Connell for one season after selling him. Seal owners did this partly as a concession to public opinion, and figured he would prove invaluable to the club this season. Realizing that he does not belong to the San Francisco club, Jimmy apparently feels no particular interest in playing for it.

• • •

Herman Pillette is proving a pleasant surprise with Detroit. Northern critics raved over him last season, particularly in Portland. Few could see him here. His performances in Los Angeles were far from impressive. Apparently he was seen here at his worst. We expressed doubts regarding his ability to deliver in the majors. We hereby take it back, and with pleasure. Rather any day have my own judgment look punk than for a young pitcher to fail by way of vindicating it.

GRIGGS JUMPS TO FORE

The feature of last week's batting in the Coast League was the advance of Paddy Siglin of the Salt Lake team and Art Griggs of the Angels. Siglin made eighteen safe swats in the nine-game series at Portland, while Griggs made twelve in the seven-game series at Washington Park. Siglin advanced twenty-nine points. Griggs advanced twenty-three points.

Red Smith leads all players of the Vernon and Los Angeles teams with a mark of .367. Vernon gained ten points in team batting last week against the Oaks.

While taking eight out of nine games from Salt Lake, the Portland club batted at the terrific mark of .410 last week. In this wild series the Ducks made 133 hits and scored 94 runs. Portland advanced twenty-seven points in team hitting.

The club and individual averages compiled to date by Leo Moriarty follow:

Parkinson's Home Run Breaks Winning Streak

Pitcher Ring Makes Attack Upon the Umpire

Fournier's Play Feature in Lengthy Contest

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, May 29. — Parkinson's home run drive, with Williams on base in the eighth inning, today broke New York's winning streak and gave Philadelphia a 5-to-3 victory. In the sixth inning Ring, the local pitcher, threw his glove at Umpire Pfirrmann when he gave Young his base on balls with two out and two on base. The pitcher then rushed down and made a pass as though to strike the umpire, but Catcher Henline interfered. Ring was then chased from the game. In the next inning Henline was banished for objecting to a called ball on E. Smith.

COOGAN TO PRODUCE

WILL ADD TWO UNITS BESIDE JACKIE'S COMPANY

By Grace Kingsley

You're not going to have to speak of Jack Coogan, Sr., merely as little Jackie Coogan's father after this. But at that you'd really think that Jack Coogan, Sr., as father and manager of his brilliant young son, would have his hands full. But now we know where the youngster gets his energy.

Not to keep you in suspense any longer, it was learned yesterday that Jack Coogan has plunged into the business of production to the extent of adding two independent producing units to his present activities. Both will work at United studios.

The first company is a western unit, and will be euphoneously called Rodeo Productions. Direction is under the supervision of George Marshall, former director of Tom Mix. This company will produce twelve two-reel western comedies. The stories are being compiled by W. C. Tuttle and all-star casts are to interpret them. The second company is the Fred Hibbard Productions, in which Mr. Coogan will be associated with no less notable a film personage than Frank Lloyd. Fred Hibbard is in charge of the direction of this unit, which promises to carry to the screen twelve two-reel novelty comedies, which will feature children and animals. Hibbard formerly directed Century Comedies. Prior to that he was with Mack Sennett. Distribution is to be announced later. Arthur Bernstein, production manager with Jackie Coogan Productions, will serve in that capacity with these two companies.

Both the Rodeo and Hibbard companies are half-way through their initial productions, and have stories all ready for production as their second efforts.

ORPHEUM BILL FULL OF SNAP AND FLASH

It's pretty snappy down at the Orpheum this week. Everybody on the bill is wise and fly, and mostly works for laugh returns. Don Barclay and Del Chain really should have the blue-ribbon spot given Fenton and Fields.

These two boys are all paprika, with their kidding, their singing, but especially with their burlesque fooling, such as the illustrated song and fake mind-reading stunts. Barclay is Chain's new partner, and grabs the hothouse display in mugging and method.

Pushed up a few slots should be Charles Olcott and Mary Ann, a nice-looking couple, with the girl a perfect darling of a doll baby, who could get by on personality and looks alone, even without that delightful voice. The songs are all Olcott's own pink thoughts.

If you're highbrow in vaudeville now-a-days, you've got to make it snappy. David Schooler has a beautiful novelty in his piano act, decorated with four peachy girls, and gets by painlessly with his superior piano playing. The act is a roof raiser.

It's the thing now-a-days for song writers to ballyhoo their own stuff, and Jimmy Lucas does it in "Vampires and Fools," with the excellent aid of pretty peppy Francene.

Fenton and Fields are nifty steppers and good chatterers. They bing the bullseye with the folks in front. Frank Wilson opens festivities with his talented bike, and a girl modestly billed as "the wonder girl" closes with a rope act similar to that of Dainty Marie's.

BETTY BLYTHE LURE AT TALLY'S BROADWAY

Of course William De Mille's story, "The Woman," remains the blue-ribbon drama when it comes to the political story in which the ambitious statesman has an impediment in his career in the shape of a wife with a more or less purple past.

"His Wife's Husband," the picture at Tally's Broadway, which stars Betty Blythe, has this theme, with Betty as the lady with the tinted history. It's merely a pale pink past, however, inasmuch as the girl insists on remaining a kissless bride to the first man, running away on their wedding day when she receives a letter stating that she is heiress to a fortune. On the moment of her getaway she sees a woman shoot her husband, so she thinks he is dead.

Of course she marries again, and husband No. 1, not dead at all, turns up to claim her, and complicate her lawyer-husband's gubernatorial political career. But another wife turns up, the marriage license is discovered, and Betty dashes into the convention hall to save her husband from resigning his office.

The story is further complicated by a ghostly visitor, who haunts the heroine's house at night, looking for lost papers.

In fact, as one watches the story unroll there comes glimmering back to one stolen afternoons with Bertha M. Clay, Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, and the Fireside Companion. Those stories had suspense and thrill, too.

You feel like spanking Betty Blythe sometimes. Capable of fine emotional expressiveness and genuineness, her acting is too often mere posing. Arthur Carew is admirably devilish as the villain.

Have you tried buying a copy of Alexandre Dumas's novel, "The Count of Monte Cristo" in the bookstores? Have you properly smiled at the young lady behind the counter at the Public Libraries?

Ever since the picture version of "Monte Cristo" has been playing at the Mission Theater, the demand for new and old editions of the work has increased with the number of performances.

REVIEWS

"MR. PIM PASSES BY"

LAURA HOPE CREWS IN GUILD COMEDY

By Edwin Schallert

The fare is light, pleasant, genial, and perhaps a bit ultra. Do not therefore, go to the Mason expecting a lot of thrills and excitement. "Mr. Pim Passes By" doesn't afford the hardier diet. It is caviar, with English muffins and a demitasse. Nor is the mixture an inelegant one as you might suppose.

Laura Hope Crews is playing in the piece. It was written by A. A. Milne. And it has the stamp of the Theater Guild's approval. The brow is slightly elevated as a consequence, but not too much for the more sophisticated voyageur.

The question involved—and it really is somewhat involved, thanks to Mr. Pim—is the egality of a second marriage. The word "bigamy" is even mentioned. The complications are therefore somewhat apropos in view of recent happenings around the Mexican border. But they are of quite a different nature.

Really, "Mr. Pim Passes By" is a "tremendous trifle." Utterly casual. So big a tempest and so small a teapot. But that, as it happens, is its charm.

A staid British household is thriving luxuriantly on its solid conventions. The calm is unruffled except for a young niece's determination to marry an artist. Uncle is strenuously opposed, in British fashion. Auntie strives to further the cause of junior love.

Comes into the home, quite unannounced, a doddering tramp traveler from Australia. He lets drop an insignificant remark about somebody he had known in the Antipodes, and whom he had again met en route to Europe.

His remark proves a bombshell, because the name identifies the man as auntie's first and rather disreputable husband, whom she had thought dead these many years.

Husband No. 2's conduct, on hearing of the reappearance of husband No. 1, is typically provincial. He has no thought of his wife's position and his love for her, but merely storms around about the morals.

Shortly after that Mr. Pim is brought back to the house to tell more about his acquaintance with husband No. 1, and then makes known the previously unannounced fact that said husband is really dead, having choked on a fishbone. Pim returns again still later in the play to state that he had gotten the names mixed after all.

Meanwhile, however, the wife has had opportunity to place herself momentarily in that position for which probably every wife longs, at some instance during her life, namely, not being married to her husband. She conditions her remarriage to him on his giving consent to the wedding of his niece.

There are still more twists and turns to the slight and delicate plot, but enough has been recited to give the key to the play. The material is fragile, but in the main delightful.

There are ten pounds of talk to one ounce of action, but while the lines are not uniformly bright in the obvious way they are filled with gleaming subtleties.

Laura Hope Crews is recalled for her association with the films here, and as I recollect it in "The Unchastened Woman," when Monroeo first presented that play locally with herself and Emily Stevens, who afterward became the star, in the leading roles.

Miss Crews literally radiates womanliness in her present role, and that is what gives it such fine reality and conviction.

She is in a way youth and maturity at once, and fills the stage with the warmth of her presence, without in any sense dominating the play or throwing it out of gear. That, it strikes me, is particularly commendable.

Dudley Digges is character personified as George Marden, J. P. You know his every thought. It is determined in advance by his traditions. The portrayal is a clever sketch of stupidity of the most impossibly sympathetic kind.

Allison Bradshaw as Dinah, or Diana, gives us the British edition of a flapper, which is flapperish and quite intelligent at once. Gushy enough, however, to make you want to whang her with one hand, while you pat her on the back with the other.

Erskine Sanford is Mr. Carraway Pim. A splendid bit of eccentric character. Augusta Haviland does fine portrait of outer womanhood. Leonard Mudie plays the suitor of Diana.

MELODRAMA OF SOFTENED LINES

"Just another picture of the Northwest? Well, maybe you'll like it that way. But, as a matter of fact, it is different in some essential points. And we can probably thank Penryhn Stanlaws and Sir Gilbert Parker for that. Also several of the actors.

"Over the Border" is an adaptation from the story "She of the Triple Chevron." It is showing this week at Grauman's. It is to be regarded as timely because it concerns rum-running across the boundary line between Canada and the United States.

What chiefly interests though is its lack of obvious tricks of the hero rescuing the heroine and the fact that everybody on occasion is a bit of a hero and everybody a bit of a villain. The complications that arise are of the human species. There is real conflict of desires and impulses, of loyalty and love.

What is chiefly missing in the picture is a strong climax. The plot seems to pick up a full head of steam and then before it can dash past the crossing, the exhaust valve or something flies loose, and the speed is lost.

Mr. Stanlaws has a more potent sense of pictorial beauty and psychological effect than of drama. That is probably the reason why the big punch seems wanting. That, too, is the reason why the story seems long-drawn-out just when you expect it to show the most action.

The photography is exquisite and real after the Stanlaws manner. Snow scenes have never seemed quite as vivid as those in "Over the Border."

The characters are drawn with delicacy, if not with force, and the situations are handled with a superior restraint. On these accounts "Over the Border" assumes a charm that is individual and unhackneyed. Quite away from the ordinary melodrama. Even though the power of action seems missing.

In some subtle way Betty Compson just falls below the great emotion you expect of her. She has opportunities in some of the scenes. Whatever she does, though, adds that note of beauty to a feature which is personal, and, one may say, enchanting.

Tom Moore evinces discretion and feeling as Sergt. Tom Flaherty, although his portrait could have had more vivid outlining. One of the best portrayals is that of J. Farrell MacDonald as the chief rum-runner. Mr. McDonald manifests magnetism in this character. Jean de Briac as the French half-breed and Casson Ferguson as Val Galbraith work sincerely and convincingly.

Real Tahiti in Pantages Film Feature

Those who have had romantic dreams of isles in southern seas will find a sympathetic reflection of their fancies in "The Fire Bride" at Pantages. Not that "The Fire Bride" is so peacefully idyllic, but because it has all the accessories that go with stories of adventure and love under southern skies, including simon-pure Tahitian scenery, architecture and humanity.

"The Fire Bride" herself is a maiden dedicated to the god who rules the local volcano, and she is ceremoniously betrothed to her lord by the entire native community in full panoply of grass skirts, nose rings and bamboo spears.

There are two love stories in "The Fire Bride," one of the European, the other of the Polynesian variety, and both terminate happily.

A "Futuristic Revue" is presented by the Countess Leonhardi, violinist, and six operatic singers. The "Futuristic Revue" is really an operatic revue with classic solos and ensembles well rendered, and Mme. Leonhardi's own part in the program, a series of violin solos, shows her a serious artist of unusual technical ability.

Moran and Wiser in "The Hat Shop" get comedy effects out of old hats and eccentric clothes. They are the main comedy event of the show, and potential headliners. Farrell and Hatch, two colored entertainers, are a whole cabaret in themselves, with piano and vocal numbers. Dunlay and Merrill, man and woman, in nut comedy, are also on the comedy list. Lady Alice's Pets, furred and feathered, will amuse the children—old and young.

Dancing and Fun on Bill at Hillstreet

With a good picture, an extra good dance act, and a lot of comedy, both high and low, the show at the Hillstreet this week stacks up well for pep and variety. The youthful band from the Page Military Academy of this city is also there as a novelty attraction, and it may be said that the kids acquit themselves with a good deal of spirit and a reasonable amount of tunefulness.

Travers, Douglas and company with their akit, "Come Into the Kitchen," are the headliners. The act is funny if you don't stop to analyze it. But it seems to the reviewer that Higgins and Bates, two unusually attractive girls in a dance act, ought to have the biggest type.

Their act starts out well with a sufficiently novel introduction, enhanced, perhaps, by the patent-leather dress coat of the piano-plugger, and proceeds rapidly. It has been mentioned that the two girls are good looking; it should be emphasized. Moreover, they can really dance—both of them—and have lots of pep. It is the one act on the bill that ends much too soon.

The comedy of Jimmy Savo struck the reviewer as being very, very, blah, but the audience felt differently, so you'll have to decide for yourselves. Janis and Chaplow are amusingly musical; and Miss Merle presents a flock of trained parrots, who are almost human.

"The Man of Stone," a Selznick picture with Conway Tearle, starts out very well, indeed, keeps it up almost to the end, and then does a most pathetic flop into the sweet and gooey dying-reformation stuff. Why is it no one can die in the movies without first having a change of heart? Especially when—as in this case—said change has no possible bearing on the action?

However, Tearle does some perfectly corking acting in his role of the young English army officer in Arabia, and the local color is good in places until they get off in the Oxnard desert among the papier-mache palm trees.

And while one is asking questions, why has Tearle never become more "prominent" than he has? Several of his recent bits of work ought to have made talk, and the present writer is distinctly for him.

Ike and Mike See Land of Revolution

Ike and Mike go a-traveling in "Here and There," this week's Will King revue; and after an ocean voyage wind up in Mexico, land of cigarettes, senoritas, dolce far niente and revolution. Here they have some affairs of the heart, and suddenly become generals after the miraculous style of promotion that is said to obtain below the Rio Grande. There are a lot of villains, but they fail to promote their villainy with much success, and in the finale everybody comes on with a whole skin, as happy as if they were at home.

In point of comedy effect this week's show isn't as good as last week's. In its dances, songs and specialties it is better. King's chorus is really a thoroughly uptown sort of aggregation, comprising styles of beauty to suit every taste, and very well trained. Clair Starr, the Knight sisters, Bessie Hill and the Golden Gate Four are fast becoming favorites here, and deservedly.

But King and Dunbar really need funnier lines, if they can get them. The two comedians proved their ability to put lines over last week when they had a Cohen play to work on, and now one expects a little more of them than one gets in "Here and There."

Of course, changing shows every week in this fashion makes fresh jokes hard to get, and this is only a suggestion, not by any means a "roast."

Two of the best numbers last night were furnished by Alice Morris and Maudie du Fresna in a Spanish dance, and by Bessie Hill in a song specialty. The last demonstrated her ability to extemporize clever stuff on the spur of the moment, when she perched on the edge of one of the boxes and made extremely personal remarks to a male member of the audience. But as this person happened to be the writer of the present review, the joke is really on Bessie Hill, after all.

Clair Sarr, the Knight sisters and the Golden Gate Four also contributed specialties that added considerably to the gayety of the auditorium.

SAN DIEGO SEASON

A meeting was held in San Diego last evening, and final arrangements completed for the appearance of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Los Angeles in San Diego next season, under the auspices of the San Diego Philharmonic Orchestra Association. Six symphony concerts are to be given, beginning November 21, and continuing monthly thereafter. The soloists are to be selected from the first chair men of the Philharmonic Orchestra. Four additional concerts are to be given on the afternoons for the school children and music students of San Diego, a new departure in the San Diego series.
